"Our defense wasn't getting turnovers, so we started to foul to stop the clock and give them a chance to fail," Haske said.

Instead, the Bees swished 12 of 18 free throws down the stretch, including eight in a row, allowing them to ice the contest.

"Bath was a little quicker than we thought and every one of their kids could play," Haske said. "Our journey ended in the Breslin Center, which is an amazing accomplishment."

The battle against Bath

Clockwise, from top right: Senior captains Matt Dennis (left) and Matt McClellan flank coach Keith Haske as they address the media after last week's 72-58 semifinal loss to Bath. Said McClellan, "We're disappointed with the loss, but not by what we achieved."
Jim Kanine, the team's steady floor leader, brings the ball up court against pressure from Bath's Jon Nugent.
Matt Dennis and Adam Wood attempt to set up a trap and force a turnover.
Justin Thorp battled Bath's Jeff McHenry for the game's opening tap.

SPORTS

A sterling silver sports performance

Soccer teams warm up with spring scrimmages

The Charlevoix varsity and junior varsity girls' soccer team tested their readiness for the upcoming season with scrimmages last weekend against Fruitport.

The varsity team found themselves down 2-0 at the half against the class B Trojans. Taya Drost got the Rayders on the board early in the second half by volleying a pass from Julie Swenor into the net. Erika Kammermann tied the contest minutes later with a goal off a direct kick, but the Trojans won the game with a goal in the waning minutes.

The JV squad gained a measure of revenge with a 3-0 whitewash of the JV Trojans. The newly formed Charlevoix JV club is coached by Carol Madison. Players Anna Hochhalter, Kate Madison and Karlee Barnard tallied goals in the win with assists earned by Marie Serrels and Danielle Vogelheim.

Two Charlevoix athletes named "most improved" on prep school teams

Jonathan Campbell, a junior at the Holderness School in Plymouth, New Hampshire, has been voted the "Most Improved" member of that school's varsity football team.

Campbell was a hard-nosed running back on a team that went 5-1 this fall. In Campbell's three years on the varsity, Holderness teams have gone 21-1 and claimed two New England prep school championship titles.

Jonathan Campbell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell of Charlevoix.

Laura Parish, a sophomore at the Holderness School in Plymouth, New Hampshire, has been voted the "Most Improved" member of that school's girls' junior varsity soccer team.

Laura Parish is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Parish of East Jordan.

Holderness is a traditional coed independent school with an enrollment of 260 students. It offers nationally recognized programs in academic excellence, student leadership, community service, and arts, and the outdoors.

SCRAPBOOK

Norwood can boast of its own Mayflower descendants

By Nancy Ritsema
Norwood Area Historical Society

"I suppose it doesn't really matter what the name of the ship is, as long as it gets you across the ocean," long-time Norwood resident Catherine Lord reflected. "But it sure is something for old folks like me to find out that the name of the ship my ancestors came to America on was the Mayflower!"

Crossing the wintry Atlantic Ocean in 1620, the slow-moving Mayflower carried a small band of over 100 Pilgrims to the shores of Plymouth, New England. They established the first permanent colony in North America settled by families seeking religious freedom. Before the ship anchored, 41 men signed the Mayflower Compact providing for "such a government and governors as we should by common consent agree to make and choose."

The 41 Pilgrims who signed that historic document and their direct descendants form the Society of Mayflower Descendants today. Cathy Lord, along with Mayflower descendants in all 50 states and around the world, is one of those descendants. In Michigan the society numbers about 670 documented descendants.

Catherine Lord is a direct descendant of Elder William Brewster, who, along with Captain Miles Standish, cared for and led the Pilgrim band through that first harsh winter at Plymouth. William Brewster and his wife had five children — named Jonathan, Love, Wrestling, Patience and Fear. Their daughter Fear married Isaac Allerton, who was also a Mayflower Pilgrim.

In order to seek membership in the Mayflower Society, Catherine and her cousin Roberta Mayne Albright had to trace their family history back 379 years to include the births, deaths and marriages of each ancestor. Cathy Lord is 11 generations from Elder Brewster through his daughter Fear and her husband.

The long lineage of the Mayflower Pilgrims and Cathy Lord's ancestors stretched from the Atlantic Ocean to Lake Michigan in the spring of 1865 when Cathy's great-grandfather Elmore Clark stepped off a boat at Elk Rapids. He had traveled by boat from New York's Clinton County to the wilderness of northern Michigan.

What brought folks from New York to northern Michigan was the Welland Ship Canal linking Lake Ontario and Lake Erie. This canal and others opened the Great Lakes waterways for westward expansion and shipping.

The great war between the states had ended and land offered by the government was cheap. Americans were eager to claim and settle territories annexed from the Indians and newly surveyed by the United States government. More than 30 families came to Norwood between 1864 and 1868.

In 1865 Elmore Clark was a 56-year-old widower. His beloved wife Mary had died a year earlier in the state of New York. Leaving their daughter in New York, Elmore decided to go west to Michigan and new pioneer challenges. He was going to homestead a farm. He would send for his 11-year-old daughter after he had established a place for them and planted land with wheat and potatoes.

Stocking up with groceries and supplies in Elk Rapids, Elmore met up with settler Joe Shores, who had bought land next to his. Joe, his wife and their eight children were also from New York. The two men loaded their supplies on their backs and walked the trip from Elk Rapids to Norwood. They helped each other build log cabins. Moss was stuffed into the chinks between the logs to keep out rain and snow.

Elmore worked with others building the new dock and sawmill at Norwood. He took room and board at the sawmill's company boarding house run by Norwood pioneer William Harris in 1868. He continued clearing land on his homestead (now owned by the Mergherio family) one mile north of Norwood.

The City of Brooklyn lake steamer pulled up to the Norwood dock on May 11, 1868 and Elmore's daughter Annie, now 14-years-old, was on it. Annie had traveled by boat from New York with railroad bridge builder Sylvanus Spaulding, his wife and lively youngsters. Mr. Spaulding had built railroad bridges at Lake Champlain and came to Norwood to finish the long dock out into Lake Michigan and to work on mill machinery. He purchased land at $1.25 an acre on Gennett Road east of Norwood and then hired a man to clear it for $100.

The City of Brooklyn was the largest ship that could pass through the Welland Ship Canal in 1868. As the ship entered the locks, the Spaulding children and Annie Clark raced about the deck excitedly while the ship slowly rose 325 feet to the level of Lake Erie. A terrible storm arose as they crossed Lake Erie, with frothing waves that "looked like milk" to Annie and the children. All were seasick.

Two years after her eventful trip from New York, Annie Clark married Jacob Vandusen, a 27-year-old Civil War Navy veteran. Jacob was also from the state of New York. Jacob and Annie married March 13, 1870. Their marriage was the first recorded in the newly named territory of Norwood. Shortly after the wedding, Elmore deeded his homestead to Annie, his sole heir. Catherine Lord's mother Kate was born to Jacob and Annie in 1879, the fourth of five children.

Did Elmore or Annie know of their link to the Mayflower's first passengers? If they did there was no record of it.

"Aunt Ruby and Mama would have been so proud if they'd ever known that we are Mayflower descendants," Cathy said.

To be part of the Mayflower's heritage is an honor for Catherine and her husband, Stanley Lord, and their family. That heritage also adds a new dimension to the history of Norwood and its pioneer families. And it proves that it's not that far from Plymouth Rock to Norwood.

A Message to Our Community from Burns Clinic

In the early 1920s, Dr. Dean Burns dared to dream a little dream. He wanted to bring together a group of specialty physicians to practice medicine in a tiny town on Little Traverse Bay. His dream grew into their reality of Burns Clinic, and for the past 70 years, the Burns Clinic has been devoted to delivering premier health care to this region. Throughout these years, we have been fortunate to employ physicians and staff who have dedicated their lives to caring for you.

As time has passed, changes have occurred around us in the field of health care. We have weathered many challenges together, and have now come to a point in time that for many of us here at Burns Clinic, and for many of you in our communities, would have never thought possible. Within the next 60 days, the Burns Clinic will cease operations as a multi-specialty group practice.

What does this mean to you, our patients?

First and foremost, we want to make clear that at no point in time will the doors to the clinic close. The changes occurring are legal and structural changes. Patients should plan to keep their appointments, whether they are in March or December. And patients should keep their appointment whether it is at the main Petoskey offices or at your doctor's location in Gaylord, Rogers City, St. Ignace, Sault Ste. Marie or Bellaire.

Throughout these times of great challenge and change, one thing has remained constant, and that is the complete devotion of our physicians and staff to this community. They have been here, and will continue to be here in the future, although it will be in a different legal structure. You will see many of the same faces that have served you over time serving you in the future.

What does this change mean to our physicians?

For the physicians, it gives them greater independence within their practices. Some of our physicians may choose to partner with, or become employees of, Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey. Other physicians may choose to become independent and remain on staff at Northern Michigan Hospital or another area hospital. These opportunities have revitalized our medical community and mean that the same high-quality health care you received in the past will be available to you in the future.

What does this change mean to our employees?

You may have heard that our employees received lay-off notices. This was a legal requirement in order to dissolve the Burns Clinic. For many of our employees, there will be job opportunities for them within a Medical Services Organization. Some employees may be directly employed by the same physicians they currently partner with to provide patient care. More specific information for employees will come in the weeks to follow as we work through this process.

The Burns Clinic has considered itself blessed to have been able to employ so many devoted workers throughout the years. We thank each and every employee, past and present, for their dedication and for weathering these times of challenge with us. We wish our employees only the best, and are offering them support in these times of change.

Change is almost always a double-edged sword. It brings about sadness and confusion, and also opportunity and excitement. There is a great sadness knowing that the Burns Clinic name will no longer be a part of our communities. However, it is important to know that this is not the end of Dr. Dean Burns' vision, but only a change needed to keep that dream alive. This change will ensure that the same high-quality health care you have depended upon in the past will exist in the future, with worlds of possibility awaiting it.

The Burns Clinic has been honored to serve you, and our physicians look forward to serving you in the future under a different, improved structure. We understand that you may have many questions and concerns, and want you to know that we are available to help you sort through those. Please feel free to call HealthAccess at the following number so that we can continue to help you.

For more information regarding this change, please call: 1-800-248-6777.

Sincerely,

The Administration, Physicians, and Staff of Burns Clinic

Venetian Festival to fly on its own

New, nonprofit corporation may bring fireworks back to longtime summer festival

By Laurie Lounsbury

By all appearances, the 69th Annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival will appear to be much like the festivals that preceded it.

Yet there will be one distinct difference this year — the festival will no longer be run as a Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce program.

Quietly, and without fanfare, the Charlevoix Venetian Festival was incorporated as a nonprofit organization about six weeks ago.

"Officially, it (the incorporation) happened about a month-and-a-half ago," said Dave Novotny, secretary of the new corporation. "Unofficially, the chamber will still be helping us until we can phase everything out."

For the sum of one dollar, the chamber of commerce transferred all proprietary rights and interests in the Venetian Festival to the new, nonprofit corporation. The official agreement between the chamber of commerce and the Charlevoix Venetian Festival was dated March 30, 1999.

Board members and officers of the new corporation are: Dan Barron, president; John Winn, vice president; Francis (Brownie) Flanders, treasurer; Dave Novotny, secretary; Steve Andreae and Dean Davenport, board members.

At this point, the group has no official festival director.

"The board of directors is now the festival director," Novotny said.

Novotny appeared before city council at their Monday meeting to seek approval for a gaming license for the festival. A gaming license is needed to conduct raffles, an activity that raises money for the festival.

The idea to cut the Venetian Festival loose from the chamber of commerce was born at the first Venetian forum, hosted by the chamber of commerce in the winter of 1997. The concept garnered support at the second Venetian forum, which followed last year's festival.

Giving the festival a new life of its own makes sense under the current conditions.

The new Charlevoix Venetian Festival corporation will not have any connection to the former Venetian Festival.

While the chamber of commerce and former Venetian Festival director John Taylor are embroiled in lawsuits stemming from the Venetian fireworks explosion that occurred in 1996, distancing the festival from the chamber is practical.

It might also be crowd-pleasing.

According to Novotny, the new festival board of directors plans to bring fireworks back to the event, if the Charlevoix City Council gives their approval.

"We're planning on fireworks, but we haven't approached the Art in Charlevoix: More is more?

By Jamie MacMillan

What works in August should work in June.

At least that's the goal of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce as it prepares for its First Annual Downtown Charlevoix Art Festival.

The chamber of commerce hired Howard Alan Events Ltd. to produce the new art festival, which was billed in a recent press release from the chamber as America's Best Art Show. Alan has produced 40 juried art festivals across the nation.

The chamber board voted unanimously last month to hold such a fair on the final weekend of June. The event will be a two-day affair beginning Saturday, June 26 and wrapping up Sunday, June 27. The show hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days, chamber president Jacqueline Merta said.

"We have always talked about adding events or programs that would extend the summer into the shoulder seasons," Merta said.

Merta noted that the chamber board had planned to stage the event earlier in the month of June, but lodging availability was already limited for the two preceding June weekends because of the Petoskey Youth Soccer Invitational. The event may still be sched-

Sister, sister:

Beaver Island and Irish isle are officially united

By Jamie MacMillan

A chance encounter during a honeymoon over 16 years ago has led to a unique relationship between Beaver Island and Aaronmore, an island on the northwest coast of the Republic of Ireland.

The islands officially became "sister islands" recently, as approved by Beaver Island's St. James and Peaine townships and Aaronmore's governing body.

The birth of the idea can be traced to Beaver Island resident Bill McDonough's honeymoon trip to Aaronmore with his new wife, Tammy, in 1982.

McDonough, the chief executive officer of the Beaver Island Boat Company, recalled meeting with the bed and breakfast owner who would be hosting the American couple's honeymoon. The man was traveling to town on his tractor, but knew exactly where the couple was from once McDonough told them they lived on Beaver Island.

Amid the waves of Irish immigrants into America around the turn of the century, many from Aaronmore settled onto Beaver Island. So many migrated to the island in Lake Michigan, the students in Aaronmore learned about the island in their history books.

"We return to Aaronmore a lot and I can't believe the similarities between the islands," McDonough said. "A lot of us on Beaver can trace our family roots there into the mid 1880s."

Both islands are tightly-knit with a focus on farming, fishing and sailing, McDonough said. To this day, McDonough remains blessed regarding that encounter in 1982 because it paved the way for many Beaver Islanders to get a firmer grasp of their family's history.

Everyone was behind the sister city project and McDonough reports that efforts to rename Beaver Islands's Main Street to Aaronmore are underway and gaining steam.

"There is no other place other than Aaronmore to consider," McDonough said of the islands' compatibility.

"I really hope this will continue to spark interest and a higher relationship between the two places."

council yet," Novotny said. "The fireworks will be done in a different manner and shot from a different place, in compliance with federal guidelines."

Meeting the federal guidelines means that smaller shells might be used in the fireworks display. However, Novotny said that smaller shells can still have an excellent trajectory and shoot as high into the sky as the larger shells.

Tentatively, the group plans to shoot fireworks from a barge in the middle of Round Lake. Barriers will have to be placed in the lake to keep boats at a safe distance from the launching barge.

"We would also like to increase the amount of fireworks, to make it a longer show," Novotny said.

A change in festival ownership might also lead to more changes.

"We want to expand in different areas, create more events for children, teens and seniors," Novotny said. "But it's going to be a gradual thing to change."

Now that the festival has wings of its own, it also will need new volunteers to help it fly.

"We need local support," Novotny said. "There are a lot of things that have to be done and we always seem to be short of people."

In other business, city council adopted its new dog ordinance, which requires anyone walking a dog to carry a container of the appropriate size to pick up dog droppings. The theory behind that part of the ordinance is that anyone walking a dog must be prepared to pick up whatever might be left behind by the pet. City police would be hard pressed to match a dog and dog owner up with any given pile of excrement, but by requiring owners to carry a baggie of some sort, police can enforce the law simply by asking dog owners to produce an excrement container.

The ordinance also prohibits dogs from the sandy portion of the city beaches from Memorial Day to Labor Day. Anyone violating the new ordinance will be fined $25 for the first offense, $50 for the second offense, and $250 for a third or subsequent offense.

City manager Mike Wiesner said the city plans to put 10 more containers for dog droppings around town, so dog owners won't have to carry the offending feces for too great a distance.

The new law will go into effect May 5, 1999.

New art fair in June is added to Charlevoix summer schedule

uled earlier than this year's date in the future, the she said.

The first annual event will include works of 150 juried fine artists, with selections ranging from $25 earrings to $100,000 sculptures. It will also feature live musical entertainment.

"Charlevoix is already renowned for its art," Merta said. "This should give us more exposure."

A big reason why the area is known for the arts is that the city has hosted the Waterfront Art Fair in East Park on the second Saturday of August for the last four decades.

The event, in its 41st year, is scheduled this year for Saturday, Aug. 8 and will also showcase the works of 150 artists.

The Charlevoix Council for the Arts, a volunteer organization, stages the event. Chairperson Mary Beth McGraw doesn't see the new art fair in June affecting their event this year.

"We have years of tradition," she said. "Many artists who don't do shows, do this one because they know it's a quality show."

McGraw wasn't without her concerns, however, about hosting two different art fairs. She noted that a handful of artists have called expressing concerns about diluting the customer base and the overall quality of the August show as well as confusing the public.

"If people have gone to a show for years and they go to another one in that town that isn't the same caliber they might think 'Hey, things have changed,'" McGraw said of artists' worries. "That word of mouth gets around."

Another concern is if artists do both shows, they will run out of merchandise for the Waterfront Art Fair later in the season.

McGraw said any effects would only be noticed down the road in the future. She did say that her organization was a little disappointed when told of the new art fair, but is withholding judgment until the two organizations meet later this month to go over planning issues.

McGraw said events like an art fair can be a bigger boost for local merchants than holidays like the Fourth of July and even Venetian weekends because those events are more outdoor-oriented with picnics, barbecues and boating activities. Art shows, though, bring people to town whose sole intention is to shop.

The local chamber is banking on the fact that another show would do the same thing.

"If we didn't feel that the town could handle it, then we wouldn't be doing it," Merta said. "It's the first year for it, so we'll just have to see how it goes.

"This should be a great addition to the community."

Foundation now taking grant requests

Once again it's time to put local charitable dollars to work on behalf of the community. The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is inviting civic groups, schools, municipalities, and nonprofit organizations in need of extra funding to submit grant requests in support of their projects.

During the next few months, the community foundation and its Youth Advisory Committee (YAC) will review grant proposals to help fund health initiatives, community development projects, education, arts and cultural events, environmental efforts, and human service programs. The youth committee, which is made up of representatives from high schools throughout Charlevoix County, will award grants to programs that serve children and teens.

Programs chosen for funding must serve residents of Charlevoix County, meet an urgent need, or enrich life for local residents in some way. The deadline for grant requests in April 30, and funding decisions will be announced later in June.

Grant application forms are available by calling or writing the community foundation office. Those who have questions about the suitability of their projects, or the application process, are encouraged to call and discuss specifics in advance. Foundation staff are available to offer technical assistance to organizations interested in applying for funds.

Established by a group of area citizens in 1991, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a grassroots charitable organization made up of more than 80 separate funds — all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. All the funds are permanent, so they can continue to grow and generate income to serve the area for generations to come. To date, the foundation's assets have grown to more than $6 million, and its grants total more than $1.1 million.

More information about the organization, establishing a fund, making a gift, or requesting a grant is available by calling the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, 536-2440, or writing c/o P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, Michigan, 49727.

OPINIONS

Thanks to all my new best friends in Cheyenne, Wyoming

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

While traveling home from Steamboat Springs, Colo., I learned that the high plains of Wyoming have something in common with the side view mirrors on cars — under those vast skies, objects appear to be closer than they really are.

In our case, the Flying J Truck Stop sign appeared to be much closer than it really was to our spot on the interstate where the motor home broke down. What looked like an easy, one block walk turned out to be closer to one foot-blistering mile in distance.

And I learned that some things haven't changed much out west. Men folk struggle with the broken transportation, be it a covered wagon or a Winnebago, while the women folk herd the children to safety.

In lieu of safety, we herded our kids to junk food and video games at the Flying J Truck Stop. For an added bonus, we got a McDonald's Restaurant next door and a Comfort Inn across the street (just in case).

I also learned it's easy to make friends in Cheyenne, Wyoming. To my new friends out there, I want to say thank you, thank you, thank you.

I want to start by thanking Ron. You know who you are. You're the guy with a brand new, white diesel pickup truck who stopped to give me a lift when I was making my fourth trek from the broken motor home to the Flying J. My mom always told me never to accept rides from strangers, but the wind was killing me, so I decided to take my chances with you. It was the best decision I made all day.

You not only gave me a ride to the Flying J, you gave me the names of Winnebago dealers and repair people in the area. I expected your largess to end there, but instead you drove back to the motor home to see if you could help Roscoe, the Winnebago owner, and Kevin, my husband, in their repair efforts. You really astounded me when you offered to tow a 30-foot Winnebago, along with a 10-foot U-Haul trailer behind it, off the interstate and to the McDonald's parking lot.

Which brings me to the nice trucker at McDonald's. You must have thought Ron looked like a pretty straight arrow too, because you were nice enough to let him borrow your heavy duty tow chain. I bet when you left Montana and headed for Denver, you didn't know you'd get caught up in our roadside saga. Anyway, thanks for the help and sorry to hear the oil rig thing didn't work out in Montana. I hope you find the work you're looking for in Denver.

While all the men were busy towing large unwieldy vehicles and fiddling with electrical wires, a nice young gal at the Comfort Inn was doing her own part to befriend a bunch of scraggly Midwesterners. I want to thank you, too. I know teenage kids can be quite a handful, and yet you exhibited no signs of trepidation when you graciously allowed four teens to sit in the motel lobby to do their homework. You see, we had to pull them out of school for a week so they could ski in the Junior Olympics in Colorado and they were way behind in their school work.

The future looked bleak for the motor home crowd until we met our new Cheyenne friends.

I'm sorry I put you to the trouble of checking us into a motel room only to tear up the paperwork 13 minutes later. It was terribly sweet of you not to charge us anything for the room. It figures, the minute we decided to give up on the idea of finding a mechanic at 7 p.m. on a Sunday night, we actually got help.

Which brings me back to Ron. My gosh, what a great Samaritan you are! After towing the motor home, you left us and tracked down a mechanic buddy of yours and sent him out to help us.

That would be where you came in, Bruce. You could have knocked me over with a frayed fan belt when I saw you pull up with your tool box on a Sunday night. Has anyone ever told you that you look like Sam Elliot? I sure am glad you knew how to jury rig the electrical system so old Winnie would run. Cindy and I thought our husbands had learned all kinds of tricks during their misspent youth, but apparently hot-wiring a Winnebago wasn't among them.

You guys were all the greatest. We definitely missed your company when, 17 miles down the road, we heard the thwap-thwap-thwapping of the rear tire tread beating a tune of impending disaster against the wheel well. The annoying sound went away a few short miles later, when the tire tread parted company with us and took up residence on the side of I-80 near Hillsdale, Wyoming.

With one bald tire, we headed back toward Cheyenne, and to the Sapp Brothers truck and RV service station.

You Sapp guys are amazing. We were pretty much your captive customers at 11 p.m. Sunday, and we would have paid just about anything to get that bald tire changed. Instead of gouging us, you charged us $7.45 for labor and $1.50 for the shop fee. Nine dollars later we were back on the road. You worked so fast, we didn't even have time to register for the free ham you were giving away every day in the month of March. Darn! I like ham.

Now that I've said my thanks, I have a confession to make.

On our outward bound trip through Cheyenne, I couldn't understand why anyone would want to live out on the desolate, high plains of Wyoming, where the wind pummels the poor tumbleweeds all day long for lack of anything else to do.

When our motor home broke down in Cheyenne on our return trip, I got a better understanding of the place. My walk to the truck stop took me past a historic statue called "Native American greets a Mountain Man." The weary mountain man looked like he'd spent too much time traveling by mule - or maybe it was by motor home with eight tired and irritable people — and the Cheyenne was extending his hand to him in a gesture of help.

Obviously, you have a long history of kindness and consideration for others.

Your tumbleweeds don't stay in one place very long, but your tradition of flat-out friendliness is deeply rooted.

With that friendliness always floating along the horizon, those big plains don't look so bad after all.

Letters to the editor

Rayder fan thanks team for excellent season

Editor:

To the Charlevoix Rayder Basketball Team and Coaches:

We, your families, friends, faculty, students, and sports fans who have followed you throughout the past several months, want to thank you for the wonderful basketball season you have given us.

You have taken yourselves and most of us to places we haven't been before. Win or lose, the Breslin was great. You have indeed accomplished something you can be very proud of, as we are all proud of you.

There may have been a few bumps in the road but you guys rose above them. It was a wonderful ride and we want you to know how much you are appreciated. We thank you.

Sincerely yours,
Dave, Judy & Amy Goodeman

Let's start recycling and quit destroying land

Dear Editor:

Today we are destroying more lands then we think just because we are not recycling! We should recycle! Don't you think? We are wrecking our environment and the animals habitat. Our trash is taking up a lot of land such as forests, and farm land. We are also destroying our ozone layer. We can start recycling or we can keep throwing trash and we can wreck our environment! We should recycle. It's your choice!

Thanks for listening!
Sincerely,
Madison McKenzie

Its flowers are pretty, but its aroma is another story

By Roger Knutson

Ear to the ground

When we think of spring flowers, plants like trilliums or even the tiny, delicate lake iris usually come to mind, but Michigan's earliest spring flower looks more like a purple-brown cow's horn sticking up through the snow. If you break off just the tip of the cow's horn and smell it, you will immediately know why the plant is called Skunk Cabbage. It only resembles a cabbage later in the spring when the leaves come out, but the skunk part of the name is obvious from the earliest sniff.

While skunk cabbage lacks the delicate flowers and perfume of later blooming plants, it is more interesting than most of them. How many spring plants do you know that heat up enough to melt a hole in the snow of March; grow roots that contract and pull the plant further in the ground, and live in the same location mostly below ground for as long as 200 years?

The real flowers of the skunk cabbage are very small and bunched together inside that cow horn-shaped outer shell. There may be several hundred tiny flowers forming a yellow ball about the size of your thumb. That thumb-sized ball of flowers heats up to about 75 degrees even when the air and soil around it are at or below freezing. No other plant outside the tropics can heat itself up to that degree. Not only does that ball of flowers heat up, it maintains something close to a constant temperature for as long as two weeks in early spring. It certainly behaves more like a skunk than like a cabbage. On a really cold day in March you could warm your hand briefly by cutting off and holding that ball of tiny flowers.

Beaver Island is practically covered with skunk cabbage plants. Every swampy location on the island is home to hundreds or even thousands of plants. For reasons that are not clear to Botanists, there are very few locations where skunk cabbages live on the mainland in northern Michigan. Ed Voss, in his "Flora of Michigan," says it is common in the southern part of the lower peninsula, but very local or even rare in our vicinity. There is one wet, wooded area nearly filled with them just a few miles south of Charlevoix, and while you may not want to visit them in their swampy home (you need rubber boots even in the spring), you should know that one of the world's truly remarkable plants is the first one to bloom in our part of the world.

Exceptional Riders program starts spring session

The Exceptional Riders Program is planning to start the spring session from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 14. This session will be an orientation session.

The first night of riding will be April 21 and the last night will be June 2. Classes this session will be held at the indoor riding arena at Pace Setter Farms, 02420 Marion Center Rd., Charlevoix.

Classes are open to the physically, mentally, and emotionally challenged of all ages, and are structured to give students confidence in their own abilities and assure their safety. Classes also provide students with physical and emotional rewards. Every session requires approximately 30 volunteer helpers — to lead horses, assist the students and help with many other jobs. This is a nonprofit organization and no fees are charged for the classes. However, students should arrange their own transportation to and from the farm.

If you would like more information about this program or would like to volunteer to help, please contact Barb Lane-Harrington, program director, at 347-3300 or Linda Johnson at 547-9824.

Health screening offered at K of C Hall

On Tuesday, April 13, the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus will team up with Life Line Screening to offer three primary health screenings to detect the risk of stroke. These tests include a carotid artery screening test, abdominal aortic aneurysm test, and an ankle brachial index.

Life Line Screening will also offer a bone density screening for women which tests for the early detection of osteoporosis.

These fast, painless and low cost tests use ultrasound technology and are conducted by a registered or registered eligible Ultrasound Technologist. A board certified physician reviews the results of each test to ensure accuracy of the results before the findings are mailed to each individual.

Anyone interested in either the vascular or osteoporosis screenings must register at least 24 hours in advance. Call 1-800-407-4557 to schedule an appointment for the tests. The tests are offered for $35 each, which compares to $300 to $500 for similar diagnostic tests offered by hospitals and imaging centers. The screening will be done at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

St. Mary's Youth group will work in downstate soup kitchen

Twelve young people and three adults from St. Mary's Parish will be traveling to Detroit for a week this summer to work with the homeless, the hungry, the abandoned and the neglected.

The group is involved in a program called Young Neighbors In Action. The program is an exciting service-learning experience for parish youth and adults.

The program focuses on service and works of mercy and justice. This week-long experience involves teams that work together for those in need and provides creative approaches to learning, cultural sharing, prayer and recreation. This is the second year that the group has been involved with the program.

Last year, the group from St. Mary's Parish worked for a week at St. Leo's Soup Kitchen in the inner city of Detroit. While at the soup kitchen, they prepared and served lunch to approximately 300 homeless people every day. They also helped in distributing clothing to those who were in need.

"It was an experience that I will never forget," said Melissa McDonough, a youth who went on the trip last year.

Added another youth participant, Kelly Sullivan, "If we all would take the chance to learn each person's story, then our love for each other could never fail... Please make room in your heart for anyone in need, maybe just a quick smile. Anything can help."

It is impossible to come back after serving the needs of the poor for a week and not have a different perspective on life. With the financial support of organizations such as the Rainbow Shoppe and the Knights of Columbus, and with the support and prayers of the community, this trip will certainly be one to remember.

The group is still in need of financial support to make this missionary trip a reality.

Anyone with questions or who would like to help financially, call Patty Furtaw, pastoral and youth minister for St. Mary's Parish, at 547-6438.

Obituaries

Phila Armstrong Shanahan

Phila Armstrong Shanahan, 95, of Charlevoix, died April 2, 1999, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

The funeral service was Tuesday, April 6 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum officiated and burial followed at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Phila was born Dec. 2, 1903 in Charlevoix, the youngest daughter of pioneer physician Robert Bruce Armstrong and Maud (Studor) Armstrong. She was raised in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School. Phila then attended Albion College and the University of Michigan, where she was a member of the Alpha Xi Delta sorority and graduated in 1927.

Phila married Edward Kim Shanahan in Charlevoix on Feb. 22, 1930.

Her father was the co-founder of the first Charlevoix Hospital and she was a secretary of that hospital's board of directors when they broke ground for the present Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Phila was a member of the First Congregational Church, the Mary Brewster Circle, Charlevoix Garden Club, the Shakespeare Study Club, and the Order of the Eastern Star in Charlevoix.

She is survived by: two sons, Robert Edward Shanahan, M.D., and his wife, Mary Lou of Sylvania, Ohio, and Bruce K. Shanahan of Charlevoix; five grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; several nieces, nephews, and great-nieces and nephews.

Phila was preceded in death by her husband, Edward; two sisters, Helen (Clayton) Redfield and Dorothy (George) Wantz; and a brother, Dr. Robert Bruce Armstrong II.

Memorials may be made to the First Congregational Church or to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the church.

The family was served by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Correction

In an obituary that ran in the Charlevoix Courier issue dated March 31, 1999, there was an error. The obituary for Mary E. McDonald should have said the following: Mary was survived by her son, Charles McDonald, and his wife, Sally. We regret the error.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

Rev. Duane Nelson
Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene

In the March 17 Beacons of Blessing column, we began looking at how God can bring success to our resolutions and goals by including Him in every aspect of our daily living. This week we will consider the second step which will bring success to our resolutions and goals.

The second area is our preparation for success. As we speak to this, let's be reminded that we need God giving us our direction and providing the strength and power as a prerequisite to preparing for success. Preparation provides the discipline; discipline gives way to success.

First, we need to prepare in seeking the Lord. We need to depend on the Lord to give us the direction for any goals or resolutions for our lives. No surprises here. The Holy Spirit has been working on us for a while. We know the areas in which the Lord wants us to improve. However, you may also find God rearranging the priority list. After we have been given these, look for His method or strategy for victory. His ways may be unconventional to the world, but they will work.

As we are seeking God, our next area of preparation will be complimented. It is the area of preparing through the cleansing of all sin. This is so important. Why would God provide victory and success to those who are actively rebelling against Him and through their actions living like His enemy? Ask God to forgive you of all active rebellion and sin. Now you may be obeying God and living a holy life through His strength, but I believe it is good to allow God to search us everyday. The Psalmist, David, writes in Psalms 19:12-13 (NIV), "Who can discern his errors? Forgive my hidden faults. Keep your servant also from willful sins; may they not rule over me. Then will I be blameless, innocent of great transgression." Preparing through the cleansing of sin definitely keeps us close to God.

Preparation in surrendering our entire will and life to God is our final and most overlooked area. I would be amiss in my responsibilities as a spiritual leader if I didn't mention that this one is the glue which holds all areas of our preparation together. We must reach a point in our lives where we are fully surrendered to God and His ways, not out of obligation but desire. Earthly illustrations fall short in describing a spiritual act, but I'd like to parallel it with a war or a battle. When two sides are battling in a war, there may come a time when one side is overtaken and forced to surrender. They must throw down all weapons and follow their captor's orders with only complete obedience. When we surrender to God, it is not because He has forcefully overtaken us. We allow Him. And with only our well-being in mind, we must drop our weapons and desire to strictly obey His directions. Preparation involves surrendering.

You can have a fresh start with new goals at any time of the year. The question remains: Are you prepared for the success God wants to bring to you?

State representative donates pay raise to worthy groups

While visiting Charlevoix earlier this week, state representative Andy Neumann (D-Alpena) began the process of donating his pay raise to exemplary nonprofit groups in his district. The increase in salary recently went into effect for state legislators.

The local legislator donated $465.50 to the B.A.S.E.S Teen Center as part of his promise not to accept any pay raise.

Neumann was against increases in lawmakers' salaries, especially in light of the fact that a majority of his brethren in the State House of Representatives are new to their offices.

"A month before I took office, I began to publicly question the wisdom of giving an automatic pay raise to 64 new representatives who hadn't put in even one day on the job yet," Neumann said. "I didn't think it was morally or fiscally responsible; every one of those 62 knew what the salary was when they decided to run for the office."

Neumann formally protested to the State Officers Compensation Commission (SOCC), the entity that decides to grant such raises. In a letter to the commission he penned in December, Neumann urged freezing legislative salaries for 1999 and 2000 and revisiting the issue again in two years, noting that many, like himself, will receive a pay raise despite never having "introduced a bill, cast a vote or even occupied our offices."

State legislators were earning $53,192 a year, but were slated for a raise of close to $2,000.

Many in the House agreed with Neumann and the body rejected the pay raise legislation, but the state's Senate failed to take any action on subject, allowing the pay hike to go into effect automatically

Neumann, however, vowed not to accept the raise and, instead, divided it by four to donate it to worthy charities in each of the four counties he represents; Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Presque Isle and Alpena.

By giving a portion of his salary to the local teen center, the lawmaker is providing a boost to a facility that provides a safe, drug- and alcohol-free environment for area teens. The center's staff are all volunteers and it operates solely on charitable contributions.

"The teen center is a shining example of concerned people pulling together to do the right thing — something we could use more of," Neumann said.

Right: Local state representative Andy Neumann eyes a shot in a game of pool with local teen Ken Burch at Charlevoix's B.A.S.E.S. Teen Center. Neumann was at the center the other day to donate a portion of his salary that came from a pay hike.

Northwest Academy band dazzles the Colorado crowds

By Rachel Bellairs
Eighth grade student
Northwest Academy

Just five days after receiving all Division I ratings at the District Band and Orchestra Festival, the Northwest Academy charter school band packed their bags and instruments and headed west to Denver, Colo.

The band had been invited by the National Charter School convention officials to perform at the convention, hosted in Denver in March.

With generous support from the Charlevoix community and businesses, 30 band members and 14 chaperones, including administrator and math teacher Steve Bennett, band director Gary Stutzman and English teacher Angela Morehouse, began their musical journey by Amtrak on March 10.

After 24 hours on the train, with lots of time to do homework, visit, eat and sleep, the excited travelers were greeted in Denver with their first glimpses of the Rockies. A chartered bus took the group through the Eisenhower Tunnel, across the Continental Divide, to the small ski town of Silverthorne. The "Jazz All Stars," a small group consisting of 15 band members, donned their multicolored, sequined vests and bow ties and played for appreciative skiers during lunch time at Copper Mountain Ski Resort in exchange for free lift tickets. The non-skiers enjoyed the local shopping with the help of the free shuttle bus service.

While in Silverthorne, the group divided in two for housing. The girls' housing was without hot water for the entire visit. The group went into "camp mode" and washed their hair in the sink with heated water and showers were taken at a nearby recreation center.

After two days in Silverthorne, the group was bused south through the mountains with a few stops for breathtaking views and photos of

Woodland Park, just outside of Colorado Springs. There, the students met their host families, with whom they would stay for two days.

During their stay, the students were privileged to participate in a private band clinic with well-known area musician Craig Harms and Ray Bell, a jazz trumpeter from Albuquerque, N. M. The two musicians stressed the importance of articulation, breathing skills and many other techniques which will be helpful at the State Festival this spring.

On Monday, March 15, the band traveled to Denver for the National Charter School Convention. On the way to Denver, they made stops at the Garden of the Gods and the Air Force Academy.

The Adams Mark Hotel was the site for the convention, with over 2,000 teachers, administrators, consultants and representatives in attendance. Northwest Academy eleventh grade student, Anora Ruehle, was one of six student delegates chosen from across the United States to participate in a panel discussion about charter schools from the students' perspective. The day culminated in a two-hour performance by the Jazz All Stars during the evening reception.

The following day the band trekked to Colorado Springs to participate in the 1999 "Jazz At Its Peak Festival" for area middle and high school jazz bands at Horace Mann Middle School. Pikes Peak was in full view of the school. The Charlevoix jazz band was a great success and received a Division I Superior rating. Soloists Anora Ruehle, Brie VanDam, Melissa Maurer, Vicki Stevens and Rachel Bellairs each received a crystal ice trophy for their efforts. To celebrate, the group ate at the Spaghetti Factory in Denver before boarding Amtrak that night, March 17, for the journey back to Michigan.

As the excitement of the Colorado trip draws to a close, members of the academy's advanced band and the Jazz All Stars are focusing on upcoming events: the Solo and Ensemble Festival and the State Band and Orchestra Festival in April.

The Northwest Academy band has been playing together for two and one-half years and has already made an impression halfway across the United States.

Island residents consider options for more reliable power source

Favored option will cost $4.3 million

A touchy power situation on Beaver Island prompted officials from Great Lakes Energy Cooperative to meet with 60 island residents Monday night. The purpose of the meeting, held at the Peaine Township Hall, was to discuss long term plans for the island's power supply.

The island has been getting by with emergency generators since Feb. 26, when the underwater cable that usually delivers power to the island developed a fault.

Officials from Wolverine Power Supply are working to get the cable fixed by the time summer — and an increased demand for power — arrives.

At the Monday night meeting, Ed Doss, president and CEO of Great Lakes Energy presented several long-term solutions for power to island residents.

One option was to spend $4.3 million on a new, three-phase underwater cable to the island, along with upgrading the island's existing power plant with new generators.

The two-part proposal would be able to handle future growth on the island and provide reliable power for at least the next 20 years, Doss said.

While most island residents in attendance favored the proposal, they did have questions about how it could come to pass.

Doss explained that island residents will have to hold special township elections to approve a new franchise agreement that would outline the higher rates islanders would pay to cover the $4.3 million cost. The new rate would also have to be approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission.

The proposal could add as much as $12.75 per month to the average electric bill on the island.

Even if the new proposal is approved by island residents, the existing underwater cable will still be repaired and will continue to be used. The three-phase cable is actually three power lines wrapped together.

Other options discussed at the meeting included:

— repairing the underwater cable but not upgrading the island's back-up power plant; — installing a new, three-phase cable, fixing the existing cable but dismantling the island's back-up power plant;

— or forming a new island electric company. Energy officials said the option of forming an island electric company would be the most costly option.

If island residents and officials come to agreement to pursue the preferred option, that project will provide up to 10 megawatts of power capacity to the island.

Currently, the island doesn't use more than 1.69 megawatts on the highest demand days in the summer.

Students can take to the high seas with new class offering

Students can earn college credits this summer outside a classroom and on a sail ship through a program offered jointly by North Central Michigan College and Nor' Star Sail Training programs.

The adventure will offer students a choice of a class in biology field studies, environmental biology, or Michigan history while aboard "Fair Jeanne," a 110-foot tall ship. Each of the five-day trips will entail a sailing cruise around the Great Lakes, with stops at ports in Petoskey, Bay Harbor, Harbor Springs, Beaver Island, Charlevoix, Sault Ste. Marie, and Mackinac Island. In addition to college courses, students will learn sailing techniques including standing watch, docking, seamanship, and marine navigation.

Three trips will be offered, beginning on the following dates: May 23, May 30, and June 6.

The environmental biology class will start off the trips on May 23. It will give a maritime focus while dealing with interrelationships between organisms and their environment. Ecology, natural resources, and environmental and water quality concerns will all be covered. While the class will emphasize local fresh waters, it also will cover global implications.

The Michigan history trip will begin May 30. The class will cover early Michigan history, beginning with the Native Americans, to present day. Chronological as well as topical approaches will be used, covering Michigan's role in the evolution of American history, the growth of cities in the region, and the economy of the state. The class will emphasize the role of the Great Lakes and maritime activities in the development of Michigan's history.

Field studies in biology will be covered by the week of June 6. This course offers students the opportunity to explore and analyze an ecosystem during an extended field experience. Students will participate in activities including hiking, camping, and observation of aquatic and terrestrial wildlife.

The trip cost of $895 includes tuition, course materials, meals, lodging, and sailing. Some scholarships are available. For more information, call toll free 1-800-530-1995 or e-mail Nor' Star at norstar@sunny.ncmc.cc.mi.us,

North Central Michigan College is a community college located in Petoskey that enrolls approximately 2,000 students. The college's accreditation allows it to participate in the MACRO agreement among America's colleges and universities. More information about North Central Michigan College is on the web at www.ncmc.cc.mi.us.

Local skiers were rewarded with great time at Junior Olympics

A 14-year-old girl flew across the finish line after her second run in the Giant Slalom race and threw her skis sideways to stop in the finish area. The skis chattered across the rock-hard snow and ultimately came out from under her.

With a tremendous amount of momentum still carrying her, the girl skidded on her side into the orange-webbed fencing that is supposed to contain skiers in the finish area. She crashed into the fence and continued to slide right under it, coming to a stop only when she tumbled into a legendary figure dressed in a ski jumpsuit and signature cowboy hat.

"Nice race, kiddo — are you all right?" Asked Billy the Kidd, former Olympic gold medalist, as he bent down to help the girl get back on her feet.

The incident was just one of the memorable moments at the 1999 Junior Olympics in Steamboat Springs, Colo.

Charlevoix was represented at the event for 13-and 14-year-old skiers by Charlevoix High School freshmen Roscoe Serrels and Lexi Wilson, and eighth grade student York Smith, who attends Northwest Academy. Fifty girls and 110 boys from the Central and Rocky Mountain divisions of the United States Ski Association qualified for the Junior Olympics.

The skiers will say that one highlight of the event was skiing in the downhill race, something that is impossible to do in the Midwest, due to lack of vertical drop and length of the slopes here.

For parents, it was more of a stomach-churning, nail-biting experience than the thrilling, exhilarating event it was for the racers.

The skiers averaged speeds of about 56 mph on the one-mile long course, with top speeds approaching 65 mph.

Serrels and Smith finished 56th and 70th respectively in the boys' downhill, and Wilson finished 42nd in the girls' downhill.

In the Super G, Serrels finished 42nd, Smith finished 54th, and Wilson finished 45th.

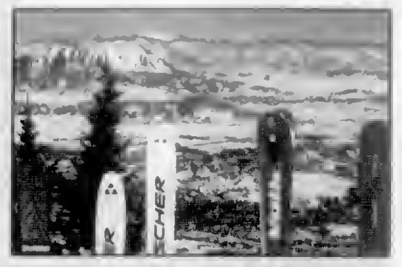
Icy snow conditions, combined with a brutally difficult course, challenged the boys in the giant slalom event. Serrels and Smith were skiing well until they flew over a ledge and missed a gate. Neither of them finished the first run. Of the 110 boys who started in the giant slalom, only 60 were able to complete the challenging course on the first run. Wilson finished 40th in the girls' giant slalom.

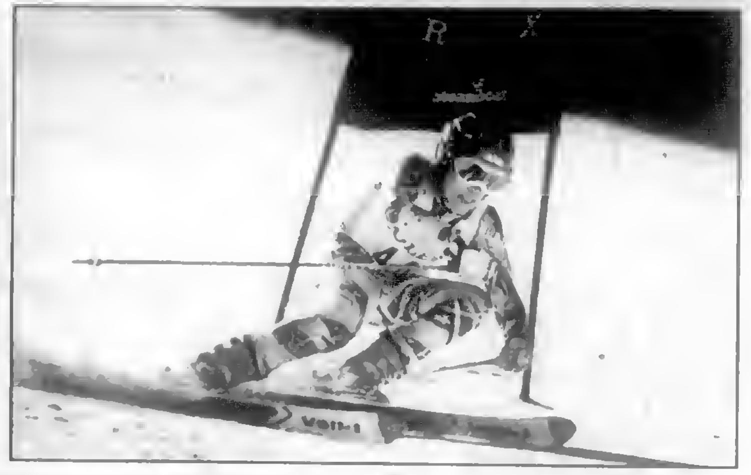
Smith and Serrels were plagued with troubles from that point on. In the slalom event, Serrels did not finish his first run, skiing out of the course after missing a gate. Smith had a great first run, but missed a gate in the second run and skied out of the course.

Wilson finished 31st in the slalom event, moving up 13 spots from her original seeded position.

As an eighth grade student, Smith will have another opportunity next year to qualify for the J3 Junior Olympics. Serrels and Wilson will be moving up to the J2 age group, for 15- and 16-year-old skiers.

Although the skiers hoped to finish better than they did, all will agree that skiing in the Junior Olympics was an unforgettable experience.





Clockwise, from top: Roscoe Serrels launches himself out of the starting gate on the downhill race. (Front page photo is also of Roscoe, in the giant slalom)
Downhill skis are waxed, lined up and just waiting for racers.
York Smith carves a clean turn in the giant slalom.
Lexi Wilson takes a training run before the slalom race.
York was a blur of speed as he flew through the air from a jump in the downhill race.
One bonus for Charlevoix racers at the Junior Olympics was having the opportunity to get to know other racers from the Midwest and the Rockies.
Lexi became airborne during the Super G race.

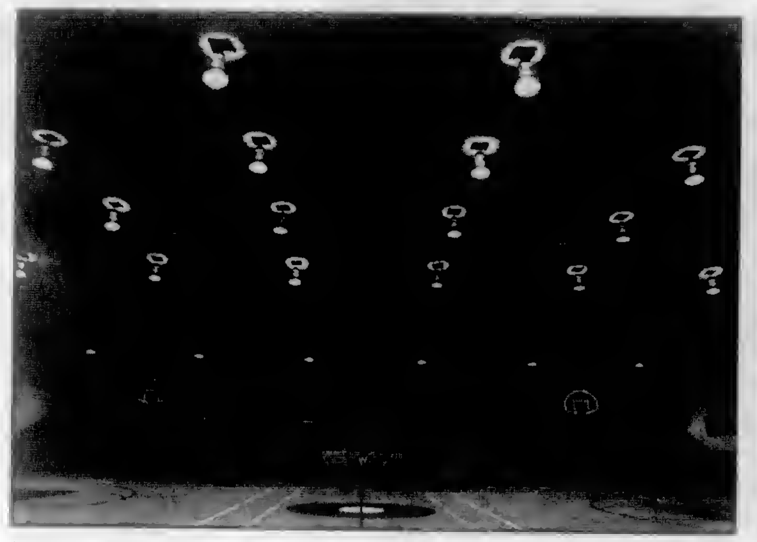
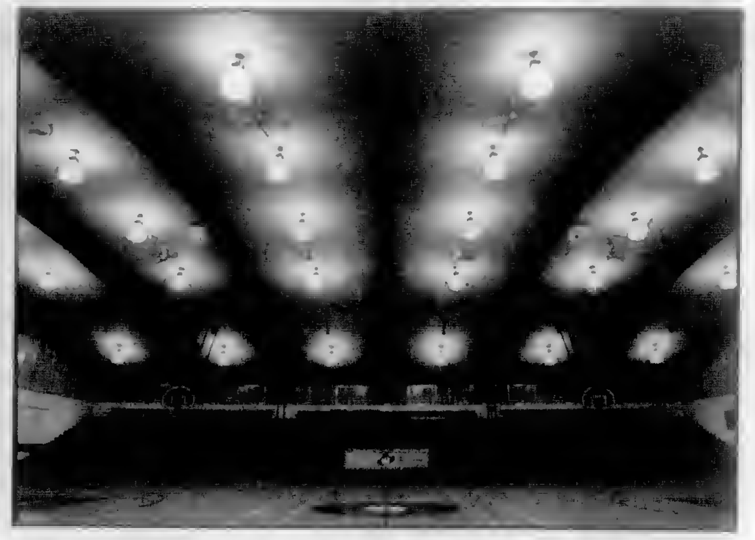
High school gym is a brighter place thanks to local company



Before: The high school gym lighting left shadows on the floor and wasn't very illuminating before LexaLite changed the reflectors in the lights.



After: The gym is now flooded with uniform light, and is much brighter than it was. (Photos courtesy of LexaLite)

The Charlevoix High School gymnasium is a brighter place these days, thanks to the work and donation of a local industry.

LexaLite International, a lighting and research company based in Charlevoix, donated and installed a series of new fixtures in order to better illuminate the local gymnasium.

The company installed 32 new reflectors to replace the old-fashioned and outdated aluminum reflectors previously used by the school. The exact product installed was the RefLexor, a prismatic light component and 1991 trademark of the company.

Various sizes of RefLexors can be found lighting up larger department stores such as Home Depot and Wal-Mart, and can also be found locally in the parking lot of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, said LexaLite representative Lisa Weisgerber.

Weisgerber said the older aluminum reflectors only worked at 70 percent efficiency, while the new products now in the gym operate close to 96 percent efficiency. As a result, the gym not only is brighter, but dark spots on the floor have been eliminated. More uniform lighting helps spectators follow the action better.

Instead of aluminum, the new reflectors are made from an acrylic material with extra impact properties, manufactured by ICI Acrylics under the trademark of SuperTuf. Weisgerber noted that the installation at the school of the products with the SuperTuf material is the first such domestic installation of the product.

The lights were installed in February and LexaLite employees were on hand passing out over 500 pairs of sunglasses to fans in order to ready them for the new lights. The school showcased their new wares last month by hosting the local district tournament.

The idea was hatched by company president Jeff Roski and vice president of operations Dale Trottman after the pair attended a basketball game earlier in the season. The donation to the school is a continuation of the company's involvement in community projects, from new lighting along Bridge and Ferry streets to design work at the local pool.

"LexaLite is involved with the community," Weisgerber said. "We're a good corporate partner with the Charlevoix community."

Sure signs of spring

In the course of one week, the Easter Bunny came to town and Dairy Queen opened. We can safely say that spring is here.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Free breast exams offered

As part of a collaborative effort between Kelly's Hallmark of Petoskey and the Northern Michigan Hospital Foundation, free breast health examinations will be offered to raise breast health awareness and the need for routine exams. Women have two screening times and dates to choose from; 2-7 p.m. Thursday, April 22, or 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, April 23.

This screening is being offered in support of Hallmark Gold Crown Stores across the nation and their commitment to donate $1 million or more to the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation.

Purchase a card from Kelly's Hallmark in Petoskey, or Barb's Hallmark in Charlevoix between April 18 and May 2 and part of the purchase price will go toward the foundation as well. When purchasing a card, buyers will receive a free greeting card commemorating the importance of breast health exams.

The exams will be given in the Wellness Wagon, part of the Northern Michigan Hospital Foundation and the Community Health Education Center's effort to bring health to the community. The Wellness Wagon will be parked in the Glen's Plaza parking lot on U.S. 31 North, across from Kelly's Hallmark in Petoskey.

Schedule your appointment by calling HealthAccess at 800-248-6777.

St. Mary's registration now under way

Registration for prekindergarten, kindergarten and grades one through six at St. Mary's School in Charlevoix is under way.

St. Mary's School offers a prekindergarten program for children who are 4 years old by Sept. 1, 1999. Boys and girls who will be 5 years old by Dec. 1, 1999 are eligible for the kindergarten program.

Open house and registration for prekindergarten and kindergarten will be from 7-8 p.m. Monday, April 19. Parents need to bring their child's birth certificate and immunization records when they register and are welcome to bring their children.

Registration for grades one through six will take place from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday during the month of April. For more information, call the school office at 547-9441.

Extra session of parent workshop offered

Due to the number of people requesting the How To Talk class scheduled to begin in April, a second session has been added and will begin from 1-2:30 p.m. April 13 at the Women's Resource Center, 423 Porter St., in Petoskey.

Parents will learn proven skills, such as how to set limits while maintaining goodwill, how to cope with their child's negative feelings, how to express anger without hurting, how to engage their child's willing cooperation and how to help their child become caring and responsible. Parents will also learn how to solve conflicts peacefully and create a family atmosphere of love and respect.

The six-session workshop is sponsored by the Women's Resource Center and will be led by Joann Townsend, ACSW. The cost of the workshop is $60 per person, or $65 per couple, materials are included. The dates of the sessions are April 13, April 20, April 27, May 4, May 18 and May 25. Certificates of Completion will be awarded at the conclusion of the program. Advanced registration and payment is requested. Space is limited.

"Parents are on the firing line seven days a week. Yet few of them have had any training for this demanding job. No wonder even the most well-intentioned parents often find themselves feeling frustrated, bewildered, guilty or alone," said Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish, award-winning authors of the book and program. Hundreds of thousands of parents and professionals have benefited from the How To Talk So Kids Will Listen workshop. In studies in Wisconsin, Colorado and North Dakota, researchers found that attending parents developed skills that significantly and lastingly improved the quality of their family life. To register, please call 347-0067.

SCRAPBOOK

The old Barnard School building had a colorful history

In the process of going through the memorabilia that Dale's mother kept, we found a picture taken of her class at the Barnard School in the fall of 1928. She was the teacher of the one-room schoolhouse. Her maiden name was Iola Chew, and she taught for one year in Barnard in the fall of 1928 and spring of 1929. She also taught at Clark School on Warner Road for one year. At Barnard, she was paid the sum of $90 per month. She paid $20 per month for room and board at the Howard Grinnell farm across the street to the west of the school, now known as the residence of Bill and Mary Lou Vanloo.

The school building was located in the exact spot where the Barnard Grange is now, on the corner of Barnard and Klooster roads. The last year that the school house was used for schooling was 1942, as Barnard was one of the first districts to consolidate with the Charlevoix Public Schools.

Dale remembers going out to the school for daily vacation Bible school for a couple of summers, after the school itself was closed. It is obvious, by the style of the cement blocks, that they came from the Charlevoix Hotel between Hurlbut and Antrim streets. This business was owned by Did Hammond, the father of the late Doris Saunders. Hookers barn was also built from the same blocks, and a portion of the barn is incorporated into the Oleson's Food Store building. By strange coincidence, we also used some old blocks from the portion of the barn which was torn off in our present fireplace chimney. I know this well, for during that summer, I hauled those eight-inch blocks, which were twice as heavy as modern day blocks. The chimney is 35-feet tall and has two fireplaces in it.

The Barnard School building was sold to Mike Veenstra in the late 1940s and then demolished. The grange hall that occupies the former school site was moved from the property across the street, where Klooster Road intersects with Barnard Road. This area was always a place of activity, as the Barnard Methodist Church was and is still located across the road on the other corner. The grange hall sat so close to the road that when you stepped out the front door, a car passing by would take the hat off your head. This was because it was built there when only horse and buggies went by. For safety's sake, the grange was moved to its present site and an addition was put on it.

At the time of consolidation of the one-room country schools with the Charlevoix Public Schools, Dale recalled that Charlevoix had four, 1941 red, white and blue Chevrolet school busses with Wayne McFadden bodies. Clare Staley was the driver for the Norwood route; my dad, Glenroy Ikens, had the Barnard route; and Gordon Dennis and Averil Howard drove the other two busses. In the wintertime, all four busses had triple-side chains with a cross link staggered on the rear dual wheels. There was no such thing as the county getting the roads plowed in those days. Dale remembered some of the boys remarking about what wonderful bus drivers they had, and the huge snowdrifts they had to buck through to get to school in town. If a bus got stuck, a farmer would bring his team to pull it out. In later years, I drove the bus on the same route my dad had, and I can attest to the drifts out through those roads. We drivers often had to go out before the county plows did on some of our routes.

I trust the people in this photograph, and their families, will enjoy reminiscing over those days long ago. What wonderful memories we all have of small town life. It is such fun to recall those old times.

Committee named to study school building situation

By Jamie MacMillan

When Lou Hollow was asked about his part on the Charlevoix Schools Facility Steering Committee, he quipped that he and the 24 other members were walking into a "heat wave."

Hollow should know something about heat after a winter in Florida. The retired president of the Charlevoix State Bank probably accurately assessed the temperature of the local school issue which has divided the town, created failed bond attempts and forced major turnovers on the board of education over the last several years.

Monday night, the current school board officially announced who would serve on the citizen committee which will ultimately guide the board to a new bond proposal. Hollow, according to superintendent John Sturock, will be the chairman of the committee.

"I have no bias in this," Hollow said. "The task is something the public wants and it's time to get it decided and talk about how to expand our schools."

Hollow will need to draw on all his attributes to bring not only the town, but this committee, to a consensus.

The committee has been charged with developing plans to address the following options: Build, re-

Charlevoix student will enter Medical Scholars program

By Jamie MacMillan

It's rare for a teenager to have his life mapped out, but even as a young child Michael Czerkes always envisioned himself going into the medical field.

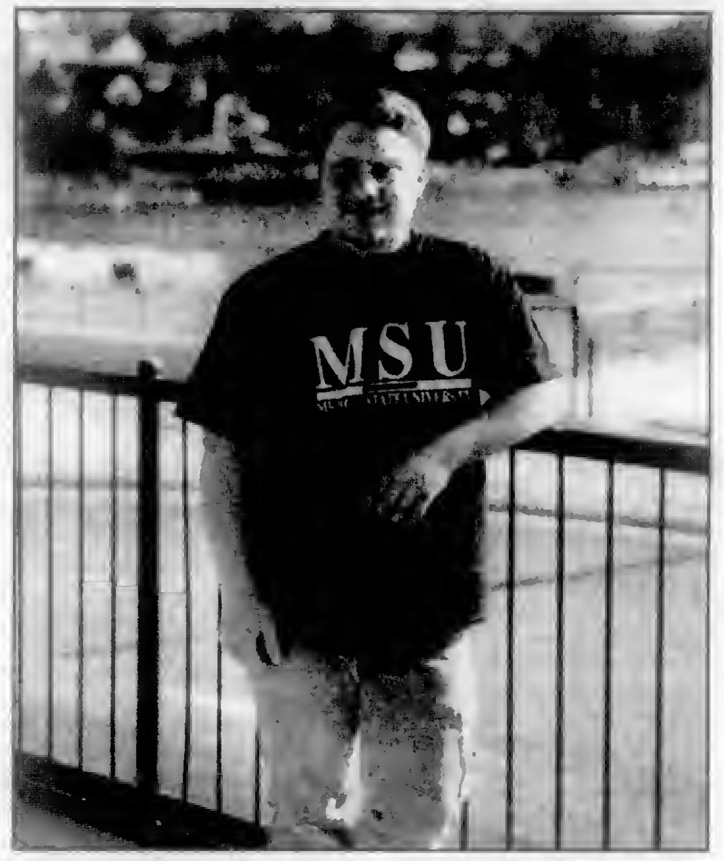
His desire can be traced to his family. His father, Steve, is a local pharmacist, his mother, Cathy, is a registered nurse and his sister Kristin will be entering the dental field when she finishes college.

As for himself, the Charlevoix High School senior is eying a career as a pediatrician.

"I've always wanted to be a physician, it's something I really want to achieve," Czerkes said. "My mom told me that when I was little I always said I wanted to be a kid doctor."

Czerkes will graduate from high school later this spring, and despite a stellar academic record, the 18-year-old was a little anxious earlier this month as he awaited word on his college acceptance.

He already had acceptance letters in his back pocket from both the University of Michigan and Michigan State University (MSU), but he remained on edge while waiting to see if he had made it into MSU's Medical Scholars Program.



Michael Czerkes can't help but smile when he thinks of his future as a doctor in training. Czerkes was accepted into Michigan State Univeristy's exclusive Medical Scholars Program.

This is no ordinary program — it enrolls only 10 incoming freshmen each year. Czerkes was one of 600 original applicants. The list was pared down to 200 semifinalists after the initial application stage, which included an essay.

After completing a secondary application that included five more essays explaining how he has dealt with certain issues in his personal life, what he has learned and what he expects to learn in college, Czerkes made the list of 46 finalists.

The finalists had to send in three professional letters of recommendations and sit through a pair of interviews with a medical school student and professor. After surviving the first cuts, Czerkes still had doubts he would be accepted into the program.

"I didn't think I had a chance, I was just applying and waiting to see what happened," he said. "I called them and they said I had made it. It was exciting, but I never spoke about it until I knew it officially."

Czerkes received his official notification in the mail the next week, but to some, there was never really a doubt that the Charlevoix student would be accepted into the exclusive program.

In his four years at Charlevoix High School, he has left a legacy which includes the National Honor Society, Student Council, and Key Club.

Czerkes has been a performing arts stand-out. As a sophomore, he earned the lead role of Eddie, a love-starved Catholic school boy, in "Do Patent Leather Shoes really Reflect Up," and this year he served as a student director and actor in the school's rendition of "Oklahoma!"

He has been a member of Charlevoix debate teams that have qualified for the state finals in 1997 and 1999 and has been a top-15 finisher in state forensics' competitions for three years running. Currently, he and five of his classmates are preparing for next month's state forensics' finals. The troupe is performing a version of "Jesus Christ Superstar" and Czerkes has the challenging role of Judas.

Headed into his final nine-week term at Charlevoix, the senior carries a 3.9 grade point average, but he does admit his history grades could improve.

It's hard, however, to concen-

Reunion in the sun

No matter how nice the weather is, Charlevoix folks still miss their local friends while in Florida. This year, they found a fix for that.

Play nicely together

State legislation that is currently being considered could put an end to the turf wars for athletes between charter schools and traditional public schools.

The governor supports it, but the high school athletic association strongly opposes the concept of sharing athletic programs.

A winning project

trate on history when your future is so bright — Czerkes could use a pair of industrial-sized sunglasses as he looks into his personal crystal ball.

"What a kid," high school principal Gary Grundman said. "The best way to describe him is that he has uncommon maturity, and he is able to relax and have fun with anybody."

Czerkes' admission into MSU's Medical Scholars Program in effect reserves him a spot in the school's graduate medical program as long as he maintains a 3.0 grade point average. The 10 students coming into this program won't have to take the Medical Board tests, nor do they have to concentrate all their undergraduate curriculum toward medical-related fields.

"They want you to be well-versed in the world," Czerkes said. "Their goal is to create physicians."

Czerkes desire to become a physician was heightened by job shadowing sessions with Dr. Roderic Tinney, a local pediatrician, and three years of study in Kay Beatty's Home Health Occupations classes, offered through the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

He's already cultivated a skill in dealing with children as counselor at Camp Daggett for the past three summers. This summer he will be a sailing instructor at the camp.

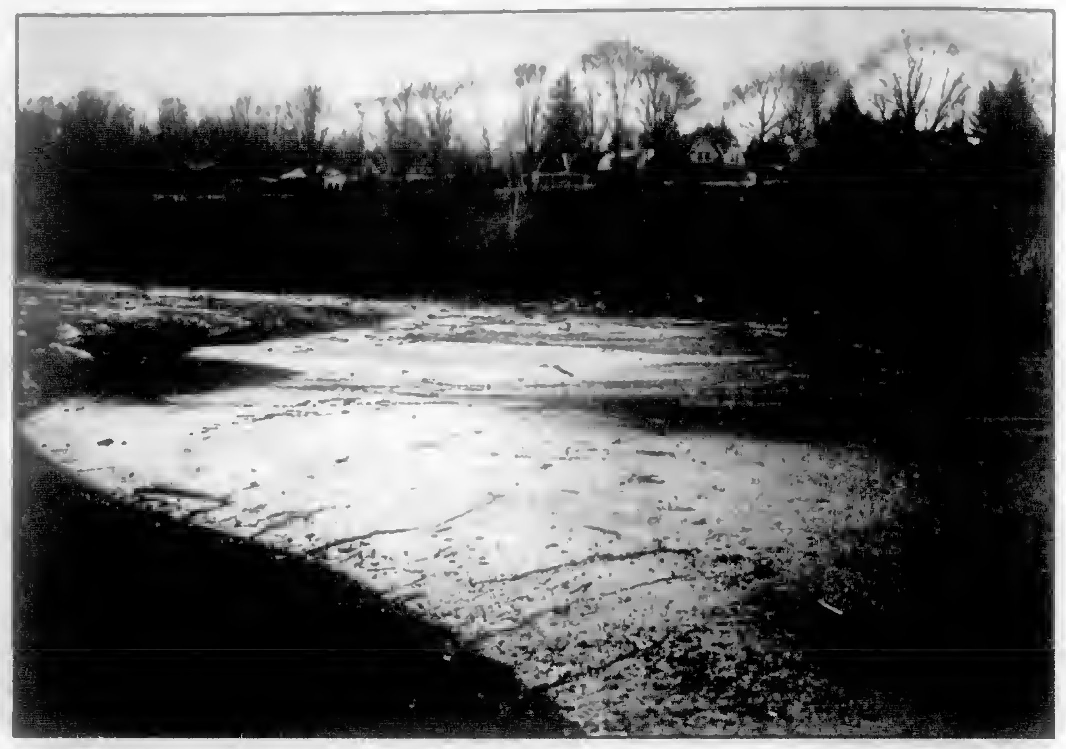
Czerkes is planning on majoring in human biology, minoring in physics and enrolling in Slavic language classes.

Czerkes credits his experiences at Charlevoix High School and the influences of Grundman, Kris Schaperkotter, his psychology/sociology teacher and Connie Ford, performing arts instructor, as major role models in his life.

"The school has given me enough experiences and chances to be involved with everything I wanted to do," he said. "I've really been able to learn a lot about myself and what I can handle."

While his future appears bright, he will enter college with the weighty burden of great expectations. Czerkes said he's a little overwhelmed about entering the Medical Scholars Program, but it proves that it doesn't matter where you come from, it's what you do that counts.

"If you have the motivation and drive to succeed, you can achieve any goal," he said. "It may sound like a cliche, but it's ringing true."



No shortage of beach space this year

For those who like to lie on beaches or walk along the lake shore, the much lower lake levels will be a real bonus this summer. But for those with boats and shore docks, it could get a little dicey. Lake levels are still about three feet lower than last summer, but could rise as much as a foot by the time summer is officially here in June. This stretch of beach on Lake Charlevoix was underwater up to the tree line last year.

Corrections

In a story that appeared in the March 31 issue of the Courier, there was an error due to incorrect information provided to us. The story, "Athlete resumes not guilty plea," should have stated the following: Last year, a female student-athlete was acquitted on minor-in-possession charges brought forth by a different officer than the officer involved in the McClellan case.

In a story about Charlevoix's art fairs that appeared in the April 7 issue of the Courier, there was an error regarding the date of this year's Waterfron Art Fair. The actual date of the art fair will be Aug. 14. We regret the errors.

Friends of the Jordan River Watershed host benefit dinner

The Friends of the Jordan River Watershed (FOJ), a grassroots nonprofit organization working to conserve the natural resources and protect the environmental quality of the Jordan River and its watershed, invites you to join them on Saturday, April 24, for their second annual benefit auction.

The event will again be at the Charlevoix Country Club, located on U.S. 31 just north of Charlevoix. The evening's events will include:

— A silent auction/social hour from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

— A live auction from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m.

— Delicious hors d'oeuvres including smoked salmon, carved beef tenderloin with chutney and bread, duck sausage in puff pastry with apricot horseradish sauce, carved Virginia baked ham, crudite' of vegetables, and a selection of sweets.

— Entertainment by the Gailliard String Quartet and folk musician Robin Berry Williams.

— Central Michigan University Public Radio's Ray Ford.

— A preview of plans to move and renovate the "Trading Post," (East Jordan's oldest building) for FOJ headquarters and community interpretive center.

— A short presentation on the group's efforts, which earned them the prestigious Michigan Outdoor Writers Association Clean Waters Award.

Auction items include an Old Town canoe, Adirondack furniture, a sailing trip on the tall ship Malabar, golf packages, artwork, outdoor recreational supplies, fish trips, natural history tours, and much, much more. Door prizes will be awarded.

The Jordan River watershed, 125 square miles in size, embodies some of Michigan's most outstanding natural features. The Jordan is Michigan's first designated wild and scenic river. A nearly contiguous 25,000-acre block of state land in the upper part of the watershed, known widely as the Jordan Valley, provides a scenic, wilderness setting. However, this watershed ecosystem is fragile and is threatened by unplanned development, incompatible activities, recreational overuse, exotic species invasion, and forest fragmentation.

If you have ever hiked, canoed, fished, or enjoyed in other ways the river and its valley and support FOJ's efforts to protect it, or if you are not familiar with this special area but would like to learn more about it, please plan to attend the Benefit Auction. Admission for the entire evening of events is $40 per person or $75 per couple. Seating is limited. For more information or to make reservations, please call the FOJ office at 533-5063. Also, check out the FOJ's web page at www.torchlake.com/foj.

OPINIONS

"Charlevoix South" is firmly established with advent of reunion

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

The Charlevoix Network is alive and well in Sarasota, Fla. Patti Begrow Fox called to tell me about the delightful sit down luncheon hosted by Susan and Bill Klingbeil at the Sarasota Yacht Club on March 23.

"The event started out to be a gathering of people from Charlevoix, who are wintering in Sarasota. Then it blossomed — just like our petunias!" according to Susan Van Wieren, who helped spread the word for the Klingbeils. "More and more people kept sending me names of people who were in the area and it ended up that we had guests from Jacksonville, Vero Beach, Punta Gorda. It was a beautiful, sunny day and we were surrounded by boats! It was wonderful!"

Not only was Charlevoix represented, but Petoskey, Ironton and Beaver Islanders helped celebrate the reunion. Bill Klingbeil said he had never seen so much hugging and kissing going on.

Gail Wiemer passed out name tags and said she enjoyed meeting new people. Altogether, the final count was fifty Michiganders, some of whom brought issues of the Charlevoix Courier to be passed around. Patti recalls visiting with the Trimpers, Wiemers, Hollows, Rangers, Grubaughs, Hoffmans, Ways, Betty Rosenhaus, Sandy Fassett, the three LaBlance sisters, and Bev Eby.

The luncheon consisted of a choice of Shrimp Salad, Beef Stroganoff or Pecan Chicken, but even the Key Lime Pie did not deter people from standing up during the meal and introducing themselves.

When everyone present was accounted for, the guest list of 52 included: Janet Chamberlain, Mary Margaret and Joe Dickinson, Shirley Diller, Beverly Eby, Sandy Fassett, Mary and Ed Fochtman, Pat and Frank Fox, Ingeborg and George Fritz, Joane and Jack Grubaugh, Margaret and Bob Heath, Shirley and Bob Hoffman, Jamie and Lou Hollow, Edie and Larry Irish, Bill Klingbeil, Fran and Bud Kohler, Sue LaBlance, Helen and Ken Merrill, Joan and Paul Nowak, Cathy (Begrow) Orchowski, Laura Proctor, Cynthia and Roger Postmus, Marjorie and Edward Radle, Patsy and Al Ranger, Marilyn and Joe Reed, Betty Rosenhaus, Peggy and Don Schmidt, Mary Lou Sick, Elaine and Tom Staudt, Marcia and Don Trimper, Patricia and Gus Uhlich, Susan and Gordon Van Wieren, Joan Walters, Joan and Dawson Way, Joni and Dick Webster, Gail and Hans Wiemer, Nancy and Dave Williams and Millie Withers.

Finally a group picture was taken, but not before the promise of another reunion next year, to be held again at the Sarasota Yacht Club. If you wish to be included, send your e-mail message to: CaptSusan@aol.com. She will be pleased to hear from you.

A sunny gathering of snowbirds

Northern Michiganders gathered for a reunion in Sarasota in March. We believe a part of the reunion's success was due to the fact that many of the guests found out about the gathering by reading the Courier while in Florida. As shown here, they even brought their Couriers to the reunion, to share with those unfortunate, out-of-touch souls who do not have a subscription and were therefore starving for hometown news. Letters to the editor

Volunteers at Rainbow Shoppe are a great crew

Editor:

Mr. Webster's definition of the word VOLUNTEER is one who offers himself or one who does, but doesn't have to. That certainly describes our 186 volunteers at the Rainbow Shoppe in Charlevoix. Some of these dedicated people have been offering their services since we opened our doors 15 years ago. They do not move as quickly as they used to, but they do come to work on their appointed day. Inclement weather doesn't hinder them from showing up either. These beautiful people represent various churches in Charlevoix as well as some that are as yet seeking a comfortable home of worship. Many are young married women, middle-aged, and of course our distinguished elders. They all make up a magnificent group of volunteers.

We have been very fortunate to have such loyal people serving the Rainbow Shoppe.

Each and every one of them, as well as our faithful employees, have made the Rainbow Shoppe successful and we certainly appreciate it.

April 18 starts volunteers week, so our hats are off to you fantastic people.

April is good month to make organ donation plans

Editor:

April is Donor Awareness Month, making it the perfect time to recognize the importance of organ and tissue donation. There's no greater gift than the gift of life and you can:

Pass it on by discussing organ and tissue donation with your family and friends. Each new donor brings the chance for renewed life to 2,200 Michigan patients waiting for an organ donation. It's important that your family know about your wishes. They will be responsible for making the final decision about organ donation.

Pass it on by signing the back of your driver license.

Pass it on by signing and mailing your organ and tissue donor registry enrollment card. The Secretary of State's office mails cards with all new driver's licenses and are available at any branch office.

Secretary of State

Some aspects of spring are sweeter — and stickier — than others

By Roger Knutson

When we moved to Charlevoix from Iowa three years ago we brought along one of our rites of spring. For many years, while our children were growing, we tapped two maple trees in front of our house each spring and made more than a gallon of syrup for our Saturday morning pancake breakfasts. Some years we even had enough output to make small quantities of maple sugar candy which our son Steve peddled to his classmates in elementary school. We didn't have the traditional sugar shack with a great steaming machine to evaporate the sap to syrup, but we learned to do it all on a small scale.

All you really need to manage your own, small-scale maple syrup production is some half-inch or so copper pipe, a few of those plastic gallon ice cream buckets, a 16-quart stock pot and, most important of all, a freezer with some space not filled by last year's frozen green beans.

If you drill the right size hole in the tree, the piece of copper pipe will fit tightly enough to support one of the ice cream buckets (you will need to file a notch in the copper pipe to hang it on). You could, of course, buy the ready-made spiles and buckets, but most places that sell such things are not interested in the person who wants only two or three of them. When you get a gallon of sap, put it in your freezer for about eight hours. Punch holes in the layer of ice on top of the sap and drain out the fluid. Through the magic of crystallization, most of the sugar in the sap stays in the liquid. You can throw away the ice and keep the concentrated liquid.

Ear to the ground

If you repeat this concentration press several times, you will have liquid with a high sugar content that can be boiled down to syrup in just a couple of hours without steaming up your whole house for days at a time. It may take 40 gallons of fresh sap to produce one gallon of finished syrup, but by concentrating it in your freezer you may have to boil away less than five gallons of liquid to get your gallon of syrup.

A word of caution: don't forget the boiling sap on your stove. Watch it with care as it gets close to being thickened.

From sad and personal experience I can tell you that the thickened sap will boil out onto your stove and finally set off every smoke alarm on your block besides leaving a smell like no other in your house.

If you look at every maple tree as the potential source of a gallon of maple syrup rather than just a producer of leaves to be raked or those sticky spots on your driveway this time of year, your whole attitude toward nature might just change. Give it a try!

Flying back soon?

Suitcase packed too tightly to fit another thing? Don't worry — you don't have to make room for the Charlevoix Courier. We'll send it to you, wherever you go. Call Teri at 547-6558 to sign up for the Charlevoix Courier out-of-town mail service.

Voice teacher returns to join McCune Arts Center staff

Jim Owen grew up in northern Michigan, where he graduated from Petoskey High School and was very active in the music and arts community. He has now returned home to give voice lessons at the McCune Arts Center this spring.

Owen will also offer guitar instruction at the arts center.

As a voice instructor, Owen emphasizes the development of a strong musical foundation and a proper and versatile vocal technique. He also encourages individual expression — and fun — through the exploration of diverse musical styles, improvisation and songwriting.

In 1994, Owen received a bachelor of music degree from the University of Miami, Fla., specializing in studio music and jazz. Although his principal area of study was in jazz voice, he also delved extensively into classical repertoire and vocal technique, studied piano, music history, music theory and composition. During and after his studies in Miami, he performed frequently as a singer-songwriter, featured soloist jazz vocal ensemble member in venues throughout the United States.

Call the McCune Arts Center to arrange voice or guitar lessons with Owen. The arts center instructors also offer private lessons in violin, piano, drums, hand drums, percussion and band instruments. Call 347-4337 for more information.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Stephen Guthrie
Charlevoix Church of God

Not long ago I called on a hospital patient who had been through a rough time, and had just moved into a regular room after an extended stay in intensive care. Never in good health, a fall had resulted in some broken bones that were not healing well, and that situation had aggravated old problems with his kidneys, circulation, and blood sugar. This man was a life-long Christian who was active in a congregation, and after chatting for a while about all he'd been through, I asked if a time of prayer would offer any comfort. He looked at me with alarm.

"Have things gotten so bad," he asked, "that we have to pray?"

This Christian's simple response brought it home to me how many of us regard prayer and the role it plays in our walk with God. Often, when we face a difficult situation or ponder a major life decision we tend to first do everything we can for ourselves, using our own strength and drawing on our own resources. If it's a health problem, we tend to first take advantage of everything medical science has to offer. If we regain our health or overcome the obstacle, we too often congratulate ourselves on being strong and self-sufficient or credit our good luck. But if things don't go our way, then, and only then, do we consider that the situation has gotten bad enough to pray about it.

Ours is not a God of last resort. Our God wishes to be in relationship with us through Jesus. In our person-to-person relationships we know that in order to become close we must communicate with each other, and prayer is the means God has provided to communicate with Him. We know, too, that relationships don't grow when there are long periods of time between phone calls or letters, or when one person only calls another out of a desperate need. We can hardly expect to grow close to God if we only talk to Him — or provide the opportunity for Him to talk to us — when we're up against the wall in trouble.

Close relationships are nurtured by time spent together. In those times, we demonstrate our love for each other by walking side by side through the tough times, and rejoicing together when things are good. The closest and most satisfying relationships are characterized by compassion and sympathy, by trust which grows out of demonstrated integrity over time, and by a genuine sense of caring for one anther's welfare.

God wants to be in that kind of relationship with each of us. It all begins with prayer, with routinely taking time out of our hectic schedules, by tuning out the noise and distractions of this world and visiting with our Father in His world.

Car club donates to hospital scanner fund

The Street Legends Classic Car Club of Charlevoix recently donated $500 to Charlevoix Area Hospital's C-T Scanner fund. The donation comes from proceeds raised at the annual Street Legends Car Show in August of 1998.

C-T (computerized axial tomography) scanner are imaging devices that are necessary for diagnosing head injuries and other physical ailments. The computer takes pictures in slices and then reconstructs the images so the physician can view the 3-D X-ray from any direction. When the physician looks at the results of a C-T scan, it's similar to being able to look at a loaf of bread — slice by slice.

Charlevoix Area Hospital's C-T Scanner arrived in April of 1998.

Street Legends Classic Car Club members present a check for $500 to Gary Vergon, director of radiology at Charlevoix Area Hospital (third from left) for the hospital's CT Scanner fund. Host families needed for foreign exchange students

As spring approaches, Pacific Intercultural Exchange (PIE) is looking for families to host international students for the 1999-2000 year of high school. Local representatives would like to have the students placed with American host families as soon as possible.

P.I.E. is a nonprofit, educational organization. The international students are 15-18 years of age. They bring their own spending money and have a full medical insurance. The students are eager to share their culture with an American family. The host family is responsible for love, guidance, room and board.

P.I.E. representatives match students with host families by finding common interests and lifestyles through an informal in-home meeting. Prospective host families are able to review student applications and select the perfect match. There are no typical host families. P.I.E. places students in many types of families including single-parents, childless couples, retired couples, and large families.

P.I.E. currently has students from countries such as Germany, Russia, Brazil, Belgium, Mexico, Spain and many others. P.I.E. also sends American students to other countries.

Pacific Intercultural Exchange is always looking for volunteers who would enjoy working with these international students as representatives. Representatives must be friendly, outgoing and interested in working with teens.

For more information about hosting a student or becoming an area representative please call the regional coordinator, Nancy Bennett at (877) 246-2285. You may also contact P.I.E.'s international headquarters at toll free (888) 743-8721.

House bill may force cooperation among public schools

By Jamie MacMillan

As Charlevoix Public Schools and Northwest Academy continue to grow farther apart regarding possible extracurricular cooperatives, pending state legislation could force the schools and others around them into one big group effort.

House Bill 4204 would require public schools, like Charlevoix, to allow athletic participation by students of charter schools, home schools and other non-public schools in the public school district in which they reside.

The bill is in the early stages of the legislative process, but a big showdown is looming between the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) and Governor John Engler's office regarding the law's passage.

The MHSAA is steadfastly opposed to the bill and went to great efforts during the recent boys' basketball Final Four, firing shots at the bills' logistics.

During most of the timeouts, recorded announcements addressed fans, many of whom knew little about the pending law, with negative ramifications. Commercial breaks during the four championship games, broadcast live on Fox Sports Detroit, were littered with MHSAA ads against the law, touting that spots on high school teams should be reserved the old-fashioned way, to those who earned it. MHSAA Executive Director Jack Roberts appeared in a live interview outlining his group's opposition. Thirteen-page packets delving further into the subject were readily available to members of the press. On the day before the Charlevoix Rayders played its semifinal game at the Breslin Center, the Charlevoix Courier received copies of those packets via both fax and mail.

"We don't want this to slip through the process while our schools are in recess," Roberts said. "We felt that tournament time was an opportunity we had to seize to begin getting our message out."

Roberts said that the most basic premise of high school athletics is that athletes must be students of the schools they represent in competition. The law, he said, will offer no net gain regarding student athletic participation, since unenrolled students will be displacing enrolled students for the limited amount of spots on the teams.

Many teams go through tryouts prior to naming the official squad. Roberts said coaches might be intimidated to name an enrolled student to the team over an unenrolled student.

"How daunting is that for a coach to cut a kid who has a state law in his hand," Roberts said. "We'll have an uneven playing field."

Other concerns are that the proposed bill would create accountability problems with students on the same team, but with different academic eligibility standards. It will be a disincentive for schools to create their own athletic programs and it will rewrite the athletic transfer code with recruiting abuses increasing in larger cities.

Susan Schafer, spokesperson from Engler's office, dismisses the MHSAA's concerns as "protecting the status-quo." Their premise is that it's not fair to have people pay taxes, but then prohibit their children from taking advantage of everything the taxes pay for because they don't attend the primary public school in the area.

"This is about kids and allowing them to take part in extracurricular activities in their own neighborhood," Schafer said.

Roberts, however, said that avenues already exist through school cooperatives to allow unenrolled students the chance to participate.

The bill is in the early stages of the process and has yet to be approved by the House Education Committee where it was generated. Committee chairman Jason Allen (R-Traverse City) said his committee won't address the issue until "very late spring."

Allen said they have 33 pending bills to mull over when Congress reconvenes later this month. "Where do you draw the line between rights and responsibility?" Allen said. "You have the right to attend public school, but is it your right to do the extracurricular activities?"

Allen expects a very deliberate discussion regarding this topic, and added that he was "distraught" over the athletic association's campaign against the bill.

Locally, Northwest Academy board member Jerry Chase said that bill would be a "positive action."

"Clearly, community resources have gone into the establishment of athletics for a number of years," he said. "Every kid should be able to take advantage of those resources."

The local charter school is trying to start their own athletic programs and are one of 15 charter schools in the state to be members of the MHSAA. Chase doubted that the new law would curb their incentive to create their own programs.

Children's Health Fair hosted in Petoskey by hospital

You'll have to watch out for the flying purple people eaters if you're in the Petoskey Middle School on April 17. They come alive in the imaginations of hundreds of children as they sing along with Sean Ryan at the Children's Health Fair.

This year the Children's Health Fair will be from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, April 17 at the Petoskey Middle School. The middle school is located at 801 Northmen Dr. next to the high school, off Mitchell St. in Petoskey.

More than 40 community agencies will be participating in the event which attracts parents and children from all over Northern Michigan.

Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey is sponsoring the free event in recognition of April being the "Month of the Young Child." The event focuses on newborns to 12-year-olds.

Many of the booths feature hands-on learning activities and educational material. There will be face-painting, as well as a booth where parents can have buttons made with photos of their children. (Be sure to bring a photo with you.) There will also be many prizes raffled off at the event. In addition to all the fun items for children, the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is offering free immunizations. Parents must bring their child's immunization records with them to the fair in order to be eligible.

"The nice thing about this event is that there is something for everyone, both children and parents," said Toni Moriarty-Smith, R.N., Clinical Nurse Manger of the Women and Children Services at Northern Michigan Hospital.

The following is a schedule of the entertainment at this year's fair:

The Auditorium:

— 10-10:45 a.m.: Crazy Richard

Charlevoix County sheriff is more than a man in a uniform

(This essay was submitted to the Charlevoix Courier by Charlevoix High School student Brenda Merrell, who wrote an essay on the sheriff as an English class assignment)

To Protect and To Serve
By Brenda Merrell

George Lasater is the Sheriff of Charlevoix County. He is a man who cares about his community and tries to make a positive difference. He offers fairness to all of the people.

"My heart is in the right place, said Lasater. "I always try to do the right thing and hope that at the end of the day that I have not caused any harm to anybody."

"I look forward to going to work everyday," He continued. Every morning before he goes to work, the sheriff wonders what challenges he will be faced with during the day. Lasater works 10 hours a day or more and averages about 80 hours per week. He is on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Throughout the day, he will meet people from both ends of the spectrum, from hardened criminals to children. His definition of a "hardened criminal" is "someone who thinks of their crime as a profession; a "hired criminal."

Lasater said the advantage of being in police work is that he can "make a difference in the community."

"It is rewarding and satisfying," he added. He has an opportunity to exert influence on a person, by helping them to realize where their life is headed, if they aren't willing to take responsibility for their actions. He likes the variety and the challenges of his job. After being sheriff, he said that he has a different point of view than he had before. He has found that things are not always what they seem. Investigations often lead to the discovery that the circumstances behind a specific situation are very different than what was originally presented to an officer. Lasater feels law enforcement is important because without the law, our society will descend into chaos.

Being a sheriff is a job with an almost unmanageable amount of stress.

"My job has more responsibility than other cops," Lasater said. "I have had to tell families that a family member is dead. I have had to do that 85 times and each time I get a different reaction. I try to be sensitive. When a family member dies, I give a copy of the police files to the family." In the past, Lasater was struck by a distraught family member when he gave them an account of how their relative had died.

Thankfully, in the 22 years that Sheriff Lasater has worked in the police/sheriff's department, he has never had to use his gun, although he had to pull it out at times when situations seemed to be moving out of control.

"There is no typical day" Lasater said. "My best experience happened when the father of a little girl was going to kidnap his daughter. I talked this man into trading me for the girl. I eventually got away and saved the girl. Then, about 10 years later, a teenaged girl approached me and asked me if I knew who she was.

"No" replied Lasater.

"Well," she said, "I'm that little girl that you saved when my dad tried to kidnap me. My dad would have killed me. You saved my life."

One of the worst experiences that Lasater has been through as a law enforcement officer was when a plane crashed and five people were killed. Three of the victims were adults and two were children. Another was an automobile accident where four people were killed. Three of the victims were high schools students and one was a college student.

The sheriff's duties include being at the scene of every death and to maintain the jail. The sheriff is ultimately responsible for each of his officers. Every alleged crime or complaint requires a report. All officers have a tape recorder and tape every statement, in case people change their story later. For every one hour of being out on an investigation, there are about two hours of paperwork to do.

The field of law enforcement is a very competitive field these days. To get into the Police Academy you have to have a high school diploma, but that is not enough these days. There are always many more applicants than there are positions. Someone considering a career in the field has to make themselves an attractive candidate, since competition is so fierce.

"If I were to retire tomorrow, there would be about 150 applicants for my job," Lasater said.

One of the most useful things that a prospective rookie can bring with them is the ability to speak Spanish. A degree from a four-year college will most likely be a fundamental requirement before too many more years. Sheriff Lasater's advice to someone thinking about entering the field is simple: "Go slow. Think things through. Prove yourself. Treat people the same. Treat people how you want to be treated and respect everyone the same."

School facility committee must look beyond personal agendas

build, rehabilitate, or expand the current schools at their existing sites; build a new school in town; or build a new school out of town.

It is assumed that any new school will either be a high school or a middle school.

All options should include pros and cons, costs and how the respective options address long-range facility issues while solving immediate needs.

The committee will present their plans at a community forum and the board will then send out post card surveys to district residents to gauge support for each option. The board will make the final decision on which proposal to place on the ballot.

While there is no set timetable for this, the board of education would ideally like to have a September election.

Hollow noted that two factors need to be overcome during the process: People need to understand that taxes will be raised and the process, as a whole, needs to be depoliticized.

"We need to get away from the thought that it will be to someone's advantage or disadvantage when deciding a site," he said.

Joining Hollow on the steering committee will be Chris Wilhelm, Bill Trubilowicz, Dick Joseph, Robin Morgridge, Dennis Wojan, Chuck Center, Dale Boss, Rich Kelly, Yvonne Wendt, Suzie Williams, Cherri Hoffman, Bud Klooster, Vane Smith, Lowell Anderson, John Winn, Jay Balasz, Roger Gowell, Mark Drenth, Marcia Murdick and Linda Porath.

All three building principals, Dick Swenor, Dennis VanGuilder and Gary Grundman, along with Sturock, will also be committee members.

The board may add a high school student to the committee.

The committee will meet for the first time at 7 p.m. Monday, April 26 in the high school study hall.

While an interesting election may take place next September, the June school election will be lacking competition. Monday's deadline for filing a petition to be a candidate for the one available board of education seat came and went and only one person threw a hat into the ring.

Allen Telgenhof, local attorney and current board president, will be the only candidate on the ballot in the June 14 election.

Carriage House property is ready for the new carriage trade

By Laurie Lounsbury

What started as Carol Amick's simple desire to build a home for herself turned into another chapter in the Carriage House saga that has been scripted over the last decade.

The saga is not lacking for either controversy or complexity. This chapter, however, may finally bring the tale to a close with a happy ending.

About one year ago, Amick bought the Carriage House property on the north side of town.

"I just thought it would be a great place for me to put a home where I could walk to town," Amick said. "Then I realized there were six extra lots, so I decided to build homes."

Building homes on that particular piece of property in Charlevoix was going to be no easy task, Amick soon learned.

Historically, the property has always been a source of contention among neighborhood residents.

Previous owners John Hisey and Rik Lobenherz had a plan to turn the Carriage House into a 16-unit apartment building. That plan was crushed by vigorous opposition from the neighbors.

Any attempts to change the existing lot sizes, which were 50 feet wide by 125 feet in depth, also met with neighborhood resistance.

Hisey and Lobenherz then gave up on any plans to develop the property.

Amick subsequently bought the property and tore down the dilapidated Carriage House, to the delight of the neighbors.

That was about where the neighbors' delight ended. When Amick approached the city Zoning Board of Appeals to get the lot sizes increased from 50 feet in width to 66 feet in width, creating three lots from the existing four lots facing Cherry Street, the neighbors rallied to protest the change.

Since the rest of the homes in the neighborhood are built on 100-foot lots, neighbors wanted Amick to reduce her lots from eight to four, all 100 feet in width.

For Amick, the double lots made no financial sense.

"I would have had to put $400,000 to $500,000 homes on double lots," she said. "The neighborhood just wouldn't support it."

Instead of getting mad or giving

Developer Carol Amick stands in front of the first of six homes she plans to build on the former Carriage House property on Charlevoix's north side. Amick, who is a real estate agent for Vacation Properties Network, first became interested in the property when looking for a place to build her own home. She plans to build a home for herself on a double lot, then build homes for sale on the six remaining lots.

At last, a development plan the neighborhood can live with

up, Amick got creative.

She went to architect Jack Begrow, who designed a two-story home that would fit on the narrow, 50-foot lots. The home boasts two bedrooms and a large loft, two bathrooms and a fireplace. A front bay window and lots of side windows, along with the vaulted ceiling, create a feeling of airiness and space in the slender dwelling.

Designing, then building the homes was like trying to squeeze pieces of a jigsaw puzzle on a card table smaller than the finished puzzle size.

With builder Larry Shaun of Lazer Construction, the two managed to accommodate the needs of potential home buyers and keep neighbors happy in the process.

"The whole idea was not to do anything that didn't conform to the lot," Shaun said. "The garage is detached, so we can meet the setback requirements and also meet the interior square footage requirements."

According to city zoning, a two-story home must have at least 1,600 square feet. Amick's home design provides 1,700 square feet, plus a full basement. The home also cannot cover more than 30 percent of the lot.

With one home nearing completion, Amick plans to build homes on the remaining lots as soon as possible. Each home will share the same floor plan, but have its own unique facade and window design. The first home will have a stone facade on the front, facing Cherry Street. Amick has priced the first home at $209,000.

"It's affordable and spacious, especially for people who want a summer home, but it could be a home for young professionals or retired couples," Amick said.

Shaun took on the job of building Amick's development project even though he knew the history of the property.

"The way things had developed, it seemed like there was going to be a lot of conflict and animosity, but it turned out to be quite different," Shaun said.

"The neighbors have been so nice and complimentary, it's been great. I haven't heard a bad word from anybody."

This side view of the home designed by Jack Begrow shows the many windows and depth of the house. The home is for sale, and five more homes of similar design will soon be built on the former Carriage House property.

Youth gardening program offered through 4-H

Young people can have fun while learning about plants, soils and gardening with their own vegetable garden this summer.

The Charlevoix County 4-H Program is offering a gardening program to all Charlevoix County students. Gardening kits that include seeds and planting information will be distributed at no charge the first week of May through student classrooms.

Students plant their gardens in an area that is approximately 12 square feet. They take care of their vegetables with the help of their families. Each participant will receive a booklet that explains some of the details of when to plant as well as tips for developing a successful garden.

"Young people are amazed at how easy it is to grow and maintain a garden of their own," said John Wurm, Charlevoix County 4-H Youth Agent.

One opportunity that participants may consider is showing their vegetables at the Emmet/Charlevoix County Fair. Information on the fair will be furnished in the summer to all gardening students.

These gardening kits are provided to students at no charge through a grant from the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau, the Charlevoix County Soil Conservation District and the Charlevoix County 4-H Council. To register for the 4-H Gardening Program, contact the MSU Extension-Charlevoix County office at 582-6232.

Workshop offered in Charlevoix to teach parents how to raise confident daughters

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan, Inc. (WRC) is sponsoring a workshop for parents of daughters age 9 to 12. "Raising Confident Daughters" will address ways parents can help maintain and build the relationship between themselves and their children through the phases of adolescence.

The workshop will be from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, April 24 at the Charlevoix Public Library located at 109 Clinton St. in Charlevoix. The focus will include the nature of adolescence, instilling values in your teen, opening lines of communication, teen sexuality (being an approachable parent), and maintaining and building your teen's self-esteem.

Facilitators for the workshop will be Rachel Yudin from the center and Lori O'Neill from Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood. Yudin is the Coordinator for MERIT, a program working to develop the life skills of teen girls. O'Neill is the Education Coordinator at Planned Parenthood of Petoskey. She brings the programs "Too Smart for Strangers," "From All Walks of Life," "How to Say NO," and the TROUP teen theater into many area schools.

As space is limited, preregistration is required. If you would like more information or would like to register for the workshop, please call the Women's Resource Center at 347-0067. The workshop fee is $10 for one or both parents. Stepparents are welcome.

HOW TO KILL A BUSINESS
... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Smelt are running in Loeb Creek and perch are biting in Round Lake! Catches the early part of this week have been good, no smelt in Stover, Barber or Wood creeks yet, though.

Hound dogs running deer in Marion township are scheduled for abbreviated careers if the temper of a group of farmers in that section is any indication. Due to recent depredations, several have promised to shoot on sight the next dog found running deer. Only just recently four hounds badly mangled a deer near Lake 26. The animal's life was saved by some timely shooting at the hounds. Owners of hounds allowed to run at large are warned to keep them out of that section if they value the animals.

The trend is definitely towards tidying up for summer throughout the city and business places are not lacking in this respect, either. In case you have not noticed, there's a fine, new soda fountain and waist-high counter at Curtis Pharmacy; a new, modern attractive store front at Campbell Boot Shop; Mart Block's AG store is making some wonderful improvements; Dr. G. B. Saltonstall's new clinic on Clinton Street is undergoing the finishing touches which go just a little ways further towards making it the finest in northern Michigan; the Careys are making a double apartment out of the store building on South Bridge Street formerly occupied by the Curtis Market; Carl Bogart is building two apartments as an addition to his place at the corner of Bridge and Lincoln; that new Rexall electric sign on the Central Drug Store; interior alterations at Fessenden's; dressing up of the display windows at Bergeon's. Great going!

I believe we have all learned to look for the original and unique from Earl Young and I'd venture to guess the series of advertisements he has started, the first of which appears this week, will be no exception.

AS OTHERS SEE IT —

"Charlevoix people should be loudly and freely complimented for the stand they took in deciding to abandon their spring perch catching carnival that has taken place when perch come out of the Great Lakes and become so plentiful in Round Lake, a considerable body of water almost in the heart of the city, and are taken on hook and line by the thousands, as people come from all over Michigan and some from outside our state, to enjoy the perch fishing. The carnival was abandoned because Charlevoix people, realizing the perch are about ready to do their spawning at that time, might better be allowed to spawn and thereby propagate and multiply the perch family than lessen the supply by destroying them at reproducing time."
— Cheboygan Observer.

A year ago Monday, April 16, 1939, the first boat made its entrance into Round Lake harbor from Lake Michigan. Quite a contrast in view of the fact boats have been operating for several weeks this spring.

While they will never give Charlevoix the fame the Dionne quintuplets did Callendar, Canada, triplet lambs born to a ewe sheep owned by "Cappy" Hooker are almost as rare a product of nature. One out of five ewes will give birth to twin lambs, it is understood, but triplets are an unusual occurrence. Inasmuch as nature didn't make nursing provisions for three lambs, the smallest of the triplets is being bottle fed.

Acknowledge herewith expression of appreciation from Mrs. Howard Bennett for publicity given Flint-Charlevoix Club party in this publication. Mrs. Bennett also said: "Personally I want to thank you and your paper, too. We look forward to its arrival every week. I took several recent copies with me to the party and many availed themselves of the opportunity of reading the 'old home town news.'" Such expressions of appreciation make your efforts worth while.

The Boyne Citizen chided this writer a little for commenting about the Petoskey Transportation Co. Str. J. B. John being ice-locked at Boyne City. So long as they don't try to burden me with some of their Smeltania and smelt dipping racket, I'll struggle along under the load.

Yeh, there was some ice in Lake Charlevoix, alright. The J.B. John took 14 hours to come down from Boyne City, Monday, passing here around 2 o'clock on her way into Lake Michigan. The ship pulled away from Boyne at midnight Monday, it is understood, and bucked heavy ice all the way out.

Round lake harbor has had an unusually large quota of migrating ducks this spring. Large flocks of Seaubs, Teal and Mergansers have been taking advantage of the open water for several weeks to rest on the northward flight. They have provided an interesting study for lovers of bird life.

Unless the weather takes a radical change before April 27th, many trout fishermen will need snowshoes to reach their favorite waters. Attempted to drive into White's Headquarters on the Jordan river last Sunday and found the road blocked with three foot of snow. In fact, snow has barely started to recede on the north side of hills where the sun cannot get at it. Such conditions mean high, roily water, provided you can get to the streams at all.

Jordan River Arts Council presents "Annual Art Break"

The Annual Art Break Exhibit will open April 18 at the Jordan River Art Center, 302 Main St., East Jordan, and continue through May 3. On display will be works of art by students and also original works of art created by area artists whose works will be used in the Art Break Program.

This is the third year for the Art Break Program, in which presenters take fine art prints into the schools, grade K-6, to discuss the prints. The prints remain in the classrooms and are accompanied by correlated curriculum activities.

It was discovered that students could understand and appreciate the fine art print if accompanied by a real work of art. An access grant from the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs was received to purchase art works from artists in Antrim and Charlevoix counties that would accompany the fine art prints.

The invited artists were not only contracted to produce a work of art in their media, but also provide a biography, picture of themselves, a description of the art process and any other comments.

With the money received from the grant, matched by donations and in kind services, the Jordan River Arts Council was able to obtain works by 20 area artists.

They are: Glen Bell, wood carving; Marilyn Brown, quilt-making; Pat Tinney, watercolor; John Stevens, wire sculpture and mobile; Jane Dill, bronze sculpture; Lori Bolt, mixed media, abstract; Russell Bolt, watercolor; Susan Bolt, ceramic sculpture; Glen McCune, oil painting; Chad Pastotnik, intaglio print and plate; Jim Galbraith, photography; Denille Spohn Moes, embellished lithograph; Betty Osborne, still life oil painting; Deb Shaw, drawing; Ray Villivane, ink drawing, realistic; Pat Poineau, collage, two dimensional; Pet Midener, assemblage; David Conklin, acrylic waterscape; Carol Ross, stone carving; and Martha Landis, oil portrait.

In addition to art break originals, on exhibition will be over 300 art works by students from Bellaire, Boyne Falls, Alba, St. Mary's in Charlevoix, East Jordan and Charlevoix Middle School.

The gallery is open 1-4 p.m. daily through the exhibit. Other times and tours can be arranged by calling Maggie Mathews at 536-7987. Hands-on experiences will be available for groups of children.

Earth Day is April 22: What are the issues?

Cedar Ridge is closing to public

Landfill will only accept waste from EJ Iron Works

By Jamie MacMillan

In a little more than a year, Waste Management has gone from politely dealing with Charlevoix County to playing hardball regarding the expansion of its Cedar Ridge landfill in Charlevoix's Eveline Township.

After being denied an expansion by the county government, the company withdrew their expansion appeal to the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) last month. Now Waste Management will turn away all trash, even from their own haulers, unless it comes from the East Jordan Iron Works.

The closing of the landfill, effective May 1, may mean county residents will pay higher waste disposal costs without a local landfill. Company officials, however, downplayed that aspect of what they labeled a simple "business decision."

"We have a contract to take their (East Jordan Iron Works) volume," vice president of Michigan operations Terry Cooney said. "With as little air space as we have, we need to do this to preserve those contracts."

Cooney said that with normal business, the landfill would reach its capacity during the "latter portions of this year." By limiting its intake only to the local iron works, Cooney said the facility should have enough room to honor the remaining tenure of their contract with the East Jordan company, which expires Dec. 31, 2002. The contract, however, doesn't require that the Iron Works' trash be brought to the Cedar Ridge facility. About one-third of the waste imported to Cedar Ridge on an annual basis comes from the East Jordan Iron Works.

The company wants to re-address the expansion issue with county officials within the next 60-90 days, Cooney said.

Snowmobile club told to restore wetland

By Laurie Lounsbury

Dana Dvoracek isn't opposed to snowmobiling. In fact, he and his wife, Kathleen, ride sleds on the Charlevoix snowmobile trail nearly every weekend in the winter.

What he is opposed to is environmental degradation of the land next to his property, an 80-acre parcel that's been in his family for as long as Dvoracek can remember. And he's opposed to a snowmobile club usurping the rights of the public.

At odds with Dvoracek is the Charlevoix Chamber Snowmobile Club, which tried to create a snowmobile trail along the closed portion of Ferry Road, between Pops and Loeb roads. The section of Ferry Road in question has been closed by the Charlevoix County Road Commission for a couple of decades, due to the steep grade and flood plain at the base of the road that is routinely filled with water.

The problem arose Dec. 5, 1998, when the snowmobile club started to fill in the closed section of Ferry Road to create a snowmobile trail.

"It wasn't a mud puddle they were filling, it was an actual stream that runs through there," Dvoracek said. "There is water there all year long. It's the water-

Rosalind Stump dies after touching many lives

By Laurie Lounsbury

Rosalind Stump

She will be missed by the many students she came to know and love during her years as a school bus driver.

She will be missed by the Romanian children, to whom she lovingly devoted the last of her strength and energy so that they could have a life outside of the sewers they once called home.

She will be missed by fellow church members and friends who helped her and whom she helped.

In short, Rosalind Stump will be missed by everyone who knew her.

After battling cancer for more than six years, Rosalind Stump died April 14, 1999 at her home.

Ros didn't face the end of her life with fear — she faced it with faith.

"When we visited her three weeks ago, she said she was really looking forward to seeing Jesus' face," said Randy Maurer, her most recent employer at Integrity Auto Repair. "Her faith was her strongest point. She told me, 'I'm really looking forward to seeing the Lord.'"

Anyone who knew Ros would agree that her life revolved around her faith and serving others, especially children.

She made four trips to Romania, where she worked with the Little Church in Romania, a group that takes care of homeless children in the formerly Communist country. Her last trip, made this past December, was especially meaningful to her — it was her last chance to help the children, and her only chance to say goodbye.

"I needed to go and say goodbye in case I can't ever go back," Ros said before leaving on her trip.

Since that trip, Ros continued to devote herself to her church

City will buy Wharfside

Following a plan that was apparently established as early as 1896, city council voted to acquire the Wharfside building so the city can turn it into more park property.

The purchase price was set at $800,000, which was the appraised value determined by Lloyd Kirby.

Another delay in trial

Matt McClellan's attorneys sidestepped another trial date, scheduled for April 15, by suing the district judge for not allowing Matt to have a jury trial.

The entire case is now being reviewed by circuit court judge Richard Pajtas. Until Pajtas reaches a decision, the trial has been postponed.

shed for Loeb Creek."

When the snowmobile club began their project of filling in the wetland, they had permission from the Charlevoix County Road Commission to fill in the road.

What they didn't have was permission from the Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ), environmental impact studies or an official road engineering study.

Dvoracek contacted the Department of Environmental Quality and the Charlevoix County Road Commission to voice his concerns.

"I was worried that it would flood out our property," Dvoracek said. "There is also debate about whether or not it's still a public road. The snowmobile club was going to put locked gates across the road right-of-way. The public still has a right to be there, if someone wanted to go on a nature walk."

Dvoracek quickly won the support of both the DEQ and the local road commission. The DEQ determined that the area was a 100-year flood plain, and issued a stop work order to the snowmobile club.

Pat Harmon, manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, wasted no time with his effort to correct the situation.

"I did give the snowmobile club a permit to fill in the road, but it has been withdrawn," Harmon, who has been county road manager for a little over one year, said.

"It was an oversight on my behalf. Before granting the permit, I should have made sure they (the snowmobile club) had their other permits.

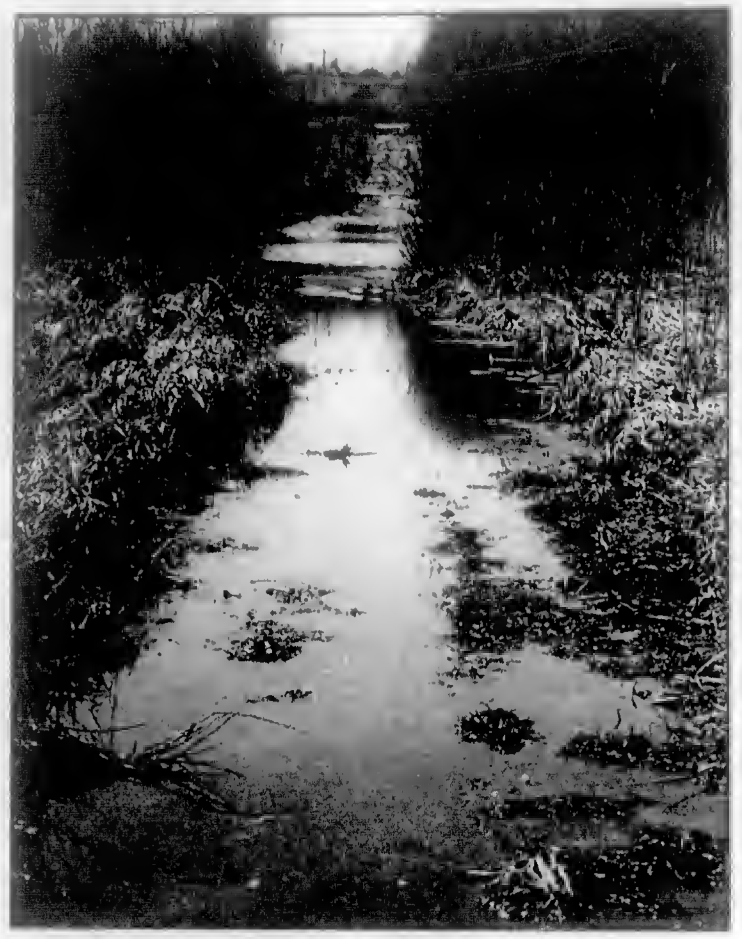
"I guess I made a mistake, and if I make a mistake I own up to it, learn from it and move on."

The snowmobile club has been ordered by the DEQ to remove the fill and restore the area to its original condition by June 1.

Members of the snowmobile club have since found an alternate route around the east side of Adams Lake. John Ferguson, a member of the snowmobile club, has said that the club intends to correct the situation.

"We certainly want to do it right environmentally," Ferguson said.

Brad Wilkens of the Department of Environmental Quality was unavailable for comment.



A road less traveled, except by nature lovers

The lowest portion of Ferry Road is closed to traffic, because it is a wetland area and a flood plain for the Loeb Creek Watershed. Looking at the top of the photo, the snowmobile club started to fill in the area last December. The Department of Environmental Quality stopped the filling activity and ordered the club to remove the fill by June 1.

Faith carried Rosalind to end of her life and friends.

"The best way to describe her was a servant," said long time friend Pat Drost. "She was ready to help anyone at any time, any way she could. She was very dedicated to her faith, and she never wavered."

Ros raised her three triplet sons as a single mother in Charlevoix. When her sons were grown and gone, she turned her attention to the kids who rode the Charlevoix school buses, working as a bus driver since 1992.

"She loved kids, and did an excellent job raising her kids," Drost said.

Most recently, the kids who stole her heart were the Romanian children who lived under the streets in sewers. She tirelessly raised money and donations to take back to Romania for the children, once referred to as "Talking Animals" because they lived like wild animals in the streets.

"On her last trip (to Romania), Ros said she was so tired after the transatlantic flight to Amsterdam that she thought she might have to turn around and come home," said Pastor Lowell Anderson of the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church. "Everyone with her pitched in and helped carry her bags. But after being in Romania, the successes of the trip so energized her that she was carrying both her bags and walking briskly."

When it became obvious that the end was near, Ros planned her own funeral service, including her favorite songs, hymns, and scripture readings.

"It was a celebration of her life," friend Ardeth Wieland said of the funeral service. "It was as unique as she was a person — filled with life and faith and dedication.

Pastor Anderson and Pastor Philip Pfaltzgraff of the Petoskey Assembly of God Church carried out Ros's final wishes.

"While we grieved her passing, we celebrated her life and her accomplishments at the service," Anderson said. "Ros was a survivor. She experienced a lot of hardship in her life and always overcame it."

Like everyone who attended the Saturday service, Wieland was touched by the selection of remembrances and songs chosen by Ros.

"People left the service knowing her contribution to our world was great and you were fortunate to have been a part of her life," Wieland said.

The service ended with the congregation singing a song that Ros selected before she died — It was probably her way of telling friends how she would feel when she met her Maker.

The song was, "Oh Happy Day."

Cutting off local access to the landfill doesn't seem to sway county officials.

"When it filled up, everyone knew it would close, so this just means it's being done a little earlier," said Phil Johnson, chairman of the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners.

The county government has denied the company's expansion request numerous times over the last several years.

Once in 1996 and twice in 1997, county planners refused to address the issue, stating that there was no need for expansion because county residents still had more than 66 months of available landfill space at Cedar Ridge and landfills in other counties.

Company officials did sway the local commissioners to force planners to make a decision regarding expansion.

The planners did just that almost one year ago and denied the company's request for an 11-acre expansion. The commission reasoned that the expansion area would encroach too close to Sears Creek. The expansion would come within 520 feet of the stream, but a 2,000 foot setback is required from a flowing body of water.

According to the commission's decision, the expansion would also violate Eveline Township zoning laws. The township allows landfills on agricultural land, but the expansion request would cover land zoned forest/farmland.

Planner Jamie Hass said he didn't foresee the commission changing their votes unless a different proposal from Waste Management is proposed.

"They have to address the issue of that stream or pick a new area," Hass said. "I've always been in favor of the landfill, but it needs to be done right."

Hass noted that a moderate-sized expansion, combined with stricter enforcement regarding the type of trash being brought into Cedar Ridge is something he favors. He said there would be no space crunch if landfill officials hadn't violated the county's solid waste plan and brought waste from counties not included in any reciprocal agreements with Charlevoix County.

As co-owner of Walloon Lake Refuse Service, an independent waste hauler, Hass expects costs of business to rise because of the recent decision to close to the public. Haulers could start to charge more to cover travel expenses to out-of-town landfills. Only if residents feel that pinch in their pocketbooks will there be pressure on county officials to grant an expansion.

"It all could fall right back into the customers' laps," Hass said. "If the customer begins to fork over more money, they might get upset and ask their county reps 'How did this happen?'"

Since the company merged with USA Waste last year, disposal rates at Cedar Ridge have increased two times. While company officials were tight-lipped regarding the actual numbers behind their rates, the increases have already forced rising costs to companies like Hass' and Top Rank Disposal, owned by Tom Rankl.

Hass has already increased the cost of their 33-gallon bags used by homeowners to $1.90, up from $1.70. Overall, he said business costs have increased between 6 and 12 percent due to rate increases at Cedar Ridge.

Rankl, meanwhile, never raised his own rates since he started his company in 1994, but that trend stopped when Cedar Ridge raised their disposable rates on Dec. 1, 1998, and Feb. 1, 1999. What used to cost him $9 a cubic yard to dump at Cedar Ridge, now costs $14 a cubic yard.

Rankl said if he diverts all his trash to the Emmet County transfer station that his costs could increase by $15,000 on a monthly basis. Despite that, he is not worried about losing access at Cedar Ridge. He has been working with the county to build his own transfer station at his company to temporarily hold trash before taking it to another landfill.

"Hopefully, with the addition of a transfer station to our business, we then can become independent of anything Waste Management does," Rankl said.

Of course, higher costs are of no concern to local homeowners in Eveline Township and along both Lake Charlevoix and Nowland Lake. For them, fighting against the landfill expansion had more to do with quality of life issues. Lingering odors from the landfill, abnormal seagull activity and the possibility of an accident leaking contamination into the watershed take precedent over cost issues.

"The lakes and our pristine beauty are our bread and butter," Nancy Ferguson, vice president of Water and Air Team Charlevoix (WATCH), said. "If we lose our commercial viability because of an accident there, then everyone will suffer."

Ferguson took part in the latest county affirmation against the landfill expansion. As a member of the solid waste committee, which is revising the county's solid waste plan, Ferguson voted to deny any siting for new landfill space. That motion was approved 10 -1 and will be part of the new plan expected to be finalized later this year.

With the current waste plan allowing for only a 40-acre facility and a new plan possibly prohibiting any new siting, the landfill may already be a closed deal for Charlevoix County.

"Waste Management keeps saying we're the minority," Ferguson said. "I think they're the minority, and it's time we stopped letting one company tell the county what to do and that their opinion doesn't matter."

Plastic grocery bags like this will no longer adorn the branches of trees outside the Cedar Ridge landfill when the company quits accepting waste from the public May 1. After that date, only the East Jordan Iron Works will be allowed to haul waste to the local landfill.

Local naturalist shares the beauty of Charlevoix County

By JoAnne Beemon
Special to the Courier

Over spring break, I spent my time in my very favorite place on earth, Charlevoix County, Michigan! While friends and family fled south and battled traffic, wilted from the heat, slapped at mites and swam in hotel pools rather than murky waters, I walked silent paths through deep woods, sifted the clean sand of Mt. McSauba through my fingers, and watched my son and grandson put the old row boat in the clear waters of an inland lake. All weather is good weather if you're dressed warm enough! And there is no place more beautiful than Charlevoix County in the spring.

One warm afternoon, my son and two of his childhood friends and my grandson piled in the car for an afternoon in the country. While my son, Shaan and 8-year-old grandson Logan rowed down the lake to explore the beaver dam and fish for clams, I talked with the young women. I could remember the three young people when they were my grandson's age, and as the girls talked about family and dreams, I remembered them, 20 years ago playing in the backyard. It was good to still be part of their lives and it was good to laugh and enjoy their company as we basked in the sun. Free of telephones, TVs and appointments, we savored the still beauty of the day. On an early morning outing with friends to Mt. McSauba, a morning that fit our mood, somber and gray, we saw a bald eagle, a lone dark figure on a boulder, silhouetted black against the water and sky. As we watched, the eagle lifted and soared above us, then dropping to hit the water, he rose, a glistening fish in his talons.

In East Jordan, the water is lower than I have ever seen it. Children play where last year the river slid over the dark river bottom. The eagles are practicing nest-building on the platforms in the estuary, and the chorus of frogs sing back and forth over the water. Soon the osprey will return. Last year, my mother and I watched the fuzzy heads of the fledglings bob above the nest on the stadium lights as the parents circled with fish fresh from the Jordan.

My grandson Logan spent the break with me (I had forgotten how "busy" an 8-year-old can be!) at the St. Clair Lake-Six Mile Lake (Great Blue Heron) Natural Area. Just three miles outside of East Jordan, a brown mink scurried past our feet at the water's edge, startling the children. We watched big brown spiders dance over the warming brown fields and a brown stripped garter snake glided past our feet. Geese and ducks danced and bobbed over the water and we could hear three different frog sounds. To add to the wonder of the day, a golden (YES!) eagle soared just above our heads, searching the river and bottom lands for prey.

Late in the week, a new friend guided us through worlds of upland hardwoods, the leeks just emerging and tinting the woods with their fragrance, through places where we could hear the birth of springs gurgling under the roots of trees, the trout lilies with their speckled broad green leaves foretell banks covered with golden flowers, spring beauties and hepatica. At the edge of the cedar swamp, the wonderful sound of a grouse beating its wings over a log, vibrated the cedar swamp and carried me back to my childhood growing up in the Grand River Valley outside of Ada. My family had a large garden overlooking the Grand River flood plain and in the spring, my sisters and I would cling to the fence in fear and excitement when Dad "fired up" the tractor (we called it a doodle bug). It made a sound very much like the grouse, vibrating our bodies as much as our ears. One year, somehow, the tractor got away from Dad and charged the fence where we were standing! My father hollered, waving his arms. My sister and I ran and stood, clinging to each other as the doodle bug tore through the fence and plowed down the hill, my father running behind it.

Dad said that when you loved something you had to take care of it. He taught us to love and care for the land. There are worlds of beauty just outside our doorsteps! Birds are nesting, and soon the tender green of the new buds will paint the hillsides and valleys. Each day is the beginning of new worlds of loveliness all around us. In celebration of the beauty of the earth it is good to plant trees for our children. It is good to clean beaches and roadways. But very best of all, it is good to walk in the wild places. To share beauty with friends and children. To rejoice in clean water and blue skies. To look around and listen and delight in the beauty and the wonder of the living things around us.

If we care about animals, the fish, birds, and all other living things, we must leave a place for them. In 1914, Hyde Bailey said, "We must teach our children how very good are the things made in the beginning." Clear waters and skies and wild things. When we really see these miracles of the creation, surely we will begin to treat them more kindly, to care for them more gently.

Letters to the editor

Artists are angry with chamber of commerce

Dear Editor:

As members of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, business people and professional artists who donate time and work for the betterment of the Charlevoix community, we were shocked to find that the board of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce saw fit to promote an additional art festival without the consultation of the Waterfront Art Fair Committee.

The volunteer committee has worked tirelessly for 41 years to promote the visual arts in the Charlevoix area.

All monies received from the event (less expenses), booth fees plus sales of T-shirts are given back to the community in the form of scholarships for deserving students pursuing an art career and to bring in art-related programs to the Charlevoix schools. All the money stays in the community.

The chamber has hired an outside promoter from Florida who has advertised in The Sunshine Artist Magazine since January through April, 1999 and is asking $250 per booth space for 200 artists that he will jury. How much of this money is coming back into the community? Will it go for scholarships and art programs for the Charlevoix schools? Will the artists coming for the weekend donate time to the schools? Art to the community? Or art work for fund-raisers?

As artists in the Charlevoix Community, we hate to see a 41-year-old tradition ruined by the chamber of commerce and an outside promoter who have no interest or sensitivity to consult chamber members who are artists and members of the Waterfront Art Fair Committee. Whose interest does the chamber of commerce serve?

There are many other events the chamber could pursue if they felt that it is necessary to promote Charlevoix.

Some possible suggestions for June events:

— Kids' weekend, family centered events

— Jazz festival, using the great local Jazz bands

— Taste of Charlevoix - great restaurants from the area

— A good boat show - Hessel style, antique boats

— Flower festival

— Downtown market with local farm produce

— Tour of artists and craftsmen's studios who live and work here

— Dance festival

— Book fair with lectures for adults and children

— Antique show

These would be a celebration of the people who live and work to make Charlevoix a great community.

Firefighters are indebted to fund-raising help

Editor:

The Charlevoix Volunteer Firefighter's Association would like to express their appreciation to Tom Meggison for all his hard work, raising funds for our new state-of-the-art Thermal Imaging Camera. Although Tom is officially retired from active duty with the department, his commitment and dedication is commendable. This equipment would not be possible without his efforts.

Also a very special thank you to Joe Schwartzfisher, who worked diligently with Tom on this fund-raiser.

The Charlevoix community support was greatly appreciated. Thank you to each individual and business who donated to this worthwhile cause.

The Thermal Imaging Camera is comparable to having eyes that can see in the dark, and will enhance our efforts greatly, not only our department but the surrounding communities who may need our mutual aid also.

The department would be proud to demonstrate the camera's capabilities to anyone who may be interested. Our deepest heartfelt thank-you to everyone who donated to the Thermal Imaging Camera Fund.

Sincerely,
Scott Blanchard, President
Charlevoix Volunteer Firefighters

Indoor ice rink would be nice in town

Dear Editor:

I strongly believe that our community needs an indoor ice rink. I think we need an indoor ice rink because a lot of people are going to other places to skate. It will make a lot of money for the community of Charlevoix. Another way is the weather is sometimes not good for skating outside. If we had an indoor ice rink we could skate even if the weather is bad.

Also they have a medium rink at the Charlevoix High School. The rink is bumpy and has cracks in it. It is dangerous and someone could get hurt. If we had an indoor ice rink here in the community of Charlevoix it wouldn't be like that.

Finally if we had an indoor ice rink it would help the community of Charlevoix be a better and funner place.

Sincerely,
Michael Yaldo

Pets should be neutered

Dear Editor:

I am concerned about animal losses each year. I think that too many animals are being put to sleep. There are too many people that are breeding their animals and there is no one who wants to adopt them. People should neuter their animals. The breeders that want to sell the baby animals should lower the price of them. Then maybe they will get rid of them faster.

Also we should build a new, bigger, and improved animal shelter to put more animals in it. Along with that, we need a Charlevoix pet shop. I really feel that we should have these things to save more animals.

Sincerely,
Samantha Sedich

Concerts at the castle were a good idea

Dear Editor:

I am a sixth grade student with a huge interest in music. I think that the town should get together and get the Castle to be a place for concerts again. A lot of great bands played there like the Police, The Go-Gos, Billy Idol, The Moody Blues, Power Station, and Flock of Seagulls. I think there should be special sessions for people to learn how to play a certain instrument. I think this would make our town better. Especially for music lovers.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Tyler Lalley

Red Cross will host "Mossback Ball" at Stafford's Perry

The American Red Cross will be hosting a benefit dinner dance starting at 6 p.m. Saturday, May 1.

Called the Mossback Ball, the event is named for the early pioneers who lived outside the main settlements of northern Michigan in the mid-to late 1800s. Because many arrived too late in the season to fell trees for a cabin, they dug out shelters in the hillsides where they would spend the winter and begin building in the spring. For that reason, they were called "Mossbacks."

The winter of 1876 was so severe that it threatened the lives of the Mossbacks. Word of the Mossbacks starving traveled as far as Grand Rapids, so a rescue effort was organized and train cars were loaded with needed food, clothing and fuel. When the train arrived, a ball was hosted at one of the local hotels to distribute these items.

Families came in wagons from all over the county. Supper was served and the younger children and babies were put to bed. Music, dancing and celebrating continued into the night. After a hearty, early morning breakfast, the wagons were loaded with the supplies each family would need to survive the winter. Following that winter, the Ladies' Benevolent Society was formed in Petoskey to seek donations for and to organize the annual "Mossback Ball."

Today, the American Red Cross Disaster Services volunteers carry on the tradition.

This year's Mossback Ball will feature entertainment by the Up North Big Band, a cash bar and a dinner with a choice of Chicken Galantine with Brandy Cream Sauce, Broiled Whitefish with Lemon and Remoulade Sauce, or Beef Medallions with Morel Mushroom and Cherry-Bordelaise Sauces.

Admission is $65 per person or $500 for a corporate table for eight people. All proceeds benefit the Northern Lower Michigan Chapter of American Red Cross Disaster Services.

To attend, R.S.V.P. to Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Smith, P.O. Box 3, Petoskey, MI 49770, or call 347-3387.

A special room rate of $60 is available at Stafford's Perry Hotel for people attending the benefit. Special room rates of $69, $79, and $89 will also be available for those attending the benefit at Stafford's Bay View Inn.

To make room reservations, call the Perry Hotel at 347-4000 or the Bay View Inn at 347-2771.

Red Cross volunteers show the first aid kits which will be used as door prizes at the Mossback Ball, a benefit dinner dance for the Red Cross. Volunteers are (front, from left) Janice Smith, chairman, and executive director Doloras Weiss. The Red Cross products they hold include a Bullfrog candle, a pet first aid book and family first aid kit. BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Joe Johnston
Charlevoix Assembly of God

His name was Flemming and he was a poor Scottish farmer. One day, while trying to eke out a living for his family, he heard a distant cry for help coming from a nearby bog. He put down his tools and ran to see what it was. When he arrived at the bog he found a very tired young man sinking in mud which was already up to his waist. Farmer Flemming extended a branch to the boy and pulled him out. He saved his life. It could have been a very slow and terrifying death.

The next day as Flemming was back to work, a fancy carriage pulled up to his simple home. An elegantly dressed nobleman stepped out of the carriage and introduced himself as the father of the boy Farmer Flemming had saved.

"I want to pay you," said the nobleman. "You saved my son's life."

"No I can't accept payment for what I did," said the farmer, standing at the door of his humble abode.

"Is this your son?" the nobleman asked of a lad in the doorway.

"Yes," the farmer replied proudly.

"I'll make you a deal," the nobleman said. "Let me take him and give him a good education. If the lad is anything like his father, he'll grow to be a man you can be proud of." And that he did. In time, Farmer Flemming's son graduated from St. Mary's Hospital Medical School in London, and went on to become known throughout the world as Dr. Alexander Flemming, the discoverer of penicillin. Years afterward, the nobleman's son was stricken with pneumonia. What saved him? Penicillin. The name of the nobleman? Lord Randolph Churchill. His son's name? Sir Winston Churchill.

I've heard it said many times before, "What goes around comes around." This is a simple but very true statement.

Jesus said it like this: "Give and it shall be given to you, good measure, pressed down, shaken together and running over, will men pour into your lap."

Have you ever noticed a selfish person? They usually have nothing much to speak of. They give nothing so they receive nothing. They're miserable people. It would be wise and biblical for us to learn the fine art of giving.

"Blessed are the merciful, for they shall receive mercy." (Matthew 5:7).

City will buy Wharfside to create more green space

By Laurie Lounsbury

The Charlevoix City Council entered a purchase agreement to buy the Wharfside building for the sum of $800,000.

The intention is to buy the building and tear it down to create more park space and a better view.

"This is the last piece of the plan that was started by the city fathers in 1896," said city manager Mike Wiesner.

After tracing the history of downtown property, Wiesner determined that the city made it their goal to acquire buildings and property along the east side of Bridge Street in the block between Mason and Clinton streets. At one point in time, the block was lined with buildings.

Entering into the purchase agreement was the first step in the plan. The city will now apply for a federal grant through the Intermodal Surface Transportation Enhancement Act (ISTEA). The grant application is in the amount of $890,000.

Wiesner explained that the additional $90,000 is for relocation costs for the three businesses that currently occupy space in the building. It was estimated that relocation costs could be as high as $30,000 per business. The federal grant program requires applicants to pay for business relocation costs.

If the city receives the grant, they are obligated to tear the building down.

Tenants in the building will have until the end of the year 2002 to find places to relocate. While the city will become owners of the building as soon as the grant is approved, they will lease the building to Rex and Hubertina McCarthy, current owners. They, in turn, will continue to lease the commercial space to the existing tenants.

The current taxable value of the building is $157,276, with a State Equalized Value of $205,900. Lloyd Kirby appraised the building for the city, and determined the current market value to be $800,000. The federal rules for getting grant money require a municipality to pay no less than the appraised value for property.

The city will have to pay taxes on the property as long as it is still being used as commercial property, and the taxes can be expected to go up in keeping with the sale price.

Ironically, any increase in taxes will benefit the Downtown Development Authority (DDA), which will capture the increase in taxes. The DDA is a part of the city government, created to improve the downtown area for local businesses.

Wiesner expects to hear if the grant is approved sometime this year, and the city will close on the deal no sooner than December of this year.

"If all goes well, the building will be demolished in the year 2003," Wiesner said.

The council voted four-to-one to buy the property, with Bob Timms casting the only vote against it. Valerie Barnes was out of town for the special meeting, held April 13.

Adding more real estate to their portfolio, city council entered a grant contract with the State of Michigan to buy a narrow strip of property between the Coast Guard Station and Lake Charlevoix. The state agreed to pay 63.5 percent of the total purchase price, or a maximum of $224,155.

That means the city can spend up to $366,493 for the property near Depot Beach. The city will have to match the state funds by paying up to $142,338 for the proposed park property.

History of East Park shows long term planning

The city fathers began their quest to acquire park property downtown in 1896, with the purchase of the easternmost section of Veteran's Park. The rest of Veteran's Park was acquired in 1919 and 1925.

From there, the city moved to the property where the chamber of commerce building now sits, which was acquired in 1925. The property surrounding the former Parkside building was acquired in 1926 and 1927. The lot between the chamber build-

Camp Daggett gets donation for indoor adventure center

Great Lakes Energy Cooperative customers recently donated $10,000 to help fund the proposed construction of a $500,000 Indoor Adventure Center for Camp Daggett.

"The new indoor adventure education facility will provide opportunities for year-round experiential and adventure learning activities for all age groups," explains Scott Okerlund, the camp's executive director.

The nearly 6,000 square foot center will include a challenge course for the physically impaired and will be the new location for rainy day activities for the many summer campers.

"The $10,000 contribution represents an investment in the community that will benefit local youngsters for many years to come," said GLE People Fund Director Mike Stowe of Boyne City.

The People Fund is part of Operation RoundUp, a voluntary charitable contribution program sponsored by GLE customers. Participating customers' monthly electric bills are rounded up to the next highest dollar with the extra few cents going into the program's People Fund. The People Fund is administered by a volunteer board of directors separate from the co-op's board, and funds are distributed to charitable organizations throughout GLE's service territory.

The $10,000 is one of the first grants awarded by the new organization since Operation RoundUp began four months ago in GLE's north area. An additional $22,000 will be shared by four other charitable organizations in Northern Michigan that have also received grants from the GLE People Fund board:

- $3,000 for food and emergency services provided by the Salvation Army's Petoskey chapter for assisting families in need in Emmet and Charlevoix counties;
- $10,000 to help rebuild the Gaylord Middle School's High Ropes Course;
- $3,000 for food and emergency services offered by the Salvation Army's Gaylord chapter for helping needy residents in Otsego County;
- $6,000 for food pantry and family emergency services offered by the Kalkaska Area Interfaith Resources (K.A.I.R.) organization for needy residents of Kalkaska County.

Robert Torres gets a quick trim from Darrel Somerville, who is once again cutting hair in Charlevoix.

Back to barbering

After a 25 year absence, Darrel Somerville has returned to the job of being a barber in Charlevoix. He is working with Harbor Barber owner Gary Balch on Antrim Street. Twenty-five years ago, Somerville was cutting hair next door to the current barbershop location. "I've always kept my license up, because I thought someday I might go back to cutting hair," Somerville said. Since his departure from the barbering business 25 years ago, Somerville has worked at the Penn Dixie cement plant for seven years, the power plant in Advance, Swan Electric in Gaylord, and Hodgkiss and Douma as recently as last summer.

Baseball and softball teams open season with solid play

Charlevoix's varsity softball and baseball teams hosted four-team invitationals over the weekend, but each squad lost in the finals to neighboring rival Petoskey.

The baseball team, paced by a pair of hits from Jerry Zeitler and a home run by Ryan Bier, cruised to an 8-2 win over St. Ignace to open the tournament. Jeremiah Teuscher allowed just three hits while striking out five to earn the win.

Petoskey romped into the title game with Charlevoix on the strength of a 13-2 win over Roscommon and their bats continued to shine against the Rayders en route to an 18-1 win.

Bier, Tony Williams and Andy Granath each pitched against the Northmen, but neither could contain them as Petoskey pounded out 13 hits, worked for five walks and also benefited from four Charlevoix errors.

A.J. Fettig, meanwhile, shut down the Rayders attack, limiting Charlevoix to just three hits and five total base runners during the whole game.

"The tournament was a lot of fun, but Petoskey batting and solid pitching saw them take home the crown for the second year in a row," Charlevoix coach Scott Kelly said.

In the softball tournament, the Lady Northmen plated three runs in the bottom of the fifth in a time-shortened game to swipe the title away from Charlevoix.

"We were really in charge most of the day, but we threw the ball away in that last inning and it was history," Charlevoix coach Ron Cox said.

Charlevoix plated a run in the top of the first on consecutive hits from Dena Sheldon and Courtney Butler. With the game tied at 1-1, the Rayders clawed out a pair of runs in the fourth on a double by Krysta Pearsall, a walk by Jessie Whitley and consecutive RBI hits from Tasha Morrison and Sheldon.

Butler was the losing pitcher against Petoskey, but the Rayders rode her arm to a 5-3 win over St. Ignace to advance into the tournament final.

Butler allowed just three hits and fanned 16 St. Ignace batters en route to the win.

On offense, the Rayders scored all their runs in the first frame and cruised behind Butler's the rest of the way.

Sheldon, Butler, Sarah Jones, Ann Spang, Pearsall and Whitley all had hits as the Rayders batted a round to open the game and a lead they would never relinquish.

The team opened their season last week with a two-game sweep of Mancelona.

Butler was the pitching star in the first game, striking out 17 batters en route to a 6-1 win. Laurel English had three hits and Christine Potee had two to pace the offense.

The second game was more of a slugfest with Sheldon belting a home run, Jones a triple and Spang a double in the team's 13-7 win. Butler, Pearsall, Potee and Jennifer Liddicoat also had hits.

Sheldon pitched the first 3 1/3 innings, allowing only three hits, and Butler closed the game, striking out six batters in the final 2 2/3 innings.

The baseball team split their opening doubleheader with the Ironmen, winning the nightcap on Bier's three-run home run in the top of the sixth inning. Teuscher also added a home run in the team's 6-4 win. Shay Hutchison earned the win, pitching the final two innings in relief.

The Rayders dropped the opener, 10-8. The Ironmen belted three home runs in the contest allowing them to withstand a four-run rally by the Rayders in their final turn at the plate. For Charlevoix, Matt Horon hit a home run and a single and Mike Kochanny had a pair of hits.

Both teams open their conference season with a home doubleheader against East Jordan at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, April 22.

Tennis team stumbles in opening games

The tennis team got off to a rocky start, dropping a pair of 5-2 decisions in their opening week of play.

Encouraging signs were seen in the fact that two different doubles' teams earned wins and the Rayders swept a pair of exhibition matches played during the contests against Traverse City-St. Francis (TCSF) and Grayling.

The team of Craig Siwarga-Joel Trubilowicz won both of their matches last week. Playing in the No. 3 doubles flight against TCSF, the pair topped Mike Zanotti-Andrew Haase, 7-5, 6-3. They moved into the No. 2 flight, and still prevailed, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, against Travis Pearl-Dave Hawkins of Grayling.

Other winners last week included Mark Yager-Tom Cunningham, in the No. 2 flight, over Pete Sanok-Jerry Sloan (TCSF), 6-3, 6-7, 6-1; and Scott Pair, in No. 1 singles, over Eric Thompson (Grayling), 6-2, 6-4.

David Drury, Allen Brooks and Shannon Martin rounded out the team's singles' flights, but couldn't come through with a victory in either contest. In other doubles' action, Yager-Gabe Fonseca lost in the No. 1 slot against Grayling while George LaBlance-Wally Pair fell in the No. 1 slot against TCSF. Against Grayling in the No. 3 doubles' flight, Lisa Miller-Molly Arnold got the call for Charlevoix, but fell short of a win.

The team next plays at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, April 22 at Glen Lake.

Soccer team starts season on a high note with three wins

JV soccer team clobbers Petoskey, 8-0

Playing games on three consecutive days to open their season, the Charlevoix girls' soccer team recorded a pair of 3-0 victories, beginning their season on a high note.

Senior Juli Swenor knocked in a pair of goals and Brooke Block added a third on a direct kick as Charlevoix blanked Cheboygan, 3-0, in their opener last week at Kipke Field. Charlevoix out-shot the Chiefs, 12-7, as Kristy Shindorf recorded her first shutout of the season. Block and Erika Kammermann each picked up an assist in the win.

The Rayders hit the road to square off with two Division I teams over the weekend.

Amid cold, wet and windy conditions, Charlevoix couldn't shake loose any scoring chances as they lost 2-0 to the St. John's Redwings last Friday night. The fast and physical Redwings tallied a goal in each half, handing Charlevoix their first defeat of the season.

The offense was more in gear the next morning in a 3-0 win over Owosso. Taya Drost, Kammermann and Block each scored goals for the Rayders. Kammermann had two assists and Swenor also picked up an assist.

Shindorf earned another shut out, but faced only four shots, in large part to strong defensive play from Lindsey Carland, Kelly Kusina, Kate Romig and Mandy Webb. In contrast, the Rayders barraged the Owosso goalie with 20 shots.

"Three games in three days was a lot to ask of the girls, but they stepped up big," coach Hagen Manker said.

Charlevoix, 2-1, plays at Harbor Springs at 5 p.m. Wednesday, April 21 before returning home for a match against Marquette at 6 p.m. Friday, April 23.

The Junior Varsity soccer team, a new club this year, showed that they are a force to be reckoned with at their Monday meet against Petoskey.

The girls played hard both defensively and offensively, scoring well and not giving the Petoskey team an opportunity to score even one goal. Jennifer Rowe was at the goal position for most of the game.

For Charlevoix, Kate Madison, Danielle Vogelheim and Karlee Barnard each scored two goals. Michelle Yaldo was good for one goal, along with Elissa Wood.

Jamie Murray contributed strong defensive play, and Marie Serrels covered the midfield with timely moves and footwork.

Girls' track team sweeps first meet, boys take second place

High jumper breaks school record

By Jamie MacMillan

In what boys' coach Hal Evans called a "get the kinks out meet," the Charlevoix track and field teams showed very little rust as the girls' team won their meet while the boys finished with a solid second.

The Lady Rayders scored 209 points to edge past Roscommon, 205, and Grayling, 42. The boys, meanwhile, scored 139 points, behind Roscommon, 198, but ahead of Grayling, 126.

The individual highlight was Todd Schaperkotter, who broke the school's 22-year-old high jump record. Schaperkotter jumped 6-3, breaking the previous mark of 6-2 1/2 set in 1977 by Tim LaBlance.

"It was exciting because it was a goal of mine going into the season," Schaperkotter, whose previous best was 6-2, said. "I didn't expect it, especially in the first meet, but everything fell together."

The record almost didn't happen, however, thanks to a late arriving bus.

The high jump is the first field event in a track meet, and by the time the Rayders arrived at the meet the competition was underway. Without any warm-up or any real chance to mark his steps — Schaperkotter said he placed a rock where he thought he should take off — the Charlevoix senior struggled during early jumps.

The bar is set at 5-4 on opening jumps and Schaperkotter promptly bonked his head on the bar on his opening jump. The conference runner-up in the event last year, Schaperkotter regained form, tied the school record and almost broke it on his first attempt at 6-3, but his hands knocked the bar off on his descent.

He was shaken up and missed badly on his second attempt, but he cleared the bar with ease on his third and final jump.

"I knew I had the whole year, so it wasn't do or die if it didn't happen," he said. "I went into this meet blind, so that's why it was kind of a surprise."

Schaperkotter couldn't clear the next height and was nudged out for first place by a jumper from Roscommon.

Other Charlevoix highlights from the boys' meet included first place finishes by Ben VanGuilder in the 400 run, Adam Kline in the shot put and the 4 X 100 relay team.

Second places went to Jeremy Rafacz, 100 dash and discus; Jeff Buckner, 200 and pole vault; and the 800 and 1600 relay teams. Third places were earned by Buckner, 100; Hal Evans, 400; Jon Boss, 800; Rafacz, 200; and Brian Cornet, long jump.

Charlevoix's girls team squeaked out a win in large part due to their depth of distance runners. Of the six first places the team won, four were in distance events, including the 3200 relay team of Liza Gorkiewicz, Tricia Hodge, Emily Martinus and Katie Swenor.

In addition to the relay, Gorkiewicz won the 3200 run, Swenor topped the field in the 1600 and Laura Schairbaum won the 800. Other firsts of the day were Allison Kujawski in the 100 hurdles and the 4 X 100 relay team of Leslie Hoffman, Karianne Miller, Jenny Miller and Kelly Reid.

"It was a good meet for our youngsters, they scored a lot of points," coach Ken Plude said. "We found out we have some decent speed and more depth than we thought."

The team won 11 second place finishes, including Hodge in the 400 and 3200; Karianne Miller, 100; Jenny Miller, 200 and long jump; Meghan Vogel, shot put and pole vault; Kujawski, discus; Sarah Dominic, high jump; and the 800 and 1600 relay teams. Winning third places were Hoffman, 100 hurdles; Reid, 100; Ashley Rieck, 800 and high jump; Karianne Miller, 200 and long jump; and Dominic, shot put.

Both track teams will compete in a tri-meet against Benzie Central and Kingsley at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, April 22 at Benzie Central.

Wharfside acquisition is last piece in the lakeside puzzle

City will now own all property along east side of Bridge Street between Clinton and Mason streets, and down to Round Lake

ing and the Parkside was bought in 1929.

Moving to the block between Mason and Clinton streets, which is now East Park, the city bought the lot nearest Clinton Street in 1942. Moving south, the city acquired the next lot south in 1940, and the lot where the sidewalk divides the park in 1941.

In that block, the last parcel to be bought was the one where the band shell stands.

Bridge Park was bought from the Michigan Department of Transportation in 1998, and the Parkside Restaurant property was acquired in 1995.

The last remaining privately owned property on the east side of Bridge Street in downtown Charlevoix is the Wharfside building.

In 1927, a survey done by the Sanborn Map Company indicates that most of East Park was covered with buildings. The Charlevoix Hotel dominated the central portion of the park, while a bowling alley ran along Clinton Street toward Round Lake, about where the town Christmas tree stands. A variety of retail stores, including a bakery and dry cleaners, occupied most of East Park.

Sometime between 1927 and 1932, a building was built where the Wharfside building now sits. It could very well be the same building. From 1932 to 1942, the city acquired and demolished every building in East Park, with the exception of the bowling alley building along Clinton Street and the Wharfside Building along Mason Street. The bowling alley property along Clinton Street was acquired by the city in 1946.

Now, if all goes according to the plan, the city will acquire the last piece of privately owned property in the East Park block by the end of this year.

County Democrats will host Pioneer Celebration dinner

The Charlevoix County Democratic Party will host their fourth annual Pioneer Celebration at 5 p.m. Saturday, April 24 at the Argonne Supper Club. This event will honor long time party activists Irene and Richard Brannon of Boyne City, Margaret Duerr of Charlevoix, Barbara MacArthur of Charlevoix and James and Dorothy Willis of Beaver Island. These people have volunteered many hours to the party throughout the years. Many of them are still serving as precinct delegates for the county.

Guest speaker for the evening will be State Representative Andy Neumann of the 106th district, which is comprised of Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Presque Isle and Alpena counties.

The evening will start with a social hour from 5 to 6 p.m., with the dinner and program to follow. The cost of the event is $12. Call Kay Chase at 547-5147 or Karen Spruce at 582-5778 for tickets or more information. The public is welcome to attend.

McClellan trial delayed again, judge's decision questioned

The trial for Charlevoix student Matt McClellan, who is charged with being a minor in possession of alcohol, has been postponed indefinitely as defense lawyers continue their attempts to secure a jury trial for their client.

McClellan's attorney, Ray C. Hayes III, filed a motion of superintending control last week in circuit court, delaying last Thursday's scheduled bench trial on the matter in Charlevoix's district court.

With the superintending control motion, defense attorneys are asking circuit court judge Richard Pajtas to intervene and make his own judgment regarding McClellan's request for a jury trial.

Twice in earlier court appearances, district court judge Richard May denied requests for a jury trial because it is not a defendant's constitutional right in criminal cases when the maximum penalty carries no possibility of incarceration.

Pajtas has delayed the trial to consider the most recent request.

McClellan was issued an arrest ticket for minor in possession of alcohol while at his home in the early hours of Saturday, Dec. 5, 1998.

McClellan, a student-athlete involved with football and basketball, would have been subjected to the school's zero tolerance policy, but school officials didn't enforce the policy in this case due to unusual circumstances.

In interviews with school officials, McClellan maintained his innocence regarding the charges and no tangible evidence, other than the arresting officer's report that alcohol could be smelled on McClellan's breath, was discovered by the school to support that he had been drinking that night.

After sharing the information with their attorneys, school officials didn't find McClellan in violation of the policy, which would suspend the student-athlete for the entire season for any offenses occurring during the season.

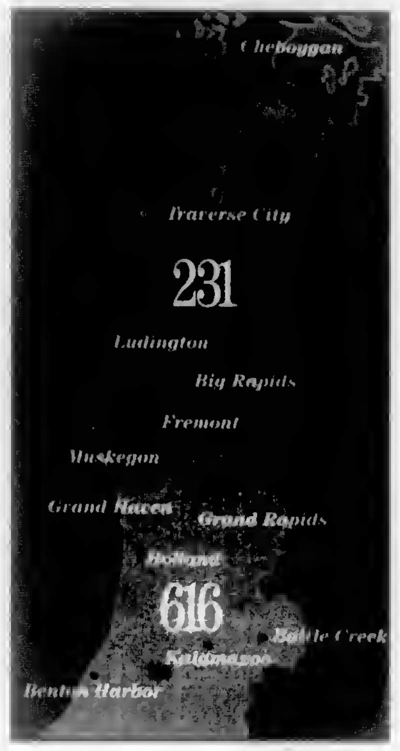
In an interview last month, assistant principal/basketball coach Keith Haske said it was the school's position to let the case play out in a court of law, but that he told the 18-year-old basketball star that "if the courts find him guilty, he's done with basketball."

Over a dozen students, all of whom confessed their guilt, have been suspended from their extracurricular activities for violation of the Zero Tolerance policy, which went into effect in December of 1997.

With a trial that has been postponed indefinitely, McClellan is planning to participate in spring sports. He is on the roster of the boys' track team.

Calling all northerners

As shown on this map, anyone placing a call north of Grand Rapids on the west side of the state of Michigan will need to use the new, 231 area code starting June 5. Both the old 616 area code and the new 231 area code will work for a few months, while people adjust to the new number.



Area code 616 will change in June

Ameritech is sending a brochure to everyone living north of Grand Rapids to remind them of the change in area codes, which will go into effect June 5, 1999.

The southwestern part of Michigan, including Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Benton Harbor, Grand Haven and Holland, among others, will keep the 616 area code.

The northwestern part of the state, including Traverse City, Ludington, Muskegon, Fremont, Big Rapids, Cadillac, Petoskey, Charlevoix and Cheboygan will switch to the new, 231 area code.

To help make the transition, there will be an optional dialing period from June 5 to Oct. 2, when both the new and old area codes will work.

Starting Oct. 2, a recorded message will remind callers to use the new, 231 area code for a temporary transition time.

The booming economy and a wide variety of telecommunication services, such as fax machines, cell phones, pagers, and computer phone lines for Internet service, have been cited as the reasons for needing a new area code.

According to Ameritech, if a new area code wasn't introduced, the region would literally run out of new phone numbers as early as the fall of 1999.

SCRAPBOOK

City of Charlevoix was named for a traveling priest

By Geoffrey D. Reynolds

Over the years many visitors have come to enjoy our "city on three lakes," but how many know of how this once lonely fishing village got its name?

Pierre Francois-Xavier de Charlevoix was born in the French province of Picardy in the thriving city of San Quentin in the year 1682. There he was raised until the age of sixteen, when he entered the religious sect of the Jesuit Novitiate in Paris (Society of Jesus). After seven years of intense training he was assigned to teach at the Jesuit college in the Canadian province of Quebec from 1705-1709. He later returned there in 1713 to teach, after a stay in France, with the rank of professor of the humanities.

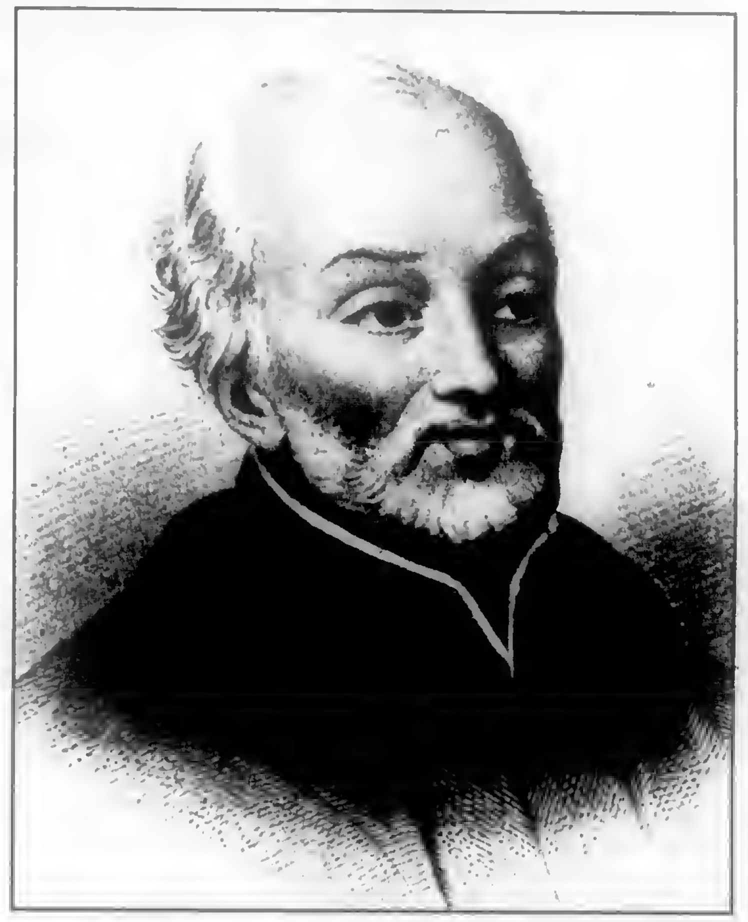
In 1719, after six years of teaching, Charlevoix received a royal commission to carry the "Christian cross" into the wilderness, find an overland or water passage to the Pacific, and ascertain the rival English land claims.

Charged with his secret mission, Charlevoix traveled to Fort Ponchartrain (Detroit) and disembarked on June 18, 1721 with two canoes and eight companions. His route took him first to Mackinac Island, then the Beaver Islands, Green Bay and back east, stopping at points along the eastern shore of Lake Michigan. While traveling south he described Beaver Island, Sleeping Bear Dunes and the beautifully wooded shoreline lying between. We know this because of his famous 18th century, six volume work, History of the New France. This was a frequent source of reference for a young George Washington as he explored the Ohio River Valley for the first time in the mid-18th century.

Eventually Charlevoix reached the Chicago area and headed south along the Mississippi River until reaching New Orleans. Once there he headed back to France, never again to enjoy the scenery along Lake Michigan's eastern shoreline. Today, only his name remains on the city and county he once observed from his canoe.

Charlevoix passed away at his French birthplace on February 1, 1761. The same year the Jesuits were banned from French soil and one year before the French yielded their power in the New World to the English.

To learn more about the history of Father Charlevoix and his namesake city and county, contact Harsha House Museum executive director, Betsy Reynolds, at 547-0373 to schedule an appointment.



Peter Francis Xavier de Charlevoix, S.J., is the person for whom Charlevoix was named. He was born Oct. 29, 1682, and died Feb. 1, 1761. (Picture courtesy of the Charlevoix Historical Society, Bob Miles Collection)

Ladies' Auxiliary plans upcoming events

The Ladies Auxiliary to Leslie T. Shapton Unit #226, American Legion, met at the Legion Hall for their monthly meeting with President Katie Curtis presiding. Reports were given by various chairman, including report by Josephine Bindi, Sunshine Chairman, who reported she had mailed 8,510 canceled stamps to Camp Bellport, Wisconsin. The Auxiliary has participated in the National Auxiliary canceled stamp project for approximately 20 years. All canceled stamps are processed, and sold to stamp collectors' companies. The proceeds are used for missions, nursing scholarships, etc. Anyone wishing to assist the Auxiliary in this program, may save their canceled stamps, may cut them off envelopes, with 1/4" paper around the stamp, and they can be brought to the Legion Hall or given to an Auxiliary member.

The Auxiliary voted to donate $100 to the Cuban Medical "Miracle Mission" to assist the unfortunate citizens living in Cuba who are in desperate need of food and medical supplies. Jay Bavers of East Jordan is a volunteer in charge of this humanitarian program and will be making another trip to Cuba the latter part of April to assist with the severe needs there. He will be working with a team of doctors who will assist on the program.

The Auxiliary is making plans to host their annual fund-raising Salad-Casserole Dinner on Tuesday, May 18. All Legion and Auxiliary members will be contacted for contributions to the dinner. The Poppy Days will be Thursday, May 20 through Saturday, May 22. All Legion and Auxiliary members are urged to assist. Katie Curtis and Rosalyn Goldstick will co-chair the Poppy Days. Please contact either of them if you can assist with the distribution of poppies. The Legion and the Auxiliary meet on the first Tuesday of each month a 7 p.m. Any armed forces veteran or their families are urged to join this patriotic organization.

With key players back, soccer looks for breakout season

The Charlevoix girls' soccer team returns 13 letter winners from last year's squad including its top scorers, defenders and goaltender. The result could be a breakout season after the team finished with a 6-12-1 record last year.

"There is a lot of talent out there," coach Hagen Manker said. "Our confidence is built up and the kids are ready to win."

Manker noted that there is "no fluff" with their 16-game schedule that includes local matches with Petoskey, Alpena, Marquette, Elk Rapids and out-of-town games with Owosso and St. John's, but that reaching the .500 mark is a "realistic and challenging goal."

To do that, the coach will rely on a crew of experienced fullbacks paced by Lindsey Carland, Kate Romig, Carrie Beemon, Kelly Kusina and Mandi Webb. Behind the fullbacks is goalkeeper Kristy Shindorf, who, in two years between the posts, has recorded 12 shutouts and is approaching the "peak of her game," according to Manker.

Manker noted that the team's strategy is to bottle up teams with strong defense then capitalize on the handful of scoring chances the team will get throughout the course of the game.

Those scoring punches will likely come from Erika Kammermann, who earned honorable mention all-state honors last year after knocking home nine goals and assisting on six others. Kammermann isn't the only Rayder who showed scoring touches last season.

Taya Drost returns after a six goal, five assist season as does Brooke Block, four goals, five assists; Kelly Dreyer, three goals and three assists; and Abby Schaperkotter, four goals. Julie Swenor has made real progress and should provide some scoring as well, Manker said.

Kirsten Brendtro, Shannon Nystrom and Lindsey Simmons will also contribute at a variety of positions, Manker said.

In addition to aiming for a winning record, Manker said the team wants to win grudge matches against rivals Petoskey and Elk Rapids. The Elks, for example, have eliminated the Rayders the last two seasons in overtime nail-biters in district tournament play.

"They're determined that that's the last time we're losing to them," Manker said. "If we play well, we can do all that."

An added boost to the program is the formation of a junior varsity soccer team for the first time in school history. Coached by Carol Madison, the club began play this season with a scrimmage against Fruitport last month. The club topped the Trojans 3-0 with Anna Hochhalter, Kate Madison and Karlee Barnard scoring goals.

Softball team plans to strike out opponents with strong pitching

Softball coach Ron Cox said the timing of spring break so close to the start of their season has led to a lot of unknowns regarding his team, but a cast that includes six players with varsity experience should help the club survive any early season hurdles.

"We haven't played much together this year, so we're still learning what we can do," Cox said. "If we get a little more aggressive, we'll do all right."

Pitching, Cox said, is going to be an early season strength. The team has Dena Sheldon returning from last year's pitching crew and welcomes Courtney Butler, a newcomer this year to Charlevoix, to form a solid pitching unit. Butler has the makings of an ace, Cox said.

"She's tough and throws hard with three or four pitches," he said. "If she throws well early on, we should have a good chance to put together our team a little better."

Sheldon will spell Butler on the mound and anchor the infield at second base when not pitching. Senior Ann Spang returns to man first base. Christine Potee and Sarah Jones will cover the left side of the infield at third base and shortstop respectively. Both are juniors and first year varsity players.

Laurel English returns for her second year as starting catcher.

The outfield will be led by senior returnees Jessie Whitley and Kystra Pearsall. Senior Tonya Avery and juniors Kim Potter, Jennifer Liddicoat and Shauna Barrett are all first-year varsity players expected to see action in the outfield.

The club opened play last week against Mancelona and have five home doubleheaders included in their season schedule on Thursday, April 22 vs. East Jordan; Thursday, April 29 vs. Harbor Springs; Monday, May 3 vs. Kalkaska; Wednesday May 12 vs. Boyne Falls; and Monday, May 17 vs. Petoskey. All games begin at 4:30 p.m.

On the junior varsity level, coach Don Potter will try to mold a team of 10 players, five of whom have JV experience from last year.

Sophomores Tasha Morrison, Sandra Spencley, Jennifer Liotta, Melissa Fitzgerald and Katie Yager will anchor the squad with newcomers Tori Kramer, Amber Williams, Shawna Flowers, Jackie Cunningham and Melissa McDonough rounding out the roster.

The team's next home game is at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 27 against Elk Rapids.

Sarah Dominic returns to the team this year, but as this picture shows, her high jump form was in good shape even in her sophomore season. Dominic placed second in the high jump during the team’s first meet last week. She also earned a third place in the shot put.

Two years ago we captured Allison Kujawski practicing her starts out of the blocks on a rainy afternoon. Practice always makes perfect as her senior track season is off to a fine start after winning the 100 hurdles in the club’s opening meet of the season last week. The senior also showcased strength in the meet placing second in the discus.

Track teams ready to race to finish lines

The girls’ track and field team is amid a small rebuilding project after graduating 11 seniors, eight of whom scored points as the Rayders won last year’s conference championship meet.

“We have lots of inexperience,” coach Ken Plude said. “We have potential, but we don’t know where everyone is going to fit in right now.”

The Rayders will be able to rely upon a consistent set of distance runners to score points while the rest of the team gets its feet wet.

Tricia Hodge, Liza Gorkiewicz and Laura Schairbuam were part of the 2-mile relay team that advanced into the state finals and the trio will again be counted on in the distance relay and individual events, Plude said.

Emily Martinus, Melissa Swem, Tiffany Fisher and Katie Swenor will also compete in the middle to long distance events.

“I think we have sure points in the distance events, but we’ll be filling in with the other events,” Plude said.

In the sprint events, Leslie Hoffman and Karianne Miller will be the top runners. Miller is the lone returnee from last year’s 400 relay team that qualified for the state finals.

In the field events, Allison Kujawski, Sarah Dominic, Heather Ferber, Amanda Pischner, Jessie Seibert and Meghan Vogel will compete in various throwing and jumping events.

Despite the inexperience, Plude noted that experience is blended in there with a solid crop of 10 seniors.

“It’s a really good group, they have goals and are some of the best leaders I’ve had.”

On the boys’ team, coach Hal Evans enters his 26th and final season with 24 athletes, a smaller team than usual. Evans, though, will benefit from having a large senior class paced by Erik Butcher, Josh Popenhagen and Nick Martinchek in the distance events; Jeremy Rafacz, Colin Carr and Todd Schaperkotter in the sprints; and Carl Goff and Wally Wujcik in the discus and shot put. Evans noted that Schaperkotter is a top high jumper after finishing second place in the event during last year’s conference finals.

Underclassmen expected to contribute are Brian Cornett in the sprint events and Brian Hater and Adam Kline in the field events, Evans said.

The remainder of the team is freshmen and sophomores still finding their way with certain events.

“We’ll have to see what happens, a lot of our spots are still up in the air,” Evans said. “I have a good group of kids, so I expect to enjoy my swan song.”

Both teams opened their season with a dual meet last week against Grayling and continue their local schedule with conference meets at East Jordan at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 27; at Boyne City at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 4; and at home with Elk Rapids at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 11.

The conference championships will be hosted at Kipke Field this year at 3 p.m. Thursday, May 27.

The Fosbury Flop, preferred by most high jumpers today, makes for some interesting photos, but also makes it difficult to identify the jumpers. So just who is this?

With youthful team, baseball club looks to vie for league honors

Coach Kelly blends a trio of new infield starters onto team that finished in second place in 1998

Scott Kelly enters his third year as varsity baseball coach in Charlevoix with a young team that returns only two seniors and six varsity players from last year's squad.

Seniors Ryan Bier and Tom Kennedy have been named co-captains and Kelly will rely on that duo to do a bulk of the work on the pitching mound.

"He'll be our ace," Kelly said of Bier. "He's a control pitcher with some zip. He should win a good portion of the games he pitches in."

Bier will see some action in right field when not on the mound and showed hitting strength at the plate with a .375 average in 16 games last year. Kennedy, meanwhile, will roam center field when he's not pitching. Kelly said Kennedy returns as the team's best all-around player after hitting .295 a year ago.

Other returnees from last year include juniors Shay Hutchison and Andy Granath and sophomores Jeremiah Teuscher and Matt Horon.

Hutchison, a junior, will be the team's primary catcher and will also pitch and play some third base. Hutchison batted .371 last year with 29 RBI. Granath will play in the outfield as well as pitch. Fellow juniors Tony Williams and Tyler Lieberman are up after playing junior varsity ball last year and both are being counted on to fill a variety of positions when the lineup shuffles based on pitching changes, Kelly said.

Teuscher and Horon return after solid freshmen seasons playing as varsity regulars. Horon, a .306 hitter last year, will play left field while Teuscher will play short stop and pitch.

Kelly is hoping that the success and experience Horon and Teuscher had as freshmen will rub off on another pair of ninth graders, Jerry Zeitler and Chris Loper, who will play a lot of innings this spring.

Zeitler will play second base and bat at the top of the lineup while Loper will anchor third base. Mike Kohanny, a sophomore in his first year on varsity, rounds out the infield at first base.

Despite the infield's youth, Kelly expects them to be solid fielders.

"In assessing our skills, defense looks to be the strongest," he said. "Our fielding has been consistent and smooth in practice and we're looking forward to these guys doing well."

Kelly wants to build on the success last year's team had. After a 1-7 start, the club rebounded to finish 15-18-1 and finish in second place behind Boyne City in the race for the conference title.

"I hope we can get into a position to be in the running for the conference and hopefully win the district," Kelly said.

Mike Teuscher will be Kelly's assistant coach and Pete Scholten, after helping out as an assistant coach in recent seasons, returns this year as the head junior varsity coach.

His team this year includes 13 players, five of whom played JV ball last year.

Returning are Ticker Bakker, catcher, Kyle Louiselle, center field, Adam Moore, shortstop, Kevin Evans, first base, and Keith Patrick, third base.

Moore, Bakker and freshmen Dennis Avery, Rob Boss and Nick Cole will pace the pitching staff, according to Scholten.

Rayder tennis team continues steady climb to the top

Seven letter winners are back, including the squad's top single and doubles players

The Charlevoix tennis team hits the courts this spring with a large team of 25 players, 17 of whom were with the club last year.

The club had an up and down season a year ago, finishing last in the conference finals, but rebounding to finish in fifth place in the regional finals as part of a 10-team field.

With seven varsity letter winners returning from that season, second year head coach Janet Freidinger is upbeat as the season begins.

"A handful have been on the team since they were freshmen," she said. "I'm anxious to see how they do. Every year they have done a little better."

During the first week of the 1999 season, the Rayders singles positions were being held by Scott Pair, David Drury, Allen Brooks and Shannon Martin.

Pair and Drury are juniors and have occupied spots in the singles flights since their freshmen seasons. Pair advanced into the third round of last year's regional finals and Drury, according to Freidinger, might move to doubles play at various points in the season.

The team also has experience in their doubles flights.

The teams of Mark Yager-Tom Cunningham and Craig Siwarga-Joel Trubilowicz each won matches in the opening week of this season and all four earned their varsity letters last year.

Also figuring into the mix this year will be George LaBlance, Wally Pair, Gabriel Fonseca, Lisa Miller, Molly Arnold, Cailin Dulaney, Leslie Pollard and Russ Ward.

Despite a lot of players, Freidinger's club is far from set. Slots are filled based on how well players weave through their challenge matches against teammates in practice. With the season beginning so close to the end of spring break, Freidinger said they haven't had adequate time to establish the pecking order.

"We need to get on with our challenges," she said. "We have a lot of kids who want to work their way into the lineup.

"We've got some more experience and that's good. I'm not sure where we'll stack up as far as consistency, but that's true of every team this time of year."

The club has more contests scheduled this year, including a stretch of five straight home matches on Tuesday, April 27 vs. Boyne City; Wednesday, April 28 vs. Petoskey; Tuesday, May 4 vs. Traverse City; Wednesday, May 4 vs. Grayling; and Thursday, May 6 vs. Glen Lake. All matches begin at 4 p.m.

The club is also excited about playing in the Boyne City Invitational at 9 a.m. Friday, May 7.

"It'll be good competition and we'll get a good look at all the teams before conference and regional finals," Freidinger said.

State wants more information about alleged building inspector violations

By Laurie Lounsbury

It will be a long time before Beth Inman's lawsuit against the county for wrongful termination is decided, but at least some of the allegations in her lawsuit appear to be valid.

Letters from the State Department of Consumer and Industry Services to the county's attorney, and to James Eisley, an electrical inspector for the county building department, raise a lot of questions. In fact, the state had enough questions about alleged violations that they are requiring the county, Eisley, and Eisley's son, Mark Eisley, to provide more detailed information to them. The county and Eisley had already responded to allegations brought by Inman, but their responses weren't enough.

In a letter to Laura Dinon of Plunkett and Cooney, attorney for the county, the state official wrote the following:

"An administrative review of the response has determined that the County of Charlevoix has failed to address many of the allegations contained in the complaint filed by Beth Inman.

"Further, the review has also uncovered additional areas of concern which will require a more thorough and detailed accounting by the county.

"While the county admitted that James Eisley did conduct inspections on projects which Eisley Electric, Inc. was the contractor, it is required that each of the allegations be addressed individually for an accurate and full accounting of the admitted violations in a case-by-case manner."

The letters from the state are signed by Scott Fisher, director of the Office of Local Government and Consumer Services.

The letter from the state to James Eisley says the following:

"It has been found that the information contained on the permit applications, specifically the 'service only' permit applications, does not match up to the inspection request and inspection report information...

"In some cases, the scope of work contained on the permit application is understated to a great degree, allowing for a lower permit fee to be charged to Eisley Electric, Inc. In other cases, it appears the required plan reviews have not been conducted prior to the start date of the work. Additionally, it appears that inspections have been conducted and approvals granted, on projects where no permit has been issued."

The story behind Inman's lawsuit has more plot twists than a John Grisham novel.

It began last winter, when Margaret (Beth) Inman was fired from her secretarial job at the Charlevoix County Department of

Let the games — Venetian games — begin

The 1999 Venetian Festival will "sport" a new emphasis on athletic activities. Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Inc. has unveiled plans to establish a week-long menu of events, appropriately named "The Venetian Games."

Venetian board president Dan Barron, announced that Dean Davenport has been appointed to serve as the organizer and commissioner of "The Games."

"Dean has an excellent background, having served for 18 years as the Charlevoix Summer Recreation Director, along with 14 years of service as the Director of Athletics at Ferris State University," Barron said. "Dean has recently developed an outstanding junior golf program in Charlevoix. His exceptional expertise will facilitate development of 'The Games' as an integral part of the Festival."

Planning for "The Games" is proceeding through establishment of a Games Advisory Committee. Davenport indicated that golf, tennis, softball, soccer, sailing and swimming events are under consideration, in addition to the Three-on-Three Basketball Tournament and Jeff Drenth Memorial Foot Race, which have been a part of recent festivals. Although the array

Building Inspection. Inman claims she was fired for blowing the whistle on Eisley. While working for the county, she had submitted 25 examples of Eisley's alleged violations of the electrical building code to the state.

After filing her complaint, the county claimed Inman was laid off due to restructuring in the building department. The county's response, filed in the lawsuit, also said that Inman's claims should be thrown out because "she reported the violations for vindictive reasons, in an attempt to discredit her husband's former employer."

Inman's husband, Pete, was formerly employed by Eisley Electric Inc., the company owned by James Eisley, where his son Mark Eisley works. He left to take a job at Top O' Michigan, where he is currently employed.

Inman filed a wrongful termination lawsuit under the whistleblower's act against the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection and building official Kenneth Doty in January. Since then, the state has been evaluating the allegations made by Inman.

When the county responded to the state's questions, they maintained that Eisley never, at any time, inspected electrical work performed by his company, Eisley Electric.

The state, however, has received information that "is in dispute with the county's statement," according to state correspondence.

Also at issue is the possibility that Mark Eisley was illegally getting electrical permits by submitting a letter or affidavit to various county building departments, using his father's contractor license number.

"As you are now aware, this practice is in violation of the State Electrical Code," the state informed Mark Eisley.

Both James and Mark Eisley were asked to submit very specific responses to each of the 25 allegations of violations to the state by April 12.

The county was supposed to submit specific information to the state by April 19.

County commissioner James Behling confirmed that the county and Eisley have sent more detailed information to the state.

"Every claimed violation had an explanation," Behling said. "Even the made up ones."

One question the state had for the county commissioners was why Eisley was reinstated as electrical inspector after accepting his resignation. According to the state's information, Eisley resigned when building official Ken Doty officially notified the county board of "improper procedures." He was apparently reinstated shortly after tendering his resignation.

In earlier interviews, county commissioners Jim Behling and Carl Price adamantly denied that Eisley had ever been asked to resign or had been rehired. Behling still maintains that position.

"He never resigned," Behling said. "When things first came to light, the information kind of looked bad for Jim, and a letter of resignation was typed up for him to sign. But when more information came to light, I wouldn't let him resign.

"Anything else you hear is completely a lie," Behling said.

County commissioner chairman Phil Johnson claims to have no knowledge of the situation.

"I don't know anything about it," Johnson said. "All of that would have been handled by the personnel committee."

Inman's wrongful termination lawsuit doesn't hinge on the state's investigation of Eisley, but if Eisley is found guilty of building code violations, it could give her whistleblower case more strength.

Corrections

Geoffrey Reynolds recently sent us a clarification regarding The Inn garage, frequently referred to as the Carriage House, which used to be located on Charlevoix's north side.

Reynolds wrote the following:

"According to a company brochure, in 1924 the Pere Marquette Railway added, among other amenities, 'a commodious garage' located off Cherry Street. This building, commonly misidentified as a carriage house, was used by The Inn guests to store their automobiles while they stayed at the hotel. Most cars were brought up by boat by their drivers while the owners traveled by train. The building was used as a garage until the Foster Boat Company acquired it for manufacture of boats for the war effort and named it Plant No. 2. In 1953, the building was purchased by Robert Schleman's South Bend Tool and Die company. In later years it became a warehouse and eventually was abandoned all together. It is highly unlikely the property was ever used as a carriage house, thus the name is inaccurate.

"I hope this sets the historical record straight concerning this property's accurate name."

We thank Geoffrey Reynolds for providing us with this accurate, historical information.

In our spring sports section that ran in the April 21 issue of the Courier, some members of the tennis team were incorrectly identified. The correct caption and photo are shown here. We regret the error.

Teachers honored for their years of outstanding service

By Jamie MacMillan

Anne Shindorf

Myrna Boss

Careers that began with role-playing in makeshift classrooms in the family garage and a desire to leave an imprint on young students' lives have earned a pair of local teachers Outstanding People In Education awards.

The awards, sponsored by the Michigan Education Association, honor excellence in education on both a faculty and support staff level. The awards will be presented at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, May 6 at a banquet at Treetops Resort in Gaylord.

This year's recipients from Charlevoix schools are Anne Shindorf, an eighth grade science teacher, and Myrna Boss, a teaching assistant in the elementary school's learning center.

Both credit the spirit of the children they teach as driving forces behind their successful careers.

"They keep me feeling young, staying up with their trends, fashions and music groups," Shindorf said. "It's never boring teaching eighth grade, it's a microcosm of the world."

Shindorf, a Crystal Falls native, began teaching 31 years ago after graduating from Northern Michigan University. She's been an anchor in the science department at the middle school since 1970, first teaching sixth graders.

In reality, her career began as a child when she turned the family garage into a classroom, complete with rows of makeshift desks, bookshelves and an old blackboard.

"It was ridiculous," she laughed, "but when it rained or when kids were bored they came in for the day."

In her real classroom, Shindorf keeps students motivated with hands-on activities from building molecules and solar systems to ecology and earth day projects, which she labeled as her personal favorites.

"I love the idea that it helps kids figure out that everything is connected," she said. "If you mess with one thing, you mess with everything."

It's a necessity to teach kids the cold, hard scientific facts, but she has made a point of bringing in a language arts style of teaching into her classroom from giving students a free hand in choosing their projects to assigning them time outdoors for consecutive days in order to write down thoughts of their environment.

"It's important to find different ways to reach the kids rather than having them just memorize facts," she said. "It's neat to watch them do different experiments, it makes for a lively place."

The award is special for Shindorf, who, at the end of the school year, is retiring from her position.

"I'm just delighted, what way to end," she said. "My father always told me that any award you receive from your peers is the best. It's nice to know that people whom you admire also think that much of you."

For Boss, she began as an elementary school assistant in 1978 in order to work a schedule which matched that of her family. She had an inner pull to work with children.

"I had never done any work like this before, but I love kids, so why not try it," she said. "I love kids, I especially enjoy working with those who need special help."

She has spent eleven years as a steadying hand in the school's learning center for specially challenged pupils. She also spent eight

One-room schoolhouse served students well in the past

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

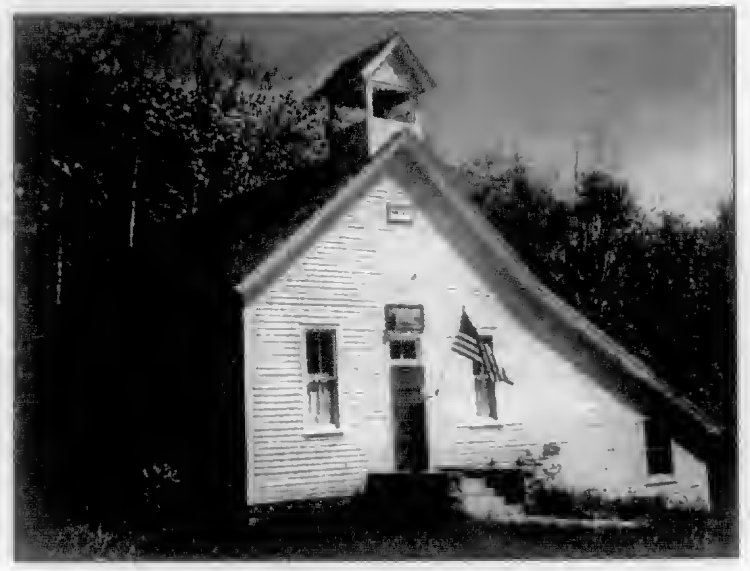
By Edith Gilbert

People are talking again about new locations and a wish list for the middle school, high school and elementary school that includes bigger playgrounds, band rooms, science laboratories, computer and technology equipment and, of course, an auditorium.

Before we look down the road to the future, let's look over our shoulder down the Boyne City Road to the Undine one-room schoolhouse and see where we're coming from. Located on Mike and Rhea Dow's property, the couple lovingly restored the building and are using part of it as their office. As a child, Rhea Dow attended a one-room schoolhouse, and feels a special kinship for the restoration project.

I talked to several people around here who attended the Undine School, grades one through eight, including retired farmer Clayton Smith. He showed me all the books dating back to 1886 that his grandfather kept while he was secretary on the school board. In his graceful script he carefully recorded that the original site was purchased for $25, and that it cost $536 to build the schoolhouse — plus $30 for two privies. The net balance at the end of the first year was 72 cents. Over the front door hung a sign that said "Standard School," which meant that it had earned state approval. This one-room schoolhouse was attended by local children, along with a predominance of Native Americans, until 1942, when it was closed.

Another Undine graduate, Carol Anderson, attended the one-room schoolhouse from 1931 to 1939. She continued her education at Charlevoix High School and graduated from Western Michigan University as a home economics teacher. Ardeth Wieland went to Undine from 1933 to 1941, and is a graduate of Michigan State University, where she majored in physical education and biology. Their early grade school report cards show students being taught not only arithmetic, reading, spelling, geography, history, drawing, penmanship, art and music appreciation, nature study, deportment, but also "courtesy to others."



The Undine Schoolhouse

These subjects were taught by one teacher in one room for 15 boys and girls, grades one through eight. The humungous teacher's salary was $85 a month, which, after all, was still a lot better than the $75 a year that Miss Addie Lewis received in 1886!

The women recall singing "America" every morning in accompaniment to an organ, and at noon they helped their teacher cook a hot lunch. Some of the "big" boys helped carry wood for the wood-burning stove. The government supplied surplus food to the schools consisting of potatoes, cheese and apricots, among other items.

According to Smith, discipline didn't seem to be much of a problem then — "Nothing that a little talking to wouldn't fix." Only Smith's wife, Maude, who attended the Horton Bay one-room schoolhouse, remembers her teacher flogging the boys' behinds with a rod because, guess what, they had gone outside and eaten leeks when they had been told not to! Maude recalls that this severe punishment caused a bit of a furor among the parents.

Parents farmed, logged, fished and struggled to make ends meet in those early days when jobs were plentiful only in the summer, but scarce during the long winter months. Still, they taxed themselves and sacrificed their meager incomes in order for their children to learn to read and write.

Today's parents, however, want more for their children than the three Rs. Because the competition is greater, they want them to be computer literate. They want them to have language skills. They want them to be motivated in the sciences. They want them to be proficient in mathematics. They want them to be challenged physically. Undine, the one-room schoolhouse "where one grade listened to the other" was outdated and abandoned in 1942, just as the middle school building located "in the valley" is outdated and should be abandoned today.

It's up to the voters and the school board to set their sights again toward the future. (In 1917 parents blazed a trail by installing a telephone in the one-room school house because they felt it was "darned" important!) Now it's time we decide what is important to us and most of what we want hinges on more space in a new location. We need to come up with a far-sighted plan that meets not only the needs of today, but also the challenging needs for our children tomorrow.

June art fair is a great idea

Dear Editor:

It saddens me to read and hear that there is opposition within our community to the art fair scheduled for our village on June 26 and 27. When I first heard of this event, my reaction was — how wonderful. I believe the more events that can be scheduled for our downtown area, the better community we will become.

Our downtown merchants, restaurants, and motels all benefit from the influx of visitors to our community who have much money to spend and who do not hesitate to do so!

Unfortunately, many within our own community do not patronize our downtown merchants on a regular basis, instead choosing to spend their dollars in Traverse City and other large cities.

Over the years I have patronized our local artists and have influenced many visiting friends to do likewise. I will continue to do so.

Our community has the wealth during the summer season to support unlimited events. The only thing that could ruin the Charlevoix Art Fair in August would be it becoming too ingrown and restricting itself to only friends and associates of the organizers.

My thanks to our Chamber of Commerce and our Downtown Development Authority, both of whom continue to work hard to make our community one of the very most charming in all of our country. May we all do our best to expand and enhance their efforts.

Sincerely,
Maryann Beaumont

Why wasn't art fair committee consulted about new art fair?

Editor:

What a surprise and shock to read the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce has decided to have an art fair in June and has hired someone to "run it." Did anyone happen to remember the 40 years spent on building the quality Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair always held on the second Saturday in August?

Shame on you, Charlevoix! With all the creative minds in our great town, this is the BEST idea anyone

Do parents know what their children are doing?

Editor:

All of us are aware of the tragedy in Littleton, Colo. Before parents ask the school administrations and teachers how they are going to make our schools safer, they need to ask themselves several questions: Do you know where your children are in their free time? Do you know what they are doing? Do you know who their friends are and anything about them?

You may think the problem children are a long way off in Colorado, or Arkansas, or some other place, but I can tell you it exists right here in Charlevoix, Mich. Which of your children fired 30 paint balls at my house and made and threw five bottle bombs in my yard last September? Are you raising a would-be terrorist under your roof?

The $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of these perpetrators, offered by myself and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, is still outstanding.

Loyalty to country should be shown May 1

Editor:

The first of May is Loyalty Day and, as such, it is a day filled with activities designed to involve the community in an overt display of loyalty to flag and country. Therefore, every loyal citizen should eagerly participate in the festivities in an effort to make this Loyalty Day the best observance ever held.

Loyalty Day has become a tradition with the Veterans of Foreign Wars. With the passage of Public Law 85-529 on July 18, 1958, the VFW won a long, hard battle to have Loyalty Day approved by Congress. However, this day does not belong to the VFW alone, it belongs to all Americans.

Most Americans have heard the quote, "Ask not what your country can do for you — ask what you can do for your country." This is a sound principle to live by in a country such as ours, where the government is elected by the people and where the public is expected to participate in the governing press.

In these times of global political turbulence, Americans should pause and ask themselves, "What have we done and what are we doing now to demonstrate to the world just how we feel about our country?" After all, ours is a country that has held high the beacon of liberty and asked nothing of the other nations except that they send to her, in words of Emma Lazarus emblazoned on the Statue of Liberty, "Their huddled masses yearning to breathe free." Ours is a country that has taken the abstract ideal of "Freedom and Justice of All" and made it into a way of life.

We must pledge ourselves to maintain a free society in which loyalty is always encouraged and respected. For without loyalty, the United States, the world's best hope for a future blessed with freedom, cannot long survive. And, if we fail, the flame of freedom will diminish and fade forever. So join in and become a part of the Loyalty Day Celebrations; Let the world know that Americans are behind their country and that America, because of this, is still a strong, vibrant nation.

VFW Post 3675, Boyne City, will sponsor a Loyalty Day observance on May 1. The rally will be held at Veterans Memorial Park in downtown Boyne City. The flag-raising will be done at noon, this will be followed by comments from Mayor Thema Behling, WWII Army nurse, State Representative Scott Shackleton, State Representative Andy Neumann and VFW State Commander Ernie Meyer.

Please come and join us and show your support for this great nation that we live in.

Sincerely
Dennis W. Andrick

We need a new CD store in Charlevoix

Dear Editor:

I think that we should have a CD store here in Charlevoix. One reason is that Kmart doesn't always have what we want. It is really important to the teens here in Charlevoix. When we had the Harmony House they always had what we wanted, and they always had customers. The Harmony House drew customers from everywhere. Now we have to drive to Petoskey or Traverse City to get what we want.

If we get the store I think that there should be headphones to test the music with. That would be really nice. If we get the music store it will draw people from other towns around. Those are just some of the reasons why we should have a new CD store in Charlevoix.

Thank you for taking time to read my letter, and hopefully we will get the CD store here in Charlevoix.

Sincerely,
Amanda Towsley

Coast Guard Cutter Acacia names Sailor of the Quarter

Petty Officer Michael D. Popovich was recently selected as Coast Guard Cutter Acacia's "Sailor of the Quarter" for the period of Jan. 1 through March 31, 1999. This distinction hallmarks Popovich's exceptional job performance as well as the highly noteworthy dedication he has demonstrated toward his shipmates and the United States Coast Guard. The coveted selection represents the "best of the best" for a given quarter in terms of job performance and embodying the Coast Guard's core values of "Honor, Respect, and Devotion to Duty."

As a Quartermaster, Popovich's primary duties revolve around the safe navigation of the Acacia and the highly accurate positioning of 135 aids to navigation that the ship maintains throughout Lake Michigan and northern Lake Huron. Popovich is also responsible for maintaining all nautical charts, navigational publications and related equipment on board. Serving as the ship's Health and Wellness Coordinator, he has actively sought out creative ways to encourage his shipmates to remain physically fit. Popovich has been active in the community through his participation in Acacia's "Partnership in Education" program with the Charlevoix Elementary School, as well as through his participation in the men's recreational basketball league.

Originally from Lewes, Del., Popovich reported aboard Acacia in April of 1998 from the Coast Guard's training center in Yorktown, Va. During the forthcoming months of May and June, Popovich has volunteered to temporarily augment the crew of the 270 foot Medium Endurance Coast Guard Cutter Bear, as that ship embarks on a four month deployment to Europe and the Mediterranean.

Planned Parenthood offers Safe Prom kits

With high school proms coming up soon, Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan is promoting responsible decision-making, by again offering free pre-prom information kits. The packets include brochures such as "Fifty Ways to Express Love and Affection Without Having Sex," and "Many Teens are Saying No," which includes response lines to help kids resist pressure to be sexually active. Information on drinking and driving and drug use is also included.

"We first offered the pre-prom kits in 1994," said the group's education coordinator, Lori O'Neill. "We are well aware that, for many young people, there is the expectation that they will have sex on prom night. For many teens, prom night is their first sexual experience, and this decision may be influenced by the use of alcohol and other drugs."

Planned Parenthood wants to encourage teens to make healthy, responsible choices. The prom kits can give them the information they need to resist pressure and to develop other, fun ways of celebrating this special night. For those teens who decide to be sexually active there are also brochures on birth control, sexually transmitted disease, and condom use. The kits do not contain condoms. Many parents give the kits to their prom-going children, creating an opportunity for them to talk about responsible choices.

The kits are available at the Planned Parenthood health centers at 1003 Spring St., Petoskey or 1135 E. Eighth St., Traverse City. For more information call 347-9692 or 929-1844.

Cieslak of Beaver Island; one sister, Britta B. Cieslak of Beaver island; and one brother, Galen B. Bartels of Beaver Island.

Ruby Washburn Smith

Ruby Smith, 88, former co-owner of Camp Charlevoix, died at her home in Tryon, N.C. Sunday April 25, 1999. She had owned the nationally known private boys' camp with her husband, Ken, from 1948-1971.

Ruby was the Camp Mother to thousands of boys who spent their summers in the idyllic setting on the shores of Lake Charlevoix. She dried tears for those who were homesick, sewed on name tags for those who arrived at camp unprepared, and even ironed shirts for the staff if they had an all-important "date" in town. The special responsibility of the Camp Mother was modeling kindness, concern for others and living up to the camp motto, "I would be true for there are those who trust me." Feature articles were done on her at various times in Michigan papers, highlighting her particular brand of charm and caring for others.

Ruby was born in Brimley Mich. March 15, 1911. She married the late Kenneth Walldorff Smith in 1936. They had two children, Peter W. (Rusty) of Charlevoix and Julie S. Thistlethwaite (James) of Westwood, Mass. Two grandchildren, Mark (Milana) and Andrew also survive her.

Ruby was a charter member and past president of The Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church and a member and past president of Chapter CV of the P.E.O. Sisterhood. Ruby was voted Michigan's Loveliest Mother in a statewide contest run by The Detroit News in 1950.

Ruby and Ken retired to Tryon, N.C. in 1974. Her retirement years were full and enriching. She founded the Peppermint Shoppe Guild to provide an outlet for handcrafted items to support The Meeting Place, a senior citizen center. The Meeting Place honored her on "Ruby Smith Day" in 1989. She was a former member of the Polk County Commission on Aging. She and Ken were winners of the "Second Wind Award," a national award for retirees who make a difference. The Norman Boyer Award (for the individual who gave the most for the cause of mental health in the area) was awarded to her in 1979. She was also the recipient of the Volunteer of the Year Award, given by the Governor of North Carolina.

Services for Ruby were Wednesday, April 28 at Tryon Presbyterian Church, and burial followed. The family has requested that there be no flowers. Memorials may be sent to The Meeting Place, 500 Carolina Drive, Tryon, N.C. 28782, in her name.

OF BLESSINGS

By Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God

Does God Like Religion?

Religion is considered a good thing by most people, since religious activities do seem to have a positive effect on many aspects of our community life. Various recent studies have shown that prayer, attendance at services of worship and other spiritual practices positively affect one's health and longevity. Likewise, religious people tend to be more trustworthy, kind, patient and do good things that make life better for everyone.

However, a careful study of scripture would bring one to the conclusion that God Himself probably doesn't like religion very much.

"How can that be?" you ask. "Isn't God what religion is all about?" Not really. Religion isn't about God, it's about us. Religion is about our efforts to make ourselves acceptable to God; about our attempts to make ourselves pleasing to Him by our own efforts. Through religious practices we hope to find the security we think we need to reach toward God. Religion, we hope, will make us OK with God.

God Himself makes it clear that religious acts are not able to make us satisfactory to Him. "All of us have become like one who is unclean, and all our righteous acts are like filthy rags..." said the Prophet Isaiah (Is. 64:6 NIV). The plain truth is that all the good stuff we do is not good enough. The idea that we can earn God's favor by doing good works originates in the mind of man, not in God's revelation. The reality is that everyone is separated from God by sin and all the good things we could ever do can't change that. Our only hope is divine intervention.

In contrast to divine intervention, religion merely offers feeble attempts at human reformation. And that's the reason God doesn't like it! He has a far superior plan!

Jesus didn't like religion because it put the focus on what we do should do for God instead of what God desires for us and in us. Jesus minced no words with the religious people of His day whom He rebuked for leading people into empty religious rites and rituals rather than in a living relationship with the Heavenly Father. He reprimanded them for teaching people that good deeds could be the means to gain God's favor instead of simply receiving His Grace in their lives.

If God doesn't like religion, what does He like? The answer is simple; a transforming relationship with Himself. Religion emphasizes our need to reform ourselves. A transforming relationship emphasizes our need to simply allow God to change us on the inside. Religion leans toward commands and judgement. Relationship leans toward grace and forgiveness. In religion, the most important concept is "what we do." In relationship, the most important concept is "what God is doing in us." Religion says we have to be good. Relationship says we are changed and empowered to be like Christ. Through religion we try to change ourselves. In relationship God changes us.

The core message of the Bible is that God loves us and calls us to a life-transforming relationship with Himself. That reality is capsulized in the best-known verse in the Bible, John 3:16, "For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life." (NIV) God invites you to trade in religion for a transforming relationship with Himself. Any local pastor would be happy to introduce you to Jesus. Give a call.

Area golf courses are already seeing plenty of action

By Jamie MacMillan

Area golfers are already taking advantage of the string of sunny days we've had by taking to the links at every opportunity. All area courses are now open for business.

"We had a nice day and were really busy on Saturday," Joel Gohlman, manager at Dunmaglas said.

Headed into a new season, golfers will notice some subtle changes to their favorite playgrounds.

At the Belvedere, a new underground sprinkler system has been installed and it includes 680 new sprinkler heads scattered throughout the course. The system will retrieve water from a new pond built on the course between the 13th and 15th holes, maintenance supervisor Rick Grunch said.

As a hazard, however, the pond should not be much of a factor.

The pond sits in front of the 13th tee, so drives should go way past it. It could be a mild factor on the 15th. In distance, the pond can be reached with a long drive, but only a severe hook on that shot would splash the ball into the water.

The club will rebuild most of its tee boxes to give golfers more space and resurface them to eliminate "bumpy, humpy rows," Grunch said.

Senior tees with gray markers will be added to the third, fifth, sixth, 12th, 16th and 18th holes and the club's practice chipping green has been increased from 2,500 square feet to 7,000, Grunch said.

At Dunmaglas, tee boxes were added to a pair of holes along the front nine in order to give golfers a better view of the hole and more options with their drive, Golhman said.

The second and sixth holes, two of the more demanding holes on the course, should be easier to score on with the addition of tee boxes. Both holes veer with a dog-leg to the right, but with tee boxes tucked deep in the trees it has been difficult for the average golfer to position himself for a good second shot after the drive.

Instead of enlarging the tee area, the club has added new ones to increase the angle and decrease the yardage from the tee area to the dog-leg.

"It should help the middle to high handicap golfers score better," Gohlman said. "It'll be a different look, more wide open. People should be able to pop it right out there."

The municipal course and the Charlevoix Country Club remain relatively unchanged going into the 1999 season.

The country club does welcome a new golf pro this year.

Steve Good, a 10-year golf pro, has moved to the area with his wife, Chris, and 8-month-old son Matt. Good worked at Point Woods in St. Joseph prior to replacing Marc Wilson as pro at the country club.

Good reports that they hope to open the club by the middle of this month. The course is really wet, especially along hole No. 10, and a string of dry weather might be needed before the first tee-off of the season, he said.

Golfers are wasting no time hitting the links while the weather cooperates, as it has for many days now. (Courier file photo)

High school performers head for state finals next week

Actors can be seen at Charlevoix High School Wednesday, April 28

There is another Charlevoix team making a serious run at a state finals, as 19 drama students qualified during last weekend's regional competition.

The regional tournament followed successful performances at districts the weekend before. The state forensics competition is difficult in that it includes schools from classes B through D. Regional took place at Central Michigan University, and included schools from the northern counties and as far south as Grand Rapids.

Rayder students qualified in five of 10 divisions, and were represented in final rounds on Saturday in seven total divisions. No school at the tournament had more performers qualify for the state finals. Those finals will take place at Western Michigan University in one week.

Those who made it to final rounds at regionals include: Andrew Motz and Nikki Bunting in Extemporaneous Speaking, Laura Borths in Sales, Chris Smith in Informative, Caleb Levengood in Storytelling, Zach Hopkins and Jessie Murray in Prose, and The Cats and Jesus Christ Superstar groups in Multiple competition.

Regional results, and those going to the finals are: Jessie Murray and Zach Hopkins, who placed first and third respectively, Caleb Levengood who took first place, Nikki Bunting and Andrew Motz who placed fourth and fifth respectively, Jesus Christ Superstar cast members who placed first, John Sell, Dan Bennett, Nick Kessler, Mike Czerkes, Nick Grossberg, Tyler Lieberman, and the Cats Multiple cast, who placed second, of Abby Paterka, Laurel English, Jessica Corey, Jenny Wojan, Sabrina Wynkoop, and Kim Cunningham.

The community will have an opportunity to see these performances on Wednesday, April 28 at the Charlevoix High School. The Performing Arts students are anxious to show parents, teachers, friends, and press the intricacies and pressures involved in this type of dramatic competition. Pieces are all difficult, sometimes humorous, sometimes moving. Performances at this level can include no errors if a state championship is to be won. The skills of this group puts them in a league with the best drama students in the state of Michigan. A contingent of qualifiers this large makes a strong statement for the high school program and the skills of its participants.

Charter school band students earn top honors

Band students at Northwest Academy recently competed in the Junior High Solo and Ensemble Festival at Glenn Lake Public Schools.

Students were awarded according to the following criteria:

First Division — Represents an excellent level of performance and musicianship for the event being judged.

Second Division — Represents a good performance, but not worthy of the highest rating because of minor defects in performance or ineffective interpretation. Shows much accomplishment and promise.

First Division awards for solos went to Rachael Bellairs, trumpet; Brenna Bergman, alto saxophone; Joe Sievertson, alto saxophone; CJ Toton, baritonee; Josh Toton, tuba; and Christy Trudeau, flute.

Second Division award for a solo went to Carolyn Bellairs, flute.

Third division award went to Kelly Hand, clarinet.

First Division Awards for ensembles went to the trumpet trio of Rachael Bellairs, Brandon Lundgren and CJ Toton; the brass ensemble of Rachael Bellairs, trumpet, Brandon Lundgren, trumpet, CJ Toton, baritone, Craig Wellscott, trombone and Josh Toton, tuba; the saxophone quartet of Brie VanDamm, alto sax, Jake Mailloux, alto sax, Vickie Stevens, tenor sax and Carolyn Bellairs, baritone sax; the percussion ensemble of Mickey Bohn, snare drum, Brad Long, tenor drum, Brad Hice, bass drum/cymbal, and Jeruscha Lundgren, timpani, triangle and cymbal.

Second Division awards for ensembles went to the flute trio of Carolyn Bellairs, Erin Buckner and Elizabeth Sheppard; a clarinet duet of Jackie Riley and Vickie Stevens; and a clarinet duet of Kelly Hand and Celia McGee.

The students will now move on to state competition at the state band and orchestra festival April 30.

of such events will be designed to appeal to all age groups, there may also be a special focus on youth activities.

"We wish to gain community input as to the variety of games and sports which would have community wide appeal," Davenport said. "We hope to schedule the events throughout the week and will need community support in both organizing and managing our Games."

The Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Inc. is a nonprofit corporation which acquired the proprietary rights and interests in the Venetian Festival through an agreement with the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce on March 30, 1999. The board of directors is comprised of Steve Andreae, Dan Barron, Dean Davenport, Brownie Flanders, Dave Novotny and John Winn.

Barron also confirmed Davenport's sentiments that community support is the key to successful establishment of "The Games." Volunteers are asked to contact Dean Davenport through the offices of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, at 547-2101.

Reading Rainbow experience was a big hit with young ones

The Charlevoix Elementary School gym was packed with parents and their kindergarten students who attended the Reading Rainbow Family Activity Night Thursday, April 22. The evening included a Reading Rainbow video and book presentation, a take home activity, and every kindergarten student received a free book.

The event was sponsored by Building Bridges, a project of the Char-Em ISD Early Education Consortium and free books were provided by the Charlevoix Parent Teacher Organization. (Photos courtesy of the PTO) years between her learning center stints working in the library.

"I do a lot of one-on-one work," she said. "Some of them live with such a struggle and to see them succeed, you can hardly express how happy it makes me."

Boss is a registered medical nurse. Prior to working for Charlevoix schools, she worked in the offices of Dr. Robert Martin.

Boss recently had to take some time off for back surgery and recalled it as a tough time because during her recuperation she knew exactly what students in her classroom were doing to the day and hour. Now, with a healthy back, she is rejuvenated and said a day never begins with any disappointment because she has to go to school.

Success and reaching a student, she said, is not seen so much in the classroom on any given day. Instead, it's lifetime accomplishment.

"My gratification comes when students I had years ago come up to give me a hug and tell me what they're up to," she said. "It's a thrill in itself knowing that what we do isn't for just one day, one year. They take it with them for the rest of their lives."

"Having never, ever dreamed of doing anything like this, I can say it's been a wonderful experience."

Free skin cancer screenings offered by area dermatologists

Free skin cancer screenings will be offered from 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, May 5 at Dermatology Associates of Northern Michigan, located in the former Burns Clinic at 516 W. Mitchell in Petoskey. The free screenings are co-sponsored by Northern Michigan Hospital and Dermatology Associates of Northern Michigan. The screening is intended for people 18 years and older.

The screening is part of a national campaign to encourage early detection and teach prevention of skin cancer, the most common and deadliest form of cancer. The national skin cancer detection program is in its 14th year and is being launched to raise awareness of malignant melanoma and urge Americans to regularly examine their skin for signs of this serious form of skin cancer.

The free skin cancer screening examinations are being conducted by dermatologists C. Robert Charles, MD and Roger A. Potter, MD of Dermatology Associates of Northern Michigan.

"Our message is that everyone should develop a lifelong habit of examining their skin," said Charles.

"This free screening is the dermatologists' version of the Great American Smokeout where everyone gives up cigarettes. But instead of giving up a habit, we are asking people to start one — to examine their skin."

Skin self-examinations consist of periodically looking over your body for any changes in the size, color, shape or texture of a mole, the development of a new mole or any unusual changes in the skin. Any of these signs should be reported to a dermatologist or personal physician right away.

A survey commissioned by the Academy of Dermatology showed that fewer than one third of Americans currently examine their skin for signs of melanoma and more than half don't know the signs of melanoma. Dermatologists want to change this because when treated in its earliest stages, melanoma can be cured. If not treated early, the disease can quickly spread to other parts of the body and can be fatal.

There are 80 appointment times available at this year's screening. Participants should make appointments as early as possible to guarantee a place in the screening. For more information and to make the required appointment for the screening, call Northern Michigan Hospital's HealthAccess at 1-800-248-6777.

Cable power restored to Beaver Island

Beaver Island residents are once again getting electrical power from the mainland, now that the underwater cable has been repaired.

The 27-mile long cable that sends power from the mainland to the island was repaired late Tuesday night, April 20.

After relying on the island's emergency backup generators for power since Feb. 26, power was restored through the cable Thursday morning, April 22.

Wolverine Power Supply Cooperative, the power supplier for Great Lakes Energy Cooperative, said the cause of the cable failure is still unknown. They are continuing to test and analize the cable fault. The damaged portion of the cable was raised 74 feet out of the water to a barge, where repairs were made. Workers replaced about 600 feet of cable that was damaged by water penetration.

Fire danger increasing with dry weather, burn permits needed

Don't Light That Fire Without A Permit!

State law requires a burning permit for any open burning done whenever the ground is not snow covered. Call 547-0086 to obtain a burning permit, and to learn about local burning regulations.

Burn permits will only be issued for one day at a time, as the fire danger conditions permit — days with cool lemperatures and calm winds.

Never leave your fire unattended, even for a moment. State law requires that outdoor fires be attended at all times.

Extinguish your fire completely with water. Using soil alone is not sufficient, and may actually allow it to escape control later.

For more information, call the city fire department at 547-3279.

New eye care center opens in Charlevoix

Touting the motto that "Clear vision begins with Eye Health," a local husband and wife team are new proprietors of Charlevoix's latest optometry facility.

Drs. Robert and Kimberly Molter opened Eye Health of Charlevoix in February and the couple are hosting an open house from 2:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. Saturday, May 1 at their 103 West Hurlbut St. facility. Chris Etienne, a local frame stylist, will be on hand to showcase different eye wear. Snacks and prize drawings available.

The couple moved to Charlevoix in 1996 from Fort Meyers, Fla. They opened an optometry branch in Kalkaska and have now expanded to include a branch in their new home town of Charlevoix. Both are board certified optometrists.

The business will provide locals with comprehensive, full-service optical care including eye examinations, laser refractive services, contact lens services, eye surgery referrals, including pre- and post-operative care of cataracts and glaucoma.

Eye Health offers a wide variety of fashion and standard eye glass frames and a series of high-tech contact lenses, including Zeiss and Transition lenses. All major brands of contact lenses are available.

"We want to offer exceptional service and products to members of our community," Robert Molter said, "and personalized care for our patients and quality products."

In the short time that the couple has lived in Charlevoix, the Molters have become active members in the community, especially with youth activities. Kim is a regular volunteer at the local elementary school and Robert coaches little league, 4-H soccer and Char-Em youth hockey teams.

The couple has two children, Alex and Roberta, both of whom are students at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

In addition to being members of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, they are members of the Community Reformed Church and the Charlevoix Summer Band. Robert plays the trombone and Kim plays the French horn.

Eye Health of Charlevoix is a year-round business open every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The business can be reached at 547-7800.

The Master Dealer program has been carefully designed to establish standards of performance and operating procedures for Sea Ray dealerships. Our dealers have supported this with a huge amount of enthusiasm, and the results are tremendously gratifying. We've seen important improvements in overall efficiency, plus a host of things that mean a lot to our customers including facility improvements, additions to sales and service staffs, more convenient hours, and better contact and follow-up with boat buyers and service customers."

The Master Dealer program began in 1997. To date 19 Sea Ray dealers with 26 qualifying locations have achieved Master Dealer status.

Rayder track teams take third in a six-team meet

Both Charlevoix track and field teams placed third in a six-team meet at Benzie Central in the squads' only action last week.

The boys' team, with four first place finishes and solid running from their sprinters, earned 91 points. They finished behind Benzie Central, 148 1/3, and Kingsley, 120 1/3, but ahead of Manton, 76, Traverse City-St. Francis, 43 1/3, and Mason County Central, 12.

Jeremy Rafacz and Matt McClellan won the 100 and 200 dashes respectively and teamed up with Colin Carr and Brian Cornett to win the 4 X 100 relay. Todd Schaperkotter added a first place in the high jump event.

Carr was runner-up to his mates in both the 100 and 200, Hal Evans placed third in the 200 and Ben VanGuilder placed third in the 400.

Also earning points for Charlevoix were Erik Butcher and Nick Martinchek, placing fourth and fifth in the 800; Adam Kline, Carr and Wally Wujcik finishing in third, fourth and fifth in the shot put; and the 800 and 3200 relays teams, both of which came in third place.

In the girls' meet, the Lady Rayders matched the boys with a third place finish behind Benzie Central, 167, and Kingsley, 150. Despite not earning any first places, the girls ended with 67 points, ahead of Traverse City-St. Francis, 58, Mason County Central, 38, and Manton, six.

The highlight for Charlevoix was a trio of mile runners who earned points and finished in times which, if duplicated during regionals next month, would qualify them for the state finals.

Liza Gorkiewicz paced the group with a second place finish in a time of five minutes, 47 seconds. Katie Swenor was third with 5:48 and Tricia Hodge was fifth with 5:49. The state qualifying time is 5:58. In regional qualifications, teams may only enter two athletes in an event unless others have topped the state mark in at least one previous race.

Four runners earned points in the 800, with Gorkiewicz placing second, Swenor, third, Hodge, fourth, and Leslie Hoffman, sixth. Gorkiewicz's time of 2:34 also bested the eventual state qualifying time of 2:37.

Other individual results for Charlevoix were: Meghan Vogel, fifth 300 hurdles, sixth shot put; Jenny Miller, fourth long jump; Laura Schairbaum, third 400; Karianne Miller, sixth 300 hurdles.

In the relay events, the 800 and 1600 teams placed third and the 400 and 3200 teams placed fourth.

Both squads will participate in the Clare Invitational at 3:30 p.m. Friday, April 30.

Softball team loses doubleheader to East Jordan, JV grabs win

The Charlevoix softball team found themselves on the losing end of a pair of games against East Jordan as the Rayders opened their 1999 conference season.

The Red Devils' Linda Slough limited Charlevoix to just five hits while striking out 10 hitters on the day to pace the 4-0, 5-1 wins.

Courtney Butler was the hard-luck loser, pitching in both games en route to striking out 15 Red Devil batters.

The Red Devils scored three runs on four consecutive hits in the top of the first inning to stake out an early lead. In the night cap, the Red Devils scraped out runs here and there, giving Slough just enough offensive support to sweep the Rayders.

Butler had a pair of hits in the opener and Dena Sheldon smacked a triple. In the second contest, Sheldon and Kim Potter had the only Charlevoix hits.

After a 3-1 start, the Rayders have lost four straight, including 10-0 and 14-2 nonconference losses to Rogers City earlier in the week.

The Rayders, 3-5, 0-2 in league play, continue their season with a home doubleheader against Harbor Springs at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, April 29.

In junior varsity action, the young Rayders earned their first win of the season by taking the first of two games against the East Jordan JVs, 9-4. Tasha Morrison was the winning pitcher for the Rayders, 1-3. The club lost the second game, 26-21, in a wild contest marked by inexperienced pitching, Charlevoix coach Don Potter said.

"Both teams played pitchers that had never pitched before," he said. "It was a real wild time."

The JV Rayders next play at Harbor Springs at 4:30 p.m. Friday, April 30.

Varsity soccer team drops two, JV soccer beats Harbor Springs

Solid defense and physical play couldn't overcome injuries and other line-up shuffles as the Charlevoix girls' soccer team dropped a pair of games last week.

Playing with a makeshift lineup, the Rayders struggled to get any offensive play going in a 2-0 defeat at the hands of Harbor Springs. The Rams countered with a goal in each half, on a long shot by Ashley Price that tucked just below the right cross bar and on a solo rush down the left sideline by Alicia Grambeau.

Returning home last Friday for a match against Marquette, the Rayders had more offensive spunk, placing five shots on goal in the first half, but their scoreless streak was extended into the second half. At the 62 minute mark, Abby Schaperkotter drilled in a goal to tie the score 1-1. Lindsey Carland assisted on the goal. Marquette won the game with a late goal.

"It was an even, well-played physical match," Charlevoix coach Hagen Manker said. "They put the ball in the net and we didn't."

The team is struggling through a rash of injuries and Manker brought up Jamie Murray, Karlee Barnard and Jennifer Rowe from the junior varsity team to fill in. All three are freshmen and Manker noted that he has been pleased with initial contribution.

The Rayders next play at home against Suttons Bay at 6 p.m. Thursday, April 29.

In junior varsity action last week, the JV Rayders struck for three second-half goals and earned some revenge for the program in beating an underclassmen team from Harbor Springs.

Trailing 1-0 at intermission, Danielle Vogelheim paced the comeback shot by scoring one goal and assisting on two others as the team improved their regular season record to 2-0.

Kate Madison and Karlee Barnard scored goals to give the club a 2-1 lead and Vogelheim knocked in the eventual game winner with an assist from Tegan Lawson. The final tally helped overcome a late Harbor Springs' goal.

The JV Rayders next play at Petoskey at 6 p.m. Monday, May 3.

Brooke Block works the ball down the field, with other Rayder soccer players following close behind.
Jamie Murray steals the ball from an opponent before making a run to the goal in last week's action against Harbor Springs.

SCRAPBOOK

Norwood resident among first to die at Normandy invasion

By Nancy Ritsema

In the summer of 1944, headlines and articles about World War II filled the pages of local newspapers everywhere. July 26, 1944 the Charlevoix Courier reported that four more area men were ordered to report to the Detroit Induction Station. They were Alfred Ikens and Kenneth Erber from Boyne City and Eldon Richardson and James Haney from East Jordan.

A column was devoted in the same Courier to the U.S. Navy's plea for more women to join the Women's Reserves, or WAVES. The 246 different jobs done by the WAVES included tearing down and assembling airplane motors and raising carrier pigeons for special communications work. The pigeons were used as messenger couriers.

War photos and letters sent from the Pacific and Europe by local servicemen were featured in the July 26 Courier newspaper. Advertisements urged the public to buy more War Bonds to help support Americans in the war.

July 25, 1944, the day before the weekly published Courier came off the press, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Richardson near Norwood received word that their son, Private First Class Delta Richardson, was killed in action. The Courier quickly added the news story to its Wednesday, July 26 edition and wrote that Delta was the first casualty reported in Charlevoix County since the invasion began. Readers of that 1944 paper understood the newspaper report that referred to D-Day, June 6, 1944. The War Department telegram the Richardsons received informed them that Delta died 10 days after the incredible Normandy, France invasion began.

Notes from Norwood

Delta "Socs" Richardson grew up on a farm southeast of Norwood. Like many of his WW II generation, the farm he and his family lived on had no indoor plumbing, no electricity or tractor to do the farm work. Folks worked hard and played hard.

"Nobody had more fun than Socs," Delta's brother Doyle said. "He didn't have much money, but he always had a good time."

Delta and his brother Doyle bought a one-acre wood lot near Atwood on the old Indian gardens in the 1930s after the big trees had been logged off by lumber companies. For $5 each, they owned an acre of small, second growth timber.

Cutting the trees with an axe and crosscut saw, they hauled wood home with a horse team and bobsled. With a buzz saw attached to an old truck, they buzzed the trees into firewood lengths and sold it in Norwood for $1.25 a cord.

When the war started, Doyle was called up by the Selective Service to report for a pre-induction physical examination, but due to an elbow injury when he was younger, he was deferred.

"The army said I'd never be able to shoot a gun with that elbow," Doyle said.

"But Doyle was a crack shot with a rifle all his life," Doyle's wife, Ida, added with a laugh.

Doyle went to work on the Great Lakes on steamships such as the Andrea Vorhees for the next four years. When Doyle's brother Delta turned 21, he passed his army physical and was inducted into the infantry.

"They took the cream of the crop," Doyle said. "You got down to Detroit where they were taking those boys and you were treated like cattle — prodded, ordered around, pushed through.

"Six months after my brother was in training in the army he learned he was going to be shipped out overseas without a pass to go home first. Well, Delta just went over the hill, AWOL, absent without leave. The cops caught up with him down by Grand Rapids. When Delta told them his story they told him to keep going. They would forget they ever saw him."

"He was home for three days. Saw all of us and his girl, Elaine Empey.

"We got news Delta had been killed on July 25. We hadn't heard from him for a while and mother kept saying he was just busy.

"When they shipped his body home, we met the train at Charlevoix and the local funeral home picked up the casket. A soldier came along with the casket from Detroit and stayed the whole time until we buried Delta. The soldier stood by Delta's casket every day and then went to a motel for the night.

"We were never allowed to look inside the casket. All we really ever saw of him was his dog tags, his I.D. tags, and his purple heart decoration," Doyle said.

Delta Richardson entered the service at the age of 21, trained at Camp Wheeler, Ga., and entered the army infantry. He shipped out to England early in 1943 and was stationed there until D-Day in 1944. By then, a total of 12 million Americans were in uniform.

Over 7,000 ships landed Delta and the American and British troops on the north coast of France on June 6, 1944. The soldiers, fighting for every foot of ground against heavy resistance, fought one of the bloodiest battles in American history.

Delta led an ordinary life as a small town boy from rural Norwood before he entered the armed services. He attended the Norwood school, along with his brothers Milton and Doyle. A few years after graduating from school, Delta and his generation of young men trained for combat. Delta exchanged his workaday world and good times of innocent fun for the privations and disciplines of war.

Young Norwood school boys and girls and older area residents did their part to help servicemen. Charlevoix County agricultural agents, school commissioners, war board chairmen, Scout leaders and others arranged for the collection of milkweed pods for War Hemp Industries, Inc.

The United States Government requested 2.2 million, 50-pound mesh bags of milkweed pods to supply the 1.5 million pounds of milkweed floss it would need to manufacture life jackets for the Army and Navy. They wanted the floss by the fall of 1943 and again in the fall of 1944.

The milkweed floss from two bags of pods filled one life jacket. Stations to buy milkweed pods were located throughout each county. Folks were paid 15 cents a 50-pound bag. If the bags of pods were air-dried for a period of time to become "crackly," they brought 20 cents a bag.

Every school-age youngster was urged to collect pods for at least one life jacket. Almost 95 percent of those pods would eventually be collected by school children on farms and in communities across America.

"I remember the milkweed pod collections," Doyle said. "But I was working as an oiler on the steamships on the lakes and didn't take part in them."

World War II touched the lives of all those living in northern Michigan, but few were touched as deeply as the Richardson family, for whom the D-Day invasion of Normandy, France is not just a fact in a history book, but the battlefield where a brother gave his life in service for his country.

Resisting the rage: What kids need to be safe and sane

By Laurie Lounsbury

In the aftermath of the Colorado shootings, a two-part question is ricocheting about in the minds of every American: Why did it happen, and how can we prevent it from happening again?

The special interest groups have stepped in front of media cameras to proffer their solutions — gun control advocates say get rid of the guns, the NRA says give guns to teachers and principals, religious leaders say put religion back into schools, the conservatives say put kids in school uniforms, censor Hollywood, bar kids from the Internet, get rid of violent video games — the list goes on and on.

But the list doesn't really answer the first question: Why did it happen?

The "things-to-do" list might cure some of the symptoms, but it doesn't cure the problem.

What makes kids violent? What makes kids drink? What makes them do drugs or smoke cigarettes?

Why are some kids able to resist the negative influences that exist in our society, and others fall victim to them?

The answer is complex, yet at least part of the solution is remarkably simple.

Instead of trying to banish all the evils in society, the Search Institute in Minneapolis, Minn., has tackled the problem from the opposite direction. Their approach is to develop the qualities kids need to successfully resist the urge to engage in violence or unhealthy behavior.

If armed with these assets, kids are less apt to feel the need to drink or use drugs — they are less likely to vent their anger or rage in violent acts.

In Charlevoix, Alanson and Mancelona, the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is piloting a program that will help develop the assets kids need to make healthy choices. The group received a grant from the Michigan Abstinence Partnership to develop the pilot program. With limited resources, the group decided to target middle school children with their first efforts. In the future, they hope to expand the program to include all grades in the school districts.

Last Friday, a group of people involved with the asset program met to discuss the concept of developing positive assets in kids.

"I think we have to get the ball rolling, but then it will really snowball," said Mary Ann Cox of the health agency.

Forty assets are targeted as qualities a child needs to develop the self-esteem, confidence and moral fiber to resist negative influences.

Broken down into general groups, the assets include: Support from families and others; empowerment, which comes from feeling safe and secure in their home and community; boundaries and expectations, so that young people know what is expected of them; constructive use of time; commitment to learning; positive values that will guide their choices; social compe-

Waste hauler finds way to deal with Cedar Ridge Landfill shutdown

The effects of the Cedar Ridge Landfill closing to the public last Saturday has been a topic of discussion at two Charlevoix Township meetings last week.

Tom Rankl, owner of Top Rank Disposal, appeared before both the township zoning board of appeals and planning commission with special requests so that he can build a transfer station for his waste hauling business.

Rankl's family owns 40 acres of property on the township's south side off of Bells Bay Road, adjacent to the right angle where the road turns and heads toward Southdown Inc. cement plant.

It is Rankl's current intent to build two, 2,000 square foot pole barns on the property, which would serve as Type B transfer stations for his business.

A transfer station is an aboveground facility which temporarily stores waste while it is repackaged for more efficient delivery to a landfill destination.

Each of Rankl's proposed buildings will be limited to 200 cubic yards of capacity as part of state regulations for Type B facilities. Rankl said waste would remain on the site for no more than 24 hours before it's shipped away.

Prior to appearing in front of the township, Rankl had to convince the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) that his plan would meet the regulations.

Two transfer stations aren't permitted on the same property, nor are they permitted on adjacent properties owned by the same person. To get around that, the Rankl family deeded a smaller portion of their 40 acres to their son.

In a letter dated April 21, the DEQ informed Rankl that their land transfer put them in compliance with regulations.

In an interview, Rankl said that Waste Management's closing of the Cedar Ridge facility to the public accelerated his plans to build a transfer station on that property. He called it an "emergency solution to a pretty dramatic problem."

"We bought the land fully intending to do this, but we were going to sit on our hands for awhile," he said. "Now, with Waste (Management) shutting down the landfill, it changed the timing of everything."

Zoning Board of Appeals chairman Chuck Center inquired about Rankl's plans if the landfill reopens to the public.

Rankl explained that since Waste Management merged with USA Waste, disposal costs have risen to the point where he needs to look beyond that company's landfills in order to stabilize costs for his customers.

After three years of keeping waste collection rates the same, Rankl has raised his own rates twice in the last six months to respond to Waste Management rate increases. He hopes to return to cost stability with a transfer station.

With a transfer station, he said his fleet will be able to complete their daily routes and, with the waste repackaged, one truck could transport the trash to landfills in Montmorency and Presque Isle counties.

"As a business, this is something we've been looking to do for awhile," Rankl said.

Eventually, he wants to construct a Type A transfer station on the Bells-Bay property. Type A facilities are larger, with at least 500 cubic yards of daily capacity. They also have stricter DEQ regulations through well monitoring and leachate collection.

Rankl is unable to build the larger facility now because it's not permitted until the revised Charlevoix County solid waste plan is approved. When that happens is anybody's guess, since the state of Michigan has placed a moratorium on waste plan approvals while it addresses some concerns from the waste industry regarding restrictions in some of the counties' plans.

Rankl asked the zoning board to grant him two, 40-foot side yard setbacks so he could place the two Type B facilities as close to each other as possible. When he can expand to a Type A facility, he will connect the buildings with a roof with the middle portion serving as a maintenance building.

At the planning commission level, Rankl was given a special use permit, allowing a transfer station on the land currently zoned agricultural. There were two stipulations to the approval: one, that he pave the first 50 feet of his driveway, and two, that he operate the business only between 5 a.m. and 10 p.m.

"It's nice to have another option and Top Rank gives us a good service," said audience member John Campbell at the public hearing.

How many assets does your child have?

This questionnaire will give you an indication of your child's assets. It is only an indicator, and is not intended as a scientific or accurate measurement of developmental assets. Take a moment and ask your middle or high school student to answer the questions with a "yes" or "no" response.

The Courier is interested to know how the kids in our community are doing, so if you would like to return this form after your child has filled it out, you may do so ANONYMOUSLY. Just send the completed form to: Charlevoix Courier, P.O. Box 117, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

This is not an official survey, and the Courier is not doing this in conjunction with any health or school organization. It simply addresses a topic — kids' health and safety — that we believe is newsworthy.

ASSETS

tencies, so they can build relationships and succeed in life; and a positive identity, which means that young people have a strong sense of their own purpose, worth and promise.

The study points to things such as jobs in the community, reading for pleasure, volunteering time to other groups, high expectations from parents and teachers, neighbors who take responsibility for monitoring other kids' behavior, and creative activities in music, art or theater as important qualities.

As Hillary Clinton pointed out, it takes a village to raise a child. That is true with the asset development program. What it doesn't take is a lot of money.

"It can be little things, like knowing the name of every kid in your neighborhood," Cox said. "When you greet a child by name, it makes them feel good about themselves."

Another simple, yet often overlooked gesture is a hug or a pat on the back. At one school using an asset program, a volunteer was posted at the school's front entrance to offer a hug to every child coming to school. Some adults feared the idea might be considered corny by the students. They were wrong.

"There was a line a mile long of kids waiting for their hug," Sundmacher said.

For an asset development program to work, every shopkeeper, teacher, parent, preacher and day care provider needs to grasp the asset concept.

"Everywhere those kids are, throughout the community, we need to do the best we can," Cox said.

"It has to be a community attitude to embrace our kids," Sundmacher added. "It's not a guarantee, but research shows the higher the assets, the lower the risks."

When talking about the risk factor of kids getting into trouble, Cox recoils at the use of the term 'high risk.'

"Every single kid is at risk," she said.

Jay Daughtry, the after school program director in Alanson, agrees.

"We live for the superficial in our society," he said. "We need to look beneath the surface. Some kids appear to be doing fine, they're quiet and well-behaved, but you never know what's going on underneath."

In Charlevoix, the abstinence grant will provide for parent education classes, literature on the asset program, and activities for kids. The middle school eighth grade students will all have an opportunity to go through the ropes course at Camp Daggett, an activity that builds character.

Judy Clock is working as the activity director for the middle school children. While the program just started two weeks ago, Clock has already formed groups to offer sewing, guitar lessons, bicycle maintenance lessons, softball, basketball, and fishing activities.

Some of the groups will continue to meet through the summer.

For more information about the asset development program, call Mary Ann Cox or Jane Sundmacher at the health agency, 547-6523.

OPINIONS

Developing assets in kids is the only sensible solution

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

I, for one, am throwing myself full strength behind the concept of developing the assets kids need to resist the negative pressures in our society. (See related story, page 1)

In the final analysis, I think it's the only effective solution.

Like many other parents, I did my share of ranting and raving after the Colorado shootings.

I squawked endlessly about the senseless proliferation of guns and automatic weapons in America.

We don't need 'em! The Constitution wasn't written with assault rifles and automatic pistols in mind!

But with the powerful presence of the NRA, that's a losing battle.

I complained vociferously about Hollywood, violent movies, pro wrestling and stupid video games.

I even found myself agreeing with an ultra-conservative minister who said violent movies and music should be heavily taxed, just like alcohol and tobacco, because they are just as bad for the health of our kids. Charge $50 for the price of admission to a violent movie, $35 for a Marilyn Manson CD, and then see who's buying it.

However, it is virtually impossible to rid ourselves of the bad influences in society. We have Constitutional rights and First Amendment rights, like it or not, that protect both the good and the bad.

It slowly occurred to me that changing the Constitution was an impossible, and undesirable, way to tackle the problems we have in society.

Developing assets in kids is the only real solution. It addresses the problem, not the symptoms.

Developing assets in kids is not a new concept.

When I attended high school in a Chicago suburb, we had service leagues, based loosely on the concept of high school sororities and fraternities. The difference was that the mission of the leagues was service-oriented as well as socially oriented, and it was not a popularity contest to join a league.

All the names of freshmen students were put in a hat and each league president (an upperclassman) took turns to draw names out of the hat to select members.

Every Saturday morning, each league headed to a different location on the south side of Chicago to work with underprivileged kids. We read stories to them, helped them with their spelling or math, and then played with them.

It was a give and take relationship we developed with those kids. We taught them to read "The Cat in the Hat" and they taught us how to dance, roller skate and sing rhythm and blues tunes.

When thrust into the role of tutor instead of student, we suddenly found ourselves advising the adolescent kids to stay away from drugs and drinks. We were the leaders — we were the role models for those kids — and we took our responsibility seriously.

Our league meetings were social gatherings at a member's home with a loose agenda to discuss our volunteer efforts. I found myself in the exotic surroundings of my new ethnic friends, eating Greek and Lebanese food their mothers prepared for the meeting.

Of my four years in high school, my time spent with the league was probably the most valuable learning experience I had.

Since members of leagues were picked randomly, I became friends with girls I probably would never have taken the time to get to know, if left to my own choices.

More recently, I visited my son, Tom, at his prep school in New Hampshire. They clearly understand the value of developing assets. At his school, they have what is called a "Plus Five" program. The school expects all students to develop strength in five areas, above and beyond the curriculum requirements.

The five categories are: Arts, music and culture; leadership; service to community; outdoor wilderness ability; and athletic endeavors.

The program has been in place for quite some time, and the kids all really enjoy it. They spend free time working to clean up riverbanks and public parks, they go on wilderness expeditions, and are given free time to pursue art or music activities outside the school.

In the spring, the school holds a Plus Five awards program, and it was obvious that the kids are really into the program. Students handed out awards to their peers who excelled in each of the five categories, then gave a special award to the student who excelled in all five categories.

There is no reason programs like the ones I mentioned couldn't be formed in Charlevoix.

None of them require much money. They require some volunteers, some creative ideas and a community that will get behind the concept and make the extra effort to treat kids well.

Letters to the editor

Chamber of commerce deserves to have its own art fair

Editor:

After reading the many letters in the Courier concerning the Waterfront Art Fair, I think it's time to set the record straight. Having been co-chairman and chairman of the fair for 18 years, I am probably in a position to do so.

The Waterfront Art Fair was started in the 1950s when Tom Symbols was head of the chamber. The chamber used the art fair money to bring people into town and also as income. Everyone on the committee was a volunteer and anyone in town who wished to be on the committee was welcome. The artists were screened very carefully and we managed to make the Waterfront Art Fair one of the very best in the state.

Being chairman was really a year-round job — when I had to move away from Charlevoix I made the mistake of turning the chairmanship over to the wrong person. When the new committee took over, they decided that the chamber could pay the bills (insurance, mailing, advertising, etc.) and they, the committee, would keep the money. They also refused to let anyone but who they wanted on the committee. (I know, because when I moved back to town I asked to work again — not head the committee, just to work — and I was turned down).

They put the chamber in the position that, unless they wanted to go on paying the bills and getting no return — nor be allowed any input — they had to give the Waterfront Art Fair away.

It's really funny that a small group of people think they own the Waterfront Art Fair when none of them worked all those years to make it what it was.

The Waterfront Art Fair belonged to the chamber. It should still belong to the chamber, but it was stolen away. I, for one, am delighted that the chamber is again going to have and art fair, and that it will be a true, really juried show and not what the Waterfront Art Fair has sadly turned into.

Local artists don't support concept of second art fair

Editor:

How much would our community benefit from yet another art fair, since we already have one of the finest art fairs in the country?

We would like to suggest an alternative type of fair or show. This show might call upon area businesses who retail items that focus on yard and garden environments. Their booths would educate and promote garden enhancement. The chamber could raise money as well as promote still a more beautiful community along these lines. This would beautify Charlevoix by adding colorful flowers, shrubbery, walks, fencing, etc.

We commend the Charlevoix Garden Club and the Petunia Committee for all the work they have accomplished. The chamber could expand on this great beginning by encouraging the citizens to further plant in their yards. The publications of books and magazines as well as television shows on the subject of home gardening seem to have skyrocketed in recent years, indicating an avid interest on the part of the homeowner.

The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair, always held on the second Saturday of August, is the second oldest art fair in the state and is now in its 41st year. As potters who have participated in many art fairs in the last several decades, we know from experience as well as word of mouth from other exhibiting artists that this fair is one of the more highly regarded art fairs in the country. For this, we commend the wisdom, tenacity, and many hours of work by the Waterfront Art Fair Committee.

From experience, we feel a second art fair will take away from the impact of our noted Waterfront Fair. It is our hope that the chamber will consider the suggestions for fund-raising projects such as proposed by the Bolts in their recent letter to the editor, one of which we have expanded upon in this letter.

Middle school students need lots of activities

Dear Editor:

I strongly suggest that the sixth graders at Charlevoix middle school get more after school activities. At the Charlevoix middle school there are only two after school activities, Odyssey of the Mind and Future Problem Solvers. A lot of kids aren't into that. That's why they want other after school activities, such as volleyball, cheerleading, football, also a girls' sixth grade basketball travel team. Maybe there could even be a girls' or boys' hockey team. We all think it would be fun to get at least one of the five activities.

Yours truly,
Jaime Pettis

Mt. McSauba could use some new features

Dear Editor:

I think we need some new things at Mt. McSauba. There are only two hills. I think we need two more hills. I also think we need chair lifts because the tow ropes ruin your gloves. I think we need a half pipe made out of snow because I have to go to Nub's Nob to go to their half pipe.

Thanks for your help.
Sincerely,
John Bradley

Dirt is home to lots of living things

By Roger Knutson

We have all probably either heard or read the wonderful Dr. Seuss story "Horton Hears a Who," in which we learn how even small things can make a big difference if they work together and how, if we pay attention and have big ears, we can hear and learn about those small things. No matter how big your ears you are unlikely to hear much if you just listen to your dirt, but if you pay attention you will find out how important small things are and how your garden can flourish and just possibly the world can be a better place.

Ear to the ground

What we all are likely to think of as just dirt is really the home to a remarkable collection of living things altogether too small to be seen, but no less important than the more visible. A teaspoon of dirt from your garden is likely to contain millions of bacteria, tens of thousands of fungi and at least hundreds of mites, insects and worms. None of them are directly visible, but if you pay attention you can tell whether they are there, just like Horton. The health of those invisible creatures is absolutely essential to the best growth of the plants living in the soil.

Next time you are out in your garden, scoop up a double handful of dirt and sniff it carefully. It should smell earthy. An earthy smell is hard to describe, but it combines mustiness, dampness, just a hint of decay and the not-unpleasant part of the smell of old tennis shoes. What we really mean of course is that it smells like all those micro-organisms that are living there. Just like the fishy smell we associate with a freshly caught trout is the product, not of the trout, but of the micro-organisms that are living on its surface, that earthy smell is produced by all the living being in done by those invisible organisms that make dirt into something worthwhile. If it doesn't smell earthy, it may still look like dirt, but it is much less likely to be a place where you can grow the flowers or vegetables you would like to have. Better to think of any handful of garden dirt as a complex city with millions of inhabitants all working to change the soil in ways that make it more desirable as a home for plants; a city that needs the proper mix of organic food, air and good water if its inhabitants are going to thrive. In the long run, the dirt we see is produced by the activity of those micro-organisms, and just as certainly, without them, in the long run there would be no dirt, just rock chips and sand.

What Horton was telling us was to pay attention. Pay attention to a single flower, pay attention even to things too small to see, but that we know are diligently making the world a better place by living their own lives. Don't kill your dirt, feed it and nurture it and your garden will not only survive, but thrive.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Joe Johnston

I'm sure we were all aghast to hear the report about the school shooting and bombing in Littleton, Colo. Many precious lives were snuffed out by two incensed murderers. What a travesty!

It's been over two weeks now, and the report still continues. What is going on with our students? Police were called in to nearly 100 other high schools and middle schools across the country to investigate other copycat students. Bellaire, Cadillac and Charlotte, N.C., just to name a few.

There has been much talk about how to identify troubled, violent kids and make sure they don't explode. But why don't we talk about what produces troubled, violent kids?

Is it because the issues or causes would hit too close to home? Are we afraid that when the dust clears, our children will look just like us?

These violent kids are doing just what they were programmed to do! According to A.C. Nielson Co., in a study done in 1998, some alarming statistics have emerged. On the average, by the time a child is 18 years old, they have seen 200,000 violent acts portrayed as real on television. They have also witnessed 16,000 television murders.

Eighty percent of all Hollywood executives believe there is a link between television and real life violence. Why doesn't it stop? Because it makes too much money. On the average, R to PG 13 movies gross eight times more money at the box office than do PG- or G-rated films.

The computer and the Internet have also played a major role in training these children. Anything you can imagine, you can find on the 'net.

The education system has also contributed to our moral depravity. For over 100 years now, the leaders of our educational systems have systematically eliminated God and Judeo-Christian principles from our textbooks and curriculum. Instead, the sovereign God has been replaced with secular humanism which is teaching our students that they are God and whatever they want to do, they can do. There is very little discipline and it would be very clear to you that most students seem to have an "I own this place" mentality.

Abraham Lincoln once said, "The philosophy of the school room in one generation will be the philosophy of the government in the next." Are we not witnessing this prophecy right now in America? If we do not do something, it will only get worse.

What do we do with the violence? We ban it! Oh, no! Censorship! Censorship is only censorship when someone is being censored or stopped doing what they want to do. So what's wrong with stopping someone from murdering someone else? Last time I checked, murder was still a crime. So let's not glamorize it and make it look like it's an everyday event.

Obviously, the solution to our problem involves all of us responsible adults taking a stand for what is right and good.

We can make a difference if we would all stand up. Maybe we should adhere to the bracelet on our wrist and ask ourselves, "What Would Jesus Do?"

Teens to perform concert at local church

Child Evangelism Fellowship of Northern Michigan presents in concert, T.L.F.C. "Teens Livin' For Christ." The group will be performing the musical, "Because We Believe," at 6:00 p.m. at the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, U.S. 31 and Meech, Charlevoix. Master of Ceremonies will be Dave Malin of Northern Christian Radio.

The concert is free of charge. A free will donation for the Ministry of CEF will be accepted after the concert.

New church holds services at township hall

A new church has been started in Charlevoix, called the Hidden Springs Community Church. The church holds nondenominational services at the Marion Township Hall, four miles south of M-66 on Marion Center Road. Services are at 10 a.m. Sundays, and offer contemporary music.

The Rev. Alan K. Leese is the new pastor. He worked with Calvary Assembly in Central Lake 15 years ago and left to get his master's degree. After graduating, he spent more than seven years as the chaplain of Eagle Village near Reed City. All visitors are welcome.

Harpist to perform gospel music

Linda Rice will be performing a concert at 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 5 at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, 104 State St., in Charlevoix. The event will be a celebration of inspirational gospel music performed on a harp.

Rice is a daringly original harpist and a pioneer in the field of electric harp. She is a brilliant improviser who takes familiar gospel tunes and reshapes them with rhythmic twists and fresh meaning.

There is no charge for the concert. A free will offering will be taken for the Rice Ministry. For more information, call the church at 547-2654.

School will observe prayer day

The prayer session will be from 8:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. Thursday, May 6.

Participants may come and go as their schedule dictates.

Former dentist makes it his business to help others raise money

Having had success with fund-raising in the past, local resident Jeffrey Porter has parlayed those talents into his latest business venture.

Porter, along with his wife, Nancy, have begun Porter and Associates, a business touting itself as "Counsel to Nonprofit Management."

The goals for their eventual clients include development of philanthropic resources, strategic planning, endowment building, major and planned gift consultation and capital campaign management.

"Organizations have to have a plan, know where they're going with a vision on how to achieve that," Jeff said. "That will be one of our focuses."

Jeffrey will lean on past successes such as a 1991 capital campaign which he chaired that raised over $1 million for renovations at the Charlevoix Congregational Church. Prior to venturing off on his own, Porter had worked in a similar capacity for 13 months at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Nancy Porter has had fund-raising experience as a past chair of the Heritage Fund for the Crooked Tree Arts Council. She has also served as president of the local United Way and American Cancer Society.

Both said their desire to open a business with the main service being fund-raising came from the many nonprofit groups in the area struggling to raise the money required to achieve their own goals. Eventually, Porter said, they hire out-of-town and out-of-state firms to do their capital campaigns.

"There is a definite need for consulting in fund-raising efforts," Jeffrey said. "We'll be more available, on site, and be able to cultivate our efforts with a number of visits."

Porter noted that the latest trend in raising funds for well known nonprofit groups is planned gifts. Basically, they're donations to be made as part of an inheritance request in people's wills. Porter spent a week this winter at an Indianapolis branch of the Indiana University for an intense seminar on how to go about setting up those types of gifts.

"The future lies in planned gifts," he said.

The Porters' business can be reached at 547-9516 or via fax at 547-9716. The company also has a web site at porter.assc@northlink.net. The business is located at 109 Prospect St.

Insurance company balks at paying explosion claims

By Laurie Lounsbury

"You are being sued."

Those words, boldly printed in the first line of all complaints, are becoming familiar to defendants in the lawsuits that stem from the Venetian fireworks explosion that occurred July 26, 1997.

Those words must have come as a surprise to the 14 people who are plaintiffs in the fireworks lawsuits.

In the most recent lawsuit filed, the insurance company for Richard Davis is countersuing the plaintiffs in the other related lawsuits.

Citizens Insurance is suing Richard Davis and all of the plaintiffs in the previously filed Venetian explosion lawsuits, claiming that Davis wasn't properly insured for fireworks and therefore the company isn't responsible for paying any claims.

In its suit, Citizens claims that Fireworks North, the company run by Davis, "Was not insured through any policy of insurance wherein it was named as an insured (party) for the fireworks displays put on by Fireworks North, Inc., on or before July 26, 1997." The company said they were not informed by Davis that he operated Fireworks North from his own property.

The insurance company also claims that, at the time of explosion, the trailer involved was not attached to any motor vehicle insured by the company.

"Under the terms of the policy, no coverage is available to defendants, and there is no obligation on the part of Citizens Insurance," the lawsuit says.

Davis is accused by the insurance company of concealing facts to get insurance.

"Richard Davis made material misrepresentations of fact and/or concealed facts regarding coverage he sought," states the insurance company's claim.

Citizens Insurance is being represented by attorney Joseph Harrison of Saginaw. The attorney has asked Judge Richard Pajtas to release the insurance company from any responsibility for damages arising from the fireworks explosion lawsuits, and to rule that the company has no duty or obligation to represent Davis in the cases.

To date, there are 14 people suing the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, city employees, Davis and his employees, the Beaver Island Boat Company and fireworks manufacturers over the blast that killed Charlevoix's Mark Yager and injured about 15 other people.

The defendants in the suits include 11 individuals and five companies.

Scanner dedicated in honor of local residents

Tom and Esther Carey

Tom and Esther Carey, lifetime Charlevoix residents, will be honored at 3 p.m. Saturday, May 8, when the Charlevoix Area Hospital board of directors dedicates the hospital's new C-T Scanner in their name.

The dedication ceremony will be in the Charlevoix Area Hospital Imaging and Radiology Department on the main floor. Refreshments will be served in the hospital dining room on the lower level immediately following the ceremony.

The hospital board of directors wishes to honor the Careys for their many years of service and dedication to Charlevoix Area Hospital. Tom Carey currently is a board member at the hospital, a position he has held for the past 22 years, with the exception of a brief break. He is a past president of the board and is now active in the hospital's Development Council. Esther worked at the hospital as far back as 1944, and she has been a volunteer at the hospital for the past 12 years. She is proud of the fact that she was never late or called in sick once in all her years of service.

Tom is president of the Northwest Michigan Shriners and Senior Warden of the Masonic Lodge. He and his wife Esther are patron and associate matron of the Eastern Star, and he has served on the vestry of Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix. Tom retired from the Horner Equipment Company where he was a regional salesman in 1985.

The Carey's, their seven children, and 16 grandchildren will be at the hospital for the dedication, as well as staff, volunteers, other board members, physicians and friends.

The public is welcome to attend the dedication ceremony. For more information call Tamara Stevens at 547-8501.

To our community,

Waste Management of Northern Michigan recently delayed its decision to seek a permit for the necessary expansion of Cedar Ridge Landfill. We took that step so that we could fully explain the need for the expansion, and inform concerned community members what a larger Cedar Ridge will mean to our environment.

The expansion is needed because if we continue to accept waste at current levels, Cedar Ridge will be full within six months. Consequently, Cedar Ridge is closing effective May 1 to all customers except for immediate neighbors, emergency situations, and to East Jordan Iron Works to fulfill a contract. We have no choice but to divert all other waste to the next available site located in Waters, MI in Crawford County. Though Cedar Ridge is closing, Waste Management of Northern Michigan will continue to operate and make its regular collection of waste throughout the service area.

We regret that we must take this action because for many years Charlevoix County residents have relied on Cedar Ridge as a model landfill that provides high quality service in an environmentally responsible manner. It is especially frustrating because costs to consumers, businesses and Waste Management will increase due to the added expense of hauling waste to the Waters landfill.

Opponents of the Cedar Ridge Landfill expansion claim the potential for seepage poses a threat to nearby Sear Creek, Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan. Because of Cedar Ridge's outstanding environmental safety record and the fact that the portion of Sear Creek near the landfill is not a permanent flowing body of water, I can assure you the expansion poses absolutely no risk to the environment or our community. Our commitment to safety includes daily monitoring of the landfill, computerized safeguards, and state-of-the-art liners that provide the best protection available. And speaking of safety, Waste Management is concerned that if the landfill expansion is not allowed to go forward, the risk to the environment will increase because of the potential for random dumping in our woods and waterways.

You can help protect our environment, keep costs low and help with our growing community's waste needs in several ways. The first is to recycle items like glass, tin, newsprint and paper products to help preserve our limited landfill space and help the environment in the process. Secondly, if you believe Waste Management has been operating Cedar Ridge in a responsible manner and that the landfill should be expanded to keep costs down and our environment safe, contact your local county commissioner. To find out what commissioner is your representative, call the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at 616-547-7200.

We are committed to working within the guidelines set by Charlevoix County and are confident that the expansion meets the County's criteria. As a longtime resident of Charlevoix County, I would never take steps that would have the potential of endangering our wonderful community, nor would the many other Waste Management employees who also live in Charlevoix County. I welcome you to learn firsthand by calling Waste Management (616-547-2814 or 1-800-782-2699) or visiting your Cedar Ridge Landfill, where our staff will be happy to answer your questions.

Sincerely,

Don Pizzurro

New fund will raise money for Charlevoix

Charlevoix could soon have a healthy supply of money to help support community projects, programs for families and children, cultural events, educational initiatives, environmental efforts and more, thanks to a new charitable foundation.

The new fund, designed to give a financial boost to Charlevoix, has been established within the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. Called the Charlevoix Fund, the endowment will benefit programs and projects that serve residents who live within the Charlevoix School District.

What makes the new fund unique is that the Charlevoix County Community Foundation took the initiative to start the new fund. In the past, the foundation has set up special funds at the request of donors.

The county foundation has more than 80 special funds, each earmarked for a specific use. Some are designed to protect the environment, some provide scholarship money, some help extracurricular activities and sports.

In 1995, a benefactor created a fund called the East Jordan Enrichment Fund. The money from that fund is used exclusively in East Jordan, but can go toward any project that benefits the East Jordan community.

The success of that fund, which now has $1.3 million in it, prompted the foundation board to take the concept to other communities in Charlevoix County.

As a result, there will be a Charlevoix Fund, a Beaver Island Enrichment Fund and a Boyne City Enrichment Fund.

Community foundation trustee and Charlevoix summer resident Wally Klein launched the Charlevoix Fund with a generous gift of $11,000. Wally and her husband, Bob, have grown to love Charlevoix after vacationing in the area for many years, and both are strong supporters of civic programs.

"I wanted to do something lasting to benefit Charlevoix," Klein said. "Establishing this permanent fund with the community foundation seemed like a good way to do just that. The fund will be around to meet the needs of Charlevoix residents, even as those needs may change over time."

Klein's donation was quickly met with a challenge from an anonymous local resident who has offered to match every two dollars raised with an additional dollar, up to $100,000 over the next four years. The foundation has set a goal of raising $1 million for the new fund by 2003.

"When people from other communities see the great work being done in East Jordan, they ask, 'How can we get a grant for our project?' It's sometimes hard to explain that East Jordan has a massive fund in place," said the foundation executive director Bob Tambellini. "With other funds we have, we need to match up the purpose of the fund with the needs in the county. Having community enrichment funds gives us greater flexibility to fund a variety of projects within that community."

The Charlevoix fund is dedicated to improving and enriching life for all those who live and work in the community. The fund is set up as a permanent endowment whose assets are carefully invested. Over the years, civic-minded individuals, families, and local organizations add to the fund, helping it grow and generate the income that's used to support a variety of projects. An advisory committee, made up of local citizens, helps oversee the fund and makes recommendations about what kinds of initiatives should receive support.

Donations to the Charlevoix Fund are fully tax-deductible. And, because the fund is part of the community foundation, gifts also qualify for a special Michigan income tax credit.

"A geographic fund can have significant impact in a town of this size," Tambellini said. "A charitable resource dedicated exclusively to Charlevoix — one that can infuse money into the community year after year — has the potential to do some exciting things. It's a wonderful way for people who care about Charlevoix to do something good and lasting for the town."

In the next few months, Tambellini and foundation trustees representing Charlevoix — Wally Klein, Bill Sherman, Dick Joseph, Vel Kammermann, Scott Beatty, John Riecker and John Frey — will be spreading the news of the fund throughout town. For more information call the foundation at 536-2440.

Girls' softball team led by strong pitching

The Rayders' softball team snapped a seven-game losing streak and evened their record at 7-7 with a pair of sweeps last week over the Johannesburg-Lewiston Cardinals and the Harbor Springs Rams.

With the wins over the Rams, Charlevoix scratched into the win column of the conference standings for the first time this season. Their league record is now 2-4.

The Rayders rode the arm of ace pitcher Courtney Butler to all four wins. The senior struck out a combined 45 batters while allowing just four hits and was the winning pitcher in each contest.

Against Harbor Springs, Butler found herself in pitching duels with Ashley Aklar in game one and with Jenny Brogger in the nightcap. In both instances, Butler had a little more juice in her arm.

She struck out 15 batters while allowing just one hit as the Rayders took the first game, 1-0. The Rayders plated the game's only run in the bottom of the second inning when Shauna Barrett singled home Ann Spang, who had reached first base after being hit by a pitch.

In the second game, Butler, Krysta Pearsall and Spang strung together hits in the fourth inning as Charlevoix scored three runs. Butler added an RBI single in the fifth. The four runs were more than Charlevoix needed as Butler pitched another gem, striking out 11 batters, en route to a 4-1 win.

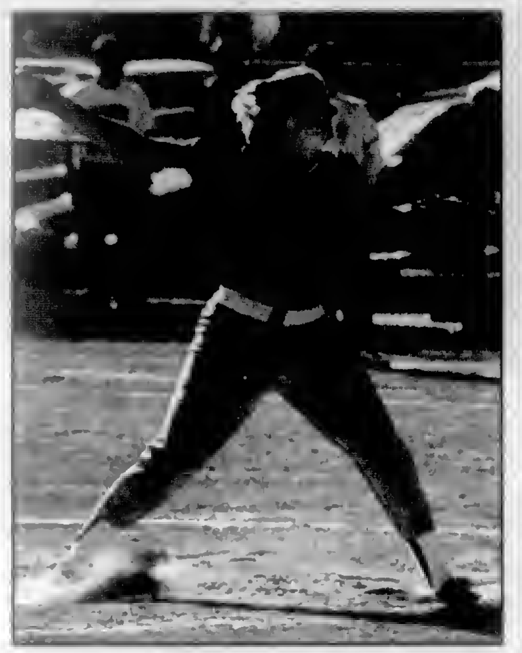
Earlier in the week against the Cardinals, Charlevoix's bats pounded out 19 hits as the Rayders swept the twinbill, 14-1, 10-2.

In game one, Jessi Whitley had three hits and Spang, two, to pace the attack. Pearsall doubled and Butler, Sara Jones, Laurel English and Jennifer Liddicoat each had hits.

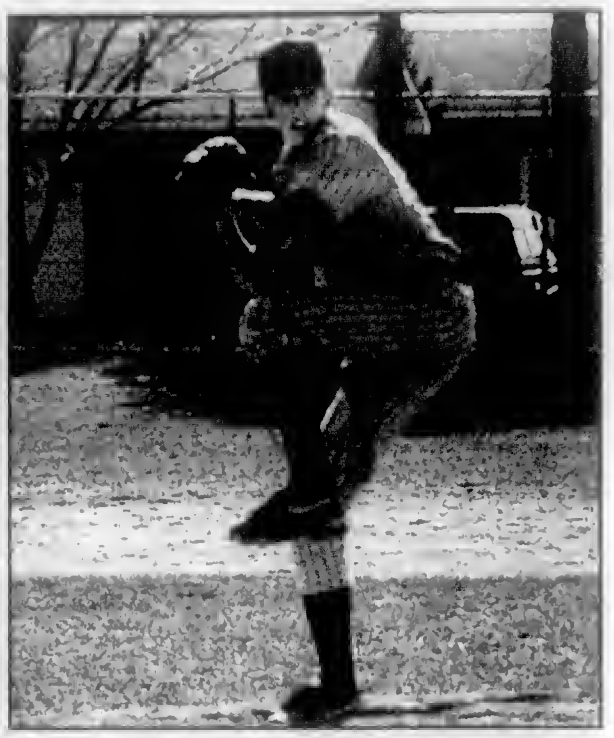
Butler, meanwhile, didn't allow a hit while striking out 10 and walking one.

She doubled and singled at the plate in the nightcap to help complete the sweep. Christine Potee also had two hits in the 10-2 win. English, Pearsall, Spang, Whitley and Barrett also had hits.

Charlevoix next plays at 4:30 p.m. at Traverse City-St. Francis on Thursday, May 6.



Charlevoix senior Courtney Butler winds up with a powerful pitch during a game last week with Harbor Springs. The softball Rayders won four games last week behind the arm of Butler.



Jeremiah Teuscher pitched a complete game victory in the first of two games against Harbor Springs last week. During the doubleheader, the junior belted hits in six straight plate appearances, including a triple and four doubles.

Baseball team sweeps Harbor Springs

By Jamie MacMillan

Two complete games, an impressive hitting streak and the varsity debut of more freshmen highlighted last week's baseball sweep of Harbor Springs.

With the 15-4 and 15-5 wins over the Rams, Charlevoix snapped a four game losing streak and evened their Lake Michigan Conference record at 3-3.

Overall, the Rayders are 7-9.

Jeremiah Teuscher scattered six hits while striking out seven in the complete game victory in the first game. In the nightcap, Shay Hutchison went the distance, allowing five hits and striking out 11. Neither pitcher issued a walk in 10 combined innings pitched.

While solid on the mound, Teuscher also impressed with the bat. He had hits in his first six plate appearances for the day, including four doubles and a triple. He was retired on a fly ball to the outfield in his final plate appearance of the day.

Freshmen Rob Boss, Kevin Evans and Dennis Avery made their varsity debuts. The trio was brought up from the junior varsity team because the varsity squad was down to 10 players due to absences.

Five freshmen have either started or played spot innings during the Rayders' first 16 games of the season.

Boss and Evans smacked singles in their first varsity at-bat in game one. In the nightcap, Boss doubled and singled and Avery cracked a pair of hits. Coach Scott Kelly said the freshmen added a very positive chemistry to the team.

"We will be calling on them and other JV players throughout the rest of the season to add a little snap to our game," Kelly said.

Other highlights included Andy Granath's double and single and Jerry Zeitler's two hits in the first game. In the second contest, Ryan Bier had a pair of hits and Matt Horon homered and singled.

For Horon, it was his sixth home run of the season as the sophomore left-fielder has given Kelly's lineup a power man in the heart of the order.

Kelly has also been impressed with the early season play of Zeitler. Batting lead-off, the freshmen's batting average is hovering around .400 and his on base percentage is close to .600.

Earlier in the week, the club dropped two games to Elk Rapids, 10-0, 10-3, and two games to Johannesburg-Lewiston, 5-4, 15-3.

The Rayders struggled against the Elks, who sit atop the conference standings with a 4-0 record. They scraped out only one hit in the opener, a second inning single by Granath.

They connected for four hits in game two highlighted by a Chris Loper double and an RB1 single from Bier, but the Elks plated five runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to break open a tight contest.

In the non-conference match-up against Jo-Berg, the first inning doomed the Rayders in each contest.

Some errors allowed five runs to be scored against Bier in the first frame of the opener. The Charlevoix senior didn't allow another run the rest of the way, but the Rayders stranded nine men on base en route to the 5-4 loss.

The Cardinals earned six runs in their first turn at the plate in the nightcap en route to a 15-3 win. For Charlevoix, Tyler Lieberman, Tom Kennedy, Granath, Hutchison and Bier each singled.

The team next plays at Traverse City-St. Francis at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, May 6.

JV soccer team remains undefeated, varsity squad drops two

Alpena outshot the Rayders 20-1 in the first half as the Wildcats cruised to a 4-1 girls' soccer victory over the Charlevoix Rayders.

Rayders coach Hagen Manker said his club came out a little flat and the Wildcats took advantage, scoring all four of their goals in the first half, including the last one in the half's waning seconds.

"We were not going to the ball the entire first half and Alpena took every advantage of that fact," Manker said.

Taya Drost scored the Rayders only goal midway through the second half with an assist from Erika Kammermann.

"The second half, credit the play of sweeper Lindsey Carland and Mandy Webb for shutting down their forwards," Manker said. "It was really a team effort in that second half for the girls to come back and play Alpena evenly and then score."

The club followed that effort with a 2-1 loss last Thursday night against Snttons Bay. Manker said the team, despite the loss, played with a greater intensity from start to finish.

After Suttons Bay scored twice in the first half, Kammermann got the club back into the contest with a goal on an assist from Abby Schaperkotter. The Rayders outshot Suttons Bay, 14-9, but couldn't tally a goal to even the score.

"It was a pretty even match both ways," Manker said. "We made two mistakes that they were able to capitalize on and they made one."

"The girls are coming together as a team."

In other soccer action, the junior varsity squad remained undefeated with a pair of wins against Traverse City schools.

Scoring a goal in each half, the JV Rayders topped Traverse City East freshmen, 2-1. Michelle Yaldo opened the scoring on an unassisted rush through the middle of the field.

Karlee Barnard added the second goal, assisted by Danielle Vogelheim.

Goalie Jennifer Rowe stopped 17 of 18 shots she faced, including 10 saves in the second half when East's offense kicked into gear and dominated play.

Coach Carol Madison highlighted the play by Jayme Murray, Tegan Lawson, Marie Serrels, Taryn Drost and Laura Potter as factors in the win.

The club returned to Traverse City on Thursday to play the Traverse City West freshmen.

The Rayders were held scoreless in the opening half while West tallied a goal on a breakaway shot that sailed with the strong wind over Rowe's hands.

Kate Madison tied the score for the Rayders in the second half by converting a penalty kick into a goal. Madison later connected on the game winner with an assist from Yaldo.

The varsity team will host the third annual Charlevoix Invitational this weekend.

At 5:00 p.m. Friday, May 7 Charlevoix will play Roscommon while at 7:00 p.m. Elk Rapids will battle Williamston. The losers of those contests will play each other at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 8. The winners will play for the tournament title at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 8.

The JV team will host Williamston JV for two games this weekend at 6 p.m. Friday, May 7 and at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 8. Both JV games are at Shanahan Field.

Track team collects medals at meet

Charlevoix's track and field teams combined to collect 14 medals at last Friday's eight-team Clare Invitational.

The medal- gathering was paced by senior Todd Schaperkotter who claimed the teams' lone first place in the high jump. His winning jump of six feet, three inches equalled the school record he set earlier in the season.

Schaperkotter also won a second place medal in 110 high hurdles.

Other individual medals included Liza Gorkiewicz, second, 1600 run; Meghan Vogel, second, pole vault, fifth shot put; Katie Swenor, second, 800 run; Tiffany Fisher, fourth, pole vault; and Sarah Dominic, fourth, discus.

Earning medals in the relay events was the boys' team of Jeremy Rafacz, Matt McClellan, Brian Cornet and Colin Carr, who placed second in both the 400 and 800 relays.

Also in the boys' meet was the team of Hal Evans, Ben VanGuilder, Patrick Gowell and Ryan Rafacz who placed second in sophomore-freshmen 400 and 800 relay events.

On the girls' side, the 3200 relay team of Swenor, Gorkiewicz, Tricia Hodge and Laura Schairbaum placed third while the 1600 team of Hodge, Schairbaum, Gorkiewicz and Emily Martinus placed fourth.

In freshmen-sophomore competition, the 400 relay of Karianne Miller, Leslie Hoffman, Kelly Reid and Jenny Miller placed second. The 1600 team of Swenor, Hoffman, K. Miller and J. Miller placed third.

The teams will compete at the Traverse City Invitational on Friday, May 7. The Rayders will showcase their talents in a home meet with conference foes Elk Rapids and Traverse City St. Francis at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 11.

Meghan Vogel finished in second place in the pole vault competition at the Claire Invitational meet.

Tennis team beats rival Boyne City

The Charlevoix tennis team heads into the season's busiest week, including back-to-back home games, on the heels of its first team win of the season.

The Rayders swept all three doubles matches and three of four singles matches en route to a 6-1 win over league rival Boyne City.

Scott Pair continued his strong season in the Rayders No. 1 singles slot, picking up his fourth win of the season, 6-1, 6-1, over Brian Guzniczak.

"I'm really happy with his game," coach Janet Freidinger said. "He's hitting the ball well and deep and he's playing smart. All aspects of his game have improved since last year."

Allen Brooks and Craig Siwarga backed him up with wins in the No. 2 and No. 3 singles flights respectively. Brooks was a 6-0, 6-1 winner over Dan Steed while Siwarga managed a 7-6 (7-3), 6-4 win.

The Ramblers lone victory came in the No. 4 singles flight with Nate Knebl edging out Joel Trubilowicz, 7-5, 6-3.

Charlevoix swept all three doubles flights without dropping a set.

Wally Pair and Dave Drury teamed up to form Charlevoix's top duo and breezed by Tyson Johnecheck-Jason Cyr, 6-2, 6-3.

The No. 2 team of Tom Cunningham-Mark Yager topped John Fry-Adam Cyr, 6-2, 6-3 while the No. 3 team of Simeon Perron-Dennis Mitchell beat Nate Wolf-T.J. Brocha, 6-2, 6-4.

In exhibition matches with the Ramblers, Charlevoix's Michelle Martin topped Dameon Vondra, 6-4.

In doubles exhibition, Charlevoix's Russell Ward and Gabriel Fonseca fell to Ted Polleys-Seth Kachmar, 6-2, 6-0. Molly Arnold-Shannon Martin dropped a match to Dillon Hall-Jared Belford, 8-1; and Ian Mays-Aaron Wilcenski were edged by Victor Stevens-Chris Noblett, 8-6.

The team is amid one of the busiest stretches of the season with home matches on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

IN MEMORIAM 071

In loving memory of Bryan Roloff

... Our son and brother ...
August 3, 1963 · May 6, 1994

Bryan was all he'd want to be.
He had both strength and tenderness,
His spirit was so strong,
His driving force was friendship,
And love for everyone.
His wit was fast as lightning,
He was a comic in disguise,
His priority was his guitar,
And jamming with the guys.

When Bryan plays his songs for God,
The angels will all sing,
The Heavens will shine with their new tune,
What joy to them
he'll bring.
We can still hear his music,
His gift to us is dear,
No one can forget him,
His soul will always be near.
. . . . .

Bryan, we miss you and love you so much!

HAPPY AD 074

Happy 50th Birthday,

Jigs Whitley

Your Family*

Conservancy and Friends of Jordan offer nature hikes

Beauty in our Backyard is theme of nature outings

The Charlevoix County Land Conservancy, 108 Park Ave., Charlevoix, will host a Saturday morning "Beauty in our Backyard" series starting at 9:00 a.m., Saturday, May 8. The first outing will take participants to the headwaters of Loeb Creek in the rich and lovely upland hardwood forests of Charlevoix County.

Hikes will not be strenuous, but they will venture out, rain or shine! Participants should gather at the Charlevoix conservancy office to get maps and directions.

The May 15 outing will be to the South Arm Preserve viewing platform just outside of East Jordan. Spring and summer field trips will include Inwood and Bennett Preserves, the Jordan River and someday, Beaver Island. Please let the group know if you would like to share a place of beauty with us or if you would like to lead an adventure!

Early birds are invited to gather at 8:15 a.m. before the outing to share a favorite nature poem or reading. If you wish to attend, please call the conservancy at 237-9335.

The Birdman will tour Jordan Valley

The Friends of the Jordan will host their third Annual Jordan Valley Nature Tour at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 8. The tour will begin in the parking lot of the Jordan River National Fish Hatchery, off U.S. 131 between Alba and Elmira.

Persons interested in experiencing the natural wonders that the Jordan Valley has to offer — especially bird enthusiasts — are encouraged to attend. The event will feature a few stops throughout the Jordan Valley with short hikes, facilitated by Jerry "the Birdman" Aydlott, a Friends of the Jordan board member.

"The Nature Tour is an opportunity for people to get out and enjoy the creation within the Jordan Valley," said Aydlott. "Each year we see many different species of birds and wildflowers- it's an exciting time of the year out there."

A van will be available to transport participants throughout the tour. Others may follow in their own vehicle. Participants should dress warm (as the Jordan is known to have cold spring mornings!), bring binoculars and/or cameras, bird or flower identification books, insect repellent, and snacks. The nature tour will be completed by early-to-mid afternoon.

For more information, contact the Friends of the Jordan at 533-5063 or "The Birdman" at 536-2704.

Landfill owners back to asking for expansion

By Jamie MacMillan

Less than a week after closing their landfill to the public, Waste Management officials appeared in front of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, pleading with the board to reconsider its vote last year against the facility's expansion.

The appearance at the planning commission meeting came just weeks after the company closed the landfill to everyone except East Jordan Iron Works, which has a contract with the waste company.

Company representatives attempted to convince county planners that their decision last year, based on the proposed expansion area's proximity to a local stream, was a mistake.

Planners turned down an 11.5 acre expansion request from the company last year because the proposal would violate the setback requirement from a permanent flowing body of water as laid out in the county's solid waste plan.

Any landfill area must be beyond 2,000 feet of such a body of water and Sears Creek, to the landfill's southwest, is only 520 feet away.

Waste Management officials, however, point out that the creek is not permanently flowing and should only be bound by the set-

Walking in the honor of lost loved ones

Lindi Edger will once again be gathering pledges for donations and walking 2.5 miles for breast cancer research.

But this year, she will be walking without her grandmother, Judy Edger, by her side. Her grandmother died this year, after a long battle with breast cancer.

So on May 15, Lindi will not walk with, but in honor of, her grandmother. She's not sure just how many times she has walked to raise money for breast cancer research.

"I did it every time my grandma asked me to," she said recently.

Saul DeYoung will also be walking to raise money for breast cancer research. It's something he's done since his mother, Sue DeYoung, passed away in 1992. For the past two years, Saul has also designed the art for the memorial walk T-shirts.

Lindi and Saul are just two of the many children, husbands, sisters and brothers whose lives have been shattered by losing a loved one to breast cancer.

In honor of Sue DeYoung, who died in 1992, and Judy Edger, who died a few months ago, everyone in the area is asked to participate in the Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk, which will start at the band shell in East Park at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, May 15.

After Sue DeYoung died, her sister, Sandy Novotny, and friend Laurie Howell organized the first memorial walk to raise money for breast cancer research. In the following years, the Beta Sigma Phi sorority took over the project, with the Laureate Beta Xi and Preceptor Beta Mu chapters of the sorority organizing the walk.

Edger had been a longtime member of the sorority, and was a vigorous supporter of the cause. Even last year, when she was again battling the disease after being in remission, Edger was a leader in gathering pledges and organizing walkers.

The void Edger left behind can't be filled, but many friends and supporters are trying. This year, Linda Moore and Vivian Mettler are in charge of the walk. Edger's boss, Mark Knapp, paid for new banners for the walk, and has pledge sheets available at his business, Frisbey and Associates, Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate.

Pledge forms are also available at the Charlevoix Fitness Center and Sweet Sam's Java Joint.

The walker who raises the most money will win a two night getaway at the Terrace Inn in Bay View, which will include a continental breakfast and a ferry tour on the new boat owned by Bay Water Ferry and Tours. A variety of local gift certificates will also be awarded to the next 10 highest pledge winners.

For more information about the memorial walk, call Vivian Mettler at 547-9751.

back requirement in place for an intermittent body of water which is 500 feet.

"There is a preponderance of evidence which shows that this is not a permanently flowing stream," Dave Bliss, an engineer hired by the company, told the commission last week. "From time to time you'll find a pocket of water, but you couldn't get your shoes muddy if you try."

The commission was shown a picture of the dried up stream, with dry mud and dead vegetation. Company officials told the commission that they have United States Department of Interior maps which label the stream as intermittent and that they have other maps which say the stream is so long dried up that tillage equipment is allowed to cross over it.

Bliss asked the board throughout the 90 minutes of discussion that, if presented with a new construction permit request, would the commission judge it based on fact and not the interpretation of a map "full of errors."

Commission chairman Tom Weiland said that the stream may be dry now, but that the late winter, early spring drought created weather "far from a normal April."

Planner Jamie Hass pointed out that the commission's hands are tied because, as stated in the solid waste plan, the county must refer to a 1989 map surveyed by the Michigan Inventory Resource System (MIRS) when addressing setback issues. That map marks the creek as permanent.

"It was more of a technicality when you got right down to it," he said of last year's vote. "The board really had no latitude."

Hass added that for his vote to change, the people who drew up the MIRS map must make some sort of acknowledgment of error.

"If it gets to us, it'll get a fair hearing," Weiland said.

The commission, however, was unclear if it could even re-address the issue without first being directed to do so by the county board of commissioners.

Planner Dennis Jason suggested getting legal advice from county prosecutor Mary Beth Kur regarding that issue and whether they could actually overrule the county's solid waste plan even if the MIRS map makers documented their mistake.

Kur was brought into the fray in 1997 to rule on another procedural issue regarding the expansion topic. Her office took about two months to produce that legal opinion.

In the meantime, Waste Management is fulfilling contracts that were signed prior to their decision to close to the public. Last weekend, they hauled waste to the landfill from area townships as part of their spring cleanup contracts.

The planners next meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, June 3.

New dog ordinance is in effect: carry a bag

The new city dog law is officially in effect. Anyone walking a dog must carry with them a container or device for picking up after their dog. It is advisable to carry two disposable baggies, in case one is needed and used, you will have a back-up to show police if you are stopped. The new law requires anyone walking a dog to be able to prove they have a container for dog droppings. Failure to have a container is a civil infraction and will result in a fine of $25 for the first offense, $50 for the second offense and $250 for the third or subsequent offense.

Corrections

In the May 5 issue of the Courier, there was an error in a story about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

It should have said that a new charitable fund has been started in Charlevoix. The new fund is called The Charlevoix Fund.

We regret the error and any confusion it may have caused.

Trailer will show how fast you're going

Watch your speed — literally

Do you know how fast you're going? You will, if you drive past the city's new speed monitoring trailer. The speed trailer will be sitting along different city streets from now until September.

City police chief Dennis Halverson said they leased the sign for the season, hoping it will encourage drivers to obey the speed limit.

"We're looking for voluntary compliance here," Halverson said. "This will raise people's awareness of how fast they're going. It snaps them back to reality when they see their speed flashed in front of them."

Halverson wants all city residents to know they can request having the speed trailer on their streets. The city will move the trailer around to any street in town.

"It's very mobile, so it's not an issue for us to move it frequently," Halverson said.

If anyone thinks speeding motorists are a problem on their street, they can call the city police department at 547-3255 to request having the speed trailer parked on their street.

If no one calls in a request, Halverson said the speed trailer will likely spend most of its time on Bridge Street, on both the north and south sides of town.

The speed trailer doesn't permanently record speeds or issue tickets. In fact, Michigan law requires a police officer to issue tickets in person. The speed trailer's job is simply to alert motorists to their rate of speed.

"The thing we hear most from drivers is that they weren't aware of how fast they were going," Halverson said. "This will make them aware."

Norwood Township drafts a new policy for bidding

Past procedure had the "appearance of impropriety"

By Laurie Lounsbury

What the little hamlet of Norwood needed was a roof for the township hall. What they got was a lesson in municipal government. Tossed in for good measure were some pointers about propriety and policy.

A violent storm last November sent a portion of the Norwood Township Hall tin roof flying. In the aftermath, the storm inadvertently created a maelstrom of malaise among a couple of residents and township trustees.

The trouble began when township officials started making plans to replace the old tin roof on the township hall.

Knowing that their insurance company would pay $8,500 to repair or replace the roof, the trustees decide to solicit bids for the roof replacement.

The board appointed John Pearl Jr., retired contractor, to draw up bid specifications for the roof work. John Pearl Jr. is the husband of Doris Pearl, township clerk.

Pearl Jr. drew up the bid specifications and sent bid requests to four building contractors. Included among the four contractors receiving a request for a bid was John Pearl III, son of John Pearl Jr., who now operates the family contracting business.

Pearl III was the only contractor to submit a bid for the job.

The board unanimously voted to accept Pearl III's bid of $21,125 for a new, cedar shingle roof.

Influencing their decision to use wood shingles was an offer from the Norwood Historical Society to donate $5,000 to the roof project if wood shingles were used. Since the township hall was built in 1884 and currently houses the historical society, it was the historical society's wish that the roof be restored to its original condition.

The Norwood Township Hall was built circa 1884, and is considered a historical landmark in Michigan.

"I voted for it," said trustee Judy Carey. "I think it's very appropriate from the historical perspective to restore it properly."

Township residents Mark Maynard and Vince Currier took issue with both the expensive wood shingle roof and the manner in which bids were solicited. At their urging, township trustee Dave Parsons solicited and received additional bids; one for $8,800 for an asphalt shingle roof and one for $16,800 for a wood shingle roof of a lower grade shingle than the type that Pearl III included in his bid.

The township board didn't act on the two new bids, since they were solicited after the board unanimously voted to accept Pearl III's bid.

What raised the eyebrows of the two township residents were the following facts: The township clerk's husband was asked to prepare the bid specifications; the bid specs were never reviewed by any township trustee or supervisor before being mailed out by Pearl Jr.; Pearl Jr. was solely responsible in deciding who would receive a bid request; Pearl Jr.'s son was the only contractor to bid on the job; and the township accepted, by way of a board resolution, Pearl III's bid without considering any more competitive bids.

Wrangling with Maynard about the propriety of their decision led the township trustees to solicit advice from Jim Young, township attorney.

At their May 5 meeting, Young summarized the situation.

"The bidding process was not illegal," Young told the board. "The law says you have to be fair and treat all bidders equally. Townships never have to publish (a bid solicitation). I think the intent was fair. I don't think there was any intention whatsoever to defraud Norwood."

Young did admonish the board after reassuring them that they hadn't broken any laws.

"To be blunt, this does have the appearance of impropriety," he said. "The preferred route would have been for the board to send out the request for bids."

Young also explained that the board's vote to accept Pearl III's bid was not legally binding, since it was not submitted in the form of a contract.

That had been a concern for the board, since Pearl III had threatened to sue the board if they chose to reject his bid and reopen the bid process.

The situation was simplified when Pearl III withdrew his bid at the May 5 meeting.

"I'll give you some free legal advice," Young told the board after Pearl withdrew his bid. "I strongly suggest you adopt a bid policy."

The board spent the greater portion of the rest of the meeting drafting a policy for their bid process.

The rough draft of the policy requires the board to get written bids for any goods or services costing more than $500. For projects costing more than $5,000, the board will need to solicit sealed bids.

For projects that will cost more than $15,000, the bid specifications will be written by a certified professional and approved by the board. They will publish an invitation to bid one time in a local newspaper and the board may also send requests for bids to contractors.

The rough draft of the policy has been sent to Young for approval before the township board will adopt it.

When a new policy is in place,

Spring: A time to chase squirrels and smell good stuff

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

Ahhh, spring is in the air, birds are singing, squirrels are frolicking, and a certain nine-month-old puppy that I know personally is experiencing the whole seasonal phenomenon for the first time in his young life. Judging by his behavior, I think this is what it must be like from his perspective:

Oh boy, oh boy, oh boy, yippee, yippee, I'm outside on the front porch, wow! I think I can jump down all those steps in two big leaps if I'm really good, I can do it, I can do it, YUP! I did it.

Hey, what are those flying things? How do they do that? Why are they making a twig bowl up in the tree? How do they do that flying thing?

I can do it, I bet, if I try, maybe I need to jump really high, jump again, jump again, wait — maybe I need help getting airborne.

Hey, two-legged dad, stand still a second, let me jump up on your leg first, then I think I can fly.

What do you mean, get down?

Stop saying down! I'm trying to go UP here, and you're not helping!

No, not DOWN — UP, UP and AWAY!

Jeez, OK, I'll stay down if it will make you happy, I like to make you happy, but for crying out loud, you're missing the big picture here. I'm trying to fly! It's a great day for flying!

Wow! Did you see that? That little guy with the bushy tail! Boy, is he fast! I wonder if I can catch up with him.

Hey, wait for me, little guy, I'm coming, I'm coming, hey, can't you hear me? Are you DEAF! Yeah, I'm barking at you, buddy, wait up!

Whoa! How did you climb up that tree? Can I do that, huh, huh? I can do that, I'll just ask for directions. BARK BARK BARK, how do I get up the tree? Come play with me! Hey! Come on down!

Oh goodie, you want to play tag? You go first, and I'll chase you. I'm gaining on you, I'm gaining on you, YIPPEE, I'm going to win — Hey, where did you go?

I see you! You're in the tree again! Come on down! I'll be "It" this time.

C'mon, chase me! Chase me! I'm running, I'm running, hey why aren't you chasing me?

Ooh, look what I found, a brown leaf! I love brown leaves. Gotcha, brown leaf! Ooh, lookie there, a whole PILE of brown leaves. They're mine, they're mine, I found 'em first. Hmmm, I better mark that pile of leaves, I don't want that bushy-tailed guy thinking it's his.

Ooh, there's another pile, I'd better mark it quick, before someone else comes along — yeah, it's MINE now!

Hey, come to think of it, bushy-tail guy, you're in MY tree! I know I marked it last week. Hmmm. I'll mark it again, just to be safe. While I'm at it I'll mark that tree, and that tree, and that little spindly thing that's trying to be a tree, and that bush there, and that shrub there, oh, and the rock there, and that little pebble by the garage over there, and I might as well mark that lawn mower thing in the yard, oh, and that rake thing, I'll mark that too, oh, and there's a new blade of grass, I'd better mark that too...

Woops! I'm on empty. Gotta refuel. Where's the garden hose? Where's the lake?

Oh, goodie, goodie, goodie, here comes my two-legged dad, hey dad, look at me, I'm marking! See, see, aren't I good at this?

Hey, look what I found, a stick! My stick! My stick!

Whaddya mean, bring it here? It's MY stick, I found it, go find your own, they're all over the place.

I don't want to bring it here, oh, all right, if it will make you happy, I like to make you happy.

DROP IT? Why should I DROP IT?

Oh, all right, if you insist.

Hey, whaddareya doing? I bring you my stick, I drop it for you, and you throw it AWAY? Are you CRAZY? That was a really good stick!

If you don't want it, I'm gonna go get it, I am, I am, goodie goodie, I got my stick back.

Whaddya mean, bring it here? I already brought it there! You didn't want it!

Bring it here right now? But I'm chewing! I LIKE chewing! It's this stick or your shoe, you pick.

YIKES! You don't have to use that stern tone of voice. I hear you.

Oh boy, yippee skippee, I see that string thing! That means we're going for a walk all over the neighborhood! I LOVE going for a walk.

So many things to smell, so many smelly things to rub, oh boy, oh boy, oh boy, let's get going, c'mon, c'mon, I'm ready to go!

Let's walk on this side of the street — no, let's walk on that side of the street — no, let's walk on the grass up here — no, let's walk on the grass over there — Yow, quit jerking on that string thing, you're slowing me down — Yow, OK, I'll slow down, but we're wasting valuable time, ya know, there's A LOT of stuff to smell out here! Gotta smell that yellow flower - gotta smell that fire hydrant - gotta smell that pop bottle -

Ooh! Ooh! Look what another dog left in the grass here. Wow! He must have been a REALLY BIG dog. I'm impressed. Gotta smell that too.

Ooh! Ooh! Look at that four-legged furry thing over there.

I think I'll go smell it.

Wow! Look at your hair! You just got really big hair! Hey, thing, how did you get really big hair like that, all of a sudden? Meow? What does that mean? Can I smell your face? Quit looking at me that way. Can I smell the other end now? Ouch! What did you whack me for? You've got sharp claws, did you know that? OK, I'll sniff just a teensy bit back here, OUCH! OK, never mind.

C'mon, two-legged dad, that big-hair thing is mean, and it won't play with me. Boy, wouldn't two-legged mom love to have inflatable hair like that?

Hooey, that was a great walk. Can I have something to eat now? I'll lick your face if you give me something. I'll sit nicely, I know you like it when I sit nicely, and I'll lick your face. Lick, lick, sit, sit, I'm not tired, I want to play, I'm not tired, let's play, let's, let's...

ZZZZZZZZZZZZZZZZZZZZ.

(Wouldn't it be nice to be a puppy for just one day in the spring?)

Letters to the editor

Spring carnival is great event thanks to parents and supporters

Dear Editor,

As a mother of a first grade student, and next fall a kindergarten student, I would like to take this opportunity to say a huge "Thank You" to all of the parent and teacher volunteers who have worked so hard at making the Charlevoix Elementary Annual P.T.O. Spring Carnival a success. Last year I attended the carnival and was amazed at the number of parents and children who were there. It was the first carnival I had attended and I helped with a game. A year ago I went to a P.T.O. meeting and found myself wanting to get involved with the school. I wanted to do my part to make the experience for all children (not just mine) a great experience. At that meeting, I committed to being the coordinator for the carnival this year. I have a great amount of respect now for those who did that job before me. Many aspects to the carnival need volunteers. Without the parents and teachers who volunteered to set up, clean up, work the games and food booths, the carnival would not be possible. The children love this event, so I am hoping that even more parents get involved next year.

One large part of the carnival is the raffle. The raffle this year contained prizes from over 70 Charlevoix businesses. I had the pleasure of talking to many of the businesses myself and was overwhelmed with their generous contributions. I wish I could name them all because I am proud of them for taking an interest in our organization. They jumped at the opportunity to help. A sincere "Thank You" from the P.T.O.

As our own little worlds just get busier, my only hope is that we take time out each day to sit and really listen to our young children. We should, as parents, want to get involved in school functions because our children will benefit from them. Their concerns should be ours and we need to be there to hear them. As the after math from the Littleton, Colo. tragedy continues, we can be assured that good will emerge from it. Let's work through our schools together to show our children that we care and are there for them.

Sincerely,
Heidi Jones
carnival coordinator

Oldest living plant is not the mighty oak, but a lowly fern

By Roger Knudson

Ear to the ground

Much as we think of staying young as something of a human goal, we still revere age, in people and even in plants.

A venerable oak is probably worthy of some notice just for having survived the lightning bolts, droughts and winds of several centuries.

Just as it is sometimes possible to see all the years of slings and arrows in the countenance of someone of a certain age, we often can see in an old tree some record of past events; and of course, the growth rings in the wood of trees do record with considerable precision the climate, fires and insect plagues of times long past.

What are probably our oldest local plants are certainly not venerated by any but a few peculiar botanists who may use them to illustrate patterns of long-term plant growth.

Our oldest plants are likely to be the woodland ferns that are obvious this time of year if you are willing to splash on the insect repellent and plunge into the deep woods. The oldest oak I have found is not much more than 300 years old, and the oldest tree I ever located was an Iowa Juniper that was 450. Nearly any local patch of ungrazed, unplowed forest land is likely to have individual fern plants that have been living in that same place for more than 500 years.

Surely a 500-year-old plant would be large enough to locate easily. A single woodland fern plant may be a half-acre or more in size, consisting of thousands of apparently separate clumps of filmy, pale green leaves. Some of the clumps of leaves may be connected to one another underground, but most of the connections will have rotted away years ago. All these seemingly separate plants, what the botanists call a clone, are the direct branches of a single plant which may have begun growing centuries ago.

Most of them will have underground stems which point back toward a single place of origin for the whole clone. One of these giant fern plants is really much like a two dimensional tree, with branches that have spread out in all directions from where it began to grow.

The advanced age of most ferns is a product of how they must begin growing. Most of the plants we are familiar with have flowers and seeds. Don't waste your time looking for fern flowers, and no matter how honest a person may look, never buy fern seeds from them. Ferns begin growth as tiny invisible motes that are produced on the underside of fern leaves and fired out into the air when they are ripe. These spores will grow into ferns, but only under exceptional circumstances. To develop properly, a fern spore must be warm and continually wet for almost two months. If the tiny embryo fern plants are dry for even a few moments during those two months, they will die. How long do you suppose it has been since that woodland hilltop where the ferns are growing was continually wetted with rain for two months? Most probably, it's been centuries since that weather phenomenon occurred.

Once the first two months or so of development are completed, the ferns grow roots and leaves and are able to survive drought as well or better than other plants. Most kinds of ferns are tropical, where continual dampness is more common. Those ferns that survive in our part of the world must be able to live nearly forever once they get a foothold.

There are specific fern plants in Finland that, on the basis of historical record, are more than 1,500 years old and cover 25 acres. Some of our local ferns will spread out from their point of origin by about two-three inches per year in all directions, so a patch of ferns six feet across is about 29 years old. If you find a patch of similar-looking fern clumps just 100 feet from side to side, you are likely looking at a plant that has lived in that place for two centuries.

Maybe some veneration is in order for any plant that predates most of our treasured antiques.

What a great way to spend an afternoon...

Thank you again! Everyone who participated in putting on this event did a fantastic job. Please make this a yearly event.

Let's make Buy Low an indoor ice rink

Dear Charlevoix Courier:

I think we need an indoor ice skating rink. My mom does not want to take me to Traverse City, Boyne City, Petoskey or Cheboygan just to play hockey.

My friends and I go ice skating almost every night and the ice is too bumpy to skate on.

My friend Josh Bowmen almost did a back flip when he was ice skating backwards and hit a bump, and landed on his back.

The ice skating rink now has no concession stand and most people get hungry. A bad thing about an outdoor rink is the weather. We don't have a Zamboni to clear the ice for us.

I think we could put an indoor rink where Buy Low is and make use of all that space. So could you please make us one?

Thanks for taking your time to read my article.

Sincerely yours,
Curtis Petzak

Land use workshop was successful

Concern for families and communities and the need to protect farmland and open space brought representatives of local river stewardship groups and lake associations together to examine unplanned development and sprawl. The program was hosted Saturday, May 8 in Boyne City.

Sprawl, the low-density development that extends from cities into rural areas, is land consumptive, automobile-oriented and often poorly planned.

Sprawl threatens the cohesiveness of communities, is expensive for school districts and taxpayers, takes productive farmland out of production, and causes taxes to increase as new, wider roads are built where infrastructure is needed.

Julie Stoneman of the Michigan Environmental Council and Arlin Wassermann of the Michigan Land Use Institute gave presentations suggesting new positive innovations to direct growth in our communities. Rod Cortright of Michigan State University Extension presented a slide show illuminating the potential impact of poor zoning and the benefits of new zoning which is "Land based."

With land based zoning, there is no loss of income from sale of the land for development, however, careful planning allows clustering homes in higher density neighborhoods and protects the beauty and integrity of streams, wetlands and farmlands. The representatives from Friends of the Boyne River, Friends of the Jordan River Watershed, Lake Charlevoix Association, St. Clair-Six Mile Lake Committee, Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, Charlevoix County Land Conservancy plan to host a fall workshop. For more information, call 237-9335.

Veterans to sell poppies

Members of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and their auxiliaries will be selling poppies in the coming weeks. The poppies commemorate and honor those who served our country during war times and those who sacrificed their lives for our country.

The poppies are made by hospitalized veterans who served our country well. They are now ill or disabled and unable to work. They earn a few cents from the poppies they make. The proceeds from contributions are used locally for relief programs for our veterans and their families in our area.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars and auxiliary will be selling the poppies Thursday, May 13 through Saturday, May 15, and the American Legion and auxiliary will distribute their poppies Thursday, May 20 through Saturday, May 22.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

(Artist and author Harold Kohn was minister and minister emeritus of the First Congregational Church (UCC) of Charlevoix. He was the author of several books of nature meditations and a compassionate counselor. Though death in 1975 brought relief from more than 20 years of pain from brain tumors, his triumph of the spirit remains an inspiration to all who know of him. His daughter, Carrie Kohn Minch, gave us permission to reprint some of his work.)

Growing Every Day

In winter, when trees are stripped of their foliage, the bark on their trunks shows clearly how greatly trees expand as the seasons come and go. On most of our common trees, such as the maple, oak, elm and ash, the bark splits to allow the trees to grow. The "healed" cracks make a textured roughness on the trunks of these giant plants. The elastic bark of white birches has no such vertical breaks in its surface. It simply expands with the growth of the trees. When the bark finally snaps, it falls in long banners that flutter in the winds.

What I admire most about a tree is that it continues to grow until it dies. All creatures change from day to day, but all change is not growth. Decay, too, is change. The botanists tell us a tree grows as long as it lives, daily adding breadth and height to its stature. Daily its roots draw sustenance from the soil, and daily it drinks moisture from the air and absorbs light and energy from the beneficent sun. Wind, rain, snow, and ice contribute to its tough character.

The Psalmist said of the righteous man, "And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water." The expression is apt, for a chief characteristic of a tree and of the life of faith is perpetual growth.

America's greatest folk hero, Abraham Lincoln, was not always heroic. Once he was nearly as unprepossessing in personality as he was physically ungainly. As a young man he was easily depressed, moved to morose glumness and to sullen silence. He made serious, though sincere, mistakes which he later regretted. But Lincoln grew.

There was a time when the sensitive Lincoln could not have shrugged off the misunderstandings, name-calling, and slander that fell upon him during his Presidency. When a member of his Cabinet was reported to have called Lincoln a fool, the President replied, "He must be right; he is a very smart man." As a young man Lincoln lacked the grace to respond habitually with such ready tolerance and forgiveness. Early in Lincoln's life he could not have felt, let alone spoken, the imperishable words of his Second Inaugural Address, "With malice toward none; with charity for all..." He was not always good enough, wise enough, great enough to feel or think or speak that way.

Lincoln stood tall in spiritual stature as a youngster. He was taller still as a young congressman, and a giant when he was nominated for the Presidency of the United States. But Lincoln was never spiritually tall enough to please Abraham Lincoln. He grew all the days of his life.

What are the conditions of growth? How is spiritual growth encouraged?

Dissatisfaction with self, when it is creatively used, is a growth stimulant. Growth comes from the recognition that we do not know everything worth knowing, that we have not achieved everything worth achieving, and that we have not become what we ought to be.

Growth comes from a certain openness, a porousness, like the roots of a tree that absorb nourishment from the surroundings. Growth rises from hospitality to beauty, truth, and goodness that are not our own, making them into our own. This means careful consideration of viewpoints that are new to us and differ from ours. It means a willingness to be disturbed, upset, changed. All conversion starts here, and all growth.

We grow when our spiritual income exceeds our expenditures.

Growth in spiritual stature and strength is encouraged by association with other people who are also seeking to grow, just as trees are strengthened and stabilized and stimulated by intertwining their roots with the roots of neighboring trees.

We grow as we improve our habits, substituting good habits for bad and still better habits for good ones. The holy habits of regular set times for meditation, private devotions, public worship, writing notes of encouragement, making visits that bring cheer and help to the needy, all of these, and more, add to our stature.

We need a standard against which we measure our growth. A molehill must seem great to an ant. Little hills appear to be big until we see the mountains looming behind them. Mountains seem great until we measure them against the stars. A Christian may feel sufficiently tall while standing back to back against his neighbor. But let him stand face to face with Christ and he recovers his spiritual perspective.

Before the father of William the Conqueror left for the Crusades he compelled his barons to swear allegiance to his young son. The barons protested, "He is but a child." The father answered, "He is little, but he will grow." The Christian is a mixture of humility and hope. He knows he is little. He is sure he will grow.

the group will probably reopen the bidding process.

"I guess we'll start all over again," Carey said.

The lesson in municipal government didn't come without a price. Legal fees for advice on the roof bid issue were in the $500 range. If the group decides to start the bidding process again and they want a wood shingle roof, which would cost more than $15,000, they may have to pay for a certified builder to draw up their bid specifications.

"All along I've agreed we made a mistake with this," said Earl Muma, township supervisor. "But it's over, it's done. So what do we do, bury the hatchet and move on or start all over again?"

That question has yet to be answered, by either the township trustees or township residents.

Beaver Island kids get in the swim at community pool

Diving into their first round of swim lessons are Beaver Island students Brenden Martin Melissa Peters, Cory Sowa, Andrea Moore, David Bousquet, and their school teacher Mike Meyers. On the pool deck is Ann Hansen, a Water Safety Instructor and volunteer at the pool. The third and fourth grade students will be in Charlevoix for three consecutive Fridays for their swim lessons. (Photo courtesy of Bruce MacArthur.)

Proving themselves to really be an area pool serving many parts of the county, the Charlevoix Area Community Pool is now giving swim lessons to Beaver Island third and fourth grade students. The students will be visiting the pool for three consecutive Fridays for swim lessons.

Swim lessons for Beaver Island students was arranged by Bruce MacArthur and Suzanne Budd.

The lessons are the second "wave" of a three-part series of instruction for Beaver Island students.

The first wave provided a basic water rescue course for several Beaver Island high school students.

The second phase provides swim lessons for third and fourth grade students, and the third wave will provide lessons for fifth and sixth grade students.

According to Kathleen McNamara, principal of the Beaver Island School, the parents and community members were at the dock to greet returning students from their first set of lessons, and were unanimous in their support for the program.

"Our children are receiving quality swim and water safety instruction — something that is not often available on the island," McNamara said.

Funding for the swim lessons has been provided by Charlevoix State Bank, Citizens Bank, Vacation Properties Network and the Beaver Island School.

McDonald's is supplying lunch for the island students on each visit. For the first wave of students, Village Inn Pizza provided pizza for the swimmers.

"We want to thank the many donors who have supported Suzanne Budd and Bruce MacArthur for making this program happen for Beaver Island kids," McNamara said.

School board accepts resignation of longtime volleyball coach

By Jamie MacMillan

The resignation of a long-standing coach, the approval of a class trip and the first steps toward replacing retiring teachers were the main business of the Charlevoix Board of Education during its regular session Monday night.

A career that began only on an interim basis came to a close Monday night when the board accepted the resignation of varsity volleyball coach Brenda Bryan.

Bryan admitted that her decision was tough, but cited family reasons as the determining factor.

"I feel like I'm missing out on too many of my own kids' activities," she said in an interview before the meeting. "I don't like quitting, so this is hard for me to do."

"I've coached everybody else's kids and now it's time to spend time with my own."

Bryan and her husband Greg have two sons; Spencer, an eighth grader, and Weston, a second grader.

She led the volleyball team for 16 seasons, but when she was hired in 1983 she took the job because the season was about to begin and the team didn't have a coach. Bryan, however, knew very little about the sport, save for some experiences playing volleyball in recreational leagues. She read book after book about the sport, attended various clinics and leaned on her players for advice until she felt comfortable with the role.

"I told them I would volunteer for one year, and they should look for someone else," Bryan recalled. "After four or five years, I stopped saying that because I knew I was staying."

For the early portions of her tenure, she also coached the junior varsity team. Her varsity squads were always solid and competitive, but post season honors didn't come around until recent seasons. Her teams won three straight conference crowns from 1996-98 and her teams in 1996 and 1997 earned the district championship.

She said one her fondest memories was the closing point of their first district crown against Elk Rapids. The Elks attempted to ice the Rayders' servers with a string of time-outs. The strategy was to no avail as Jenny Swenor served out an ace to close out the win.

Bryan also helped extend the popularity of the sport by starting up a middle school program earlier this decade. Teams of seventh and eighth grades were formed with the lone goal being to make sure everybody played. Between 40-60 students came out each season and eventually the popularity forced the creation of a freshmen team.

"I'll miss it," she said. "It'll be a funny feeling, not being around the kids. Maybe I'll pop into a few practices to see if I can help."

In other news, the board waived district policy in order to allow the senior class to go on a class trip to Cedar Point.

Through a policy enacted in 1968, the district doesn't permit class trips. Senior class leaders and high school principal Gary Grundman, who had previously given the class the go ahead to make preparations, were unaware of that policy.

"We've worked incredibly hard with fund-raisers, we have a $2,500 surplus and we want to put that back into the class," senior class president Jamie Gowell said.

Gowell told the board that her class felt they were worthy of the trip based on their success in the classroom and the maturity, leadership and behavior they've exhibited overall. It is not an overnight trip as students depart from Charlevoix at 3:00 a.m. Friday, May 28 and will return to town at 4:00 a.m. the following morning.

Board member Dennis Halverson agreed that the class was exemplary, but that asking to waive rules and discuss a policy change should have been brought to board earlier in the school year.

"We can't be expected to just like that change a policy that is probably on the books for good reason," he said.

Still, no board member seemed willing to deny the class its trip. Halverson motioned that the board waive rules and allow the trip specifically because the class had already made a non-refundable deposit on a bus rental and they would be facing a financial loss if they didn't go on their trip.

The motion passed without dissent.

The board also began hiring teachers to replace the slew of teachers retiring at the end of this year through the district's early retirement incentive.

Monday night, the board hired a trio of elementary school teachers.

Rachel Wolf Brooks, who has one year experience in the Freeland district, was hired to teach third grade; Nicole Phillips, who has taught for the last few years at Boyne Falls, was hired to teach fifth grade; and Steve Seeyle, who has experience in the Charlevoix district after substituting this year while staff was away on maternity leave, was hired to teach the fifth grade.

Close to 300 applied for the jobs, 13 were interviewed and six were interviewed a second time, elementary school principal Richard Swenor said.

The district still has nine vacancies to fill. They intend to hire people by the end of this school year.

The board next meets at 7:00 p.m. Monday, June 14.

First Watershed Ramble was an enlightening tour

Several environmental groups shared their visions and concerns for the Lake Charlevoix Watershed in the first annual Watershed Ramble. The Friends of the Boyne River, Friends of the Jordan River, and the Lake Charlevoix Association were provided with transportation around Lake Charlevoix by the Charlevoix County Trolley last weekend.

Starting in Boyne City, Tom Sheets of Boyne River group highlighted his group's activities involving students in River Awareness activities and in new community activities aimed at healing erosion sites and planning for future "friendly" uses on the river.

The trolley's next stop was Boyne Falls, where the group examined the "Mill Pond" and impacts of road construction on the Boyne River. The group enthusiastically applauded the dedication of the new Charlevoix County Land Conservancy, Peter P. Faskey Nature Preserve and then moved on to the Jordan River Watershed. President Dr. John Richter and Director John Hummer introduced the "State Forest Reserve" initiative and plans to create a center to house the office of Friends of the Jordan and to honor the rich past of the logging and timbering era, highlighting the hunting, fishing and trapping of the bygone era, the resources today and the Watershed planning vision of the future.

Dr. Steve Hansen, president of the Lake Charlevoix Association, introduced the participants to the problems associated with shoreline erosion and non-point pollution and impermeable surfaces to the water quality and beauty of the lake.

At Ironton, buoys will soon be installed to help boaters remember the importance of maintaining "no wake" speeds. Hansen explained that traditional green lawns ("Green Lawns-Green Lakes!) act as poor buffers and he stressed the importance of maintaining "green belts" as the last line of defense for the lake from toxins and sediment. A stop was made at the Horton Bay Llama Farm where John Danly has replaced his non-absorbent lawn with a lovely green belt meadow of wildflowers and grasses. Supper at the Boyne River Inn celebrated the end of a long and fruitful day. A Fall Watershed and Color Tour is being planned.

Local woman honored with staff recognition award

Heather O'Brien, MA, LPC, NCC, Foster Home Licensor/Counselor, received the 1999 Staff Recognition Award at the annual awards dinner of Child and Family Services of Northwestern Michigan, Inc. on April 26. O'Brien has been with the agency for three years and is a resident of Charlevoix.

In presenting the award, foster home licensing supervisor Kelley Sterk noted that O'Brien has served in many capacities while working for the agency. She was a foster care worker and a foster care supervisor before assuming her current duties. In addition to being a foster home licensor and mental health counselor, O'Brien handles public relations for Child and Family Services' Petoskey office and volunteers to represent the agency in the community.

"Heather has been very creative in her approach to foster parent support, developing and maintaining new support and training groups," said Sterk. "Heather is a gem and has played a major role in the growth and success of our Petoskey office."

The Staff Recognition Award is designed to recognize an employee whose work performance exceeds the normal expectations of their position. The recipient of the Staff Recognition Award is selected by co-workers.

Child and Family Services provides foster care, adoption and counseling services to residents of northwestern Michigan. The agency is partially funded by United Way.

Heather O'Brien of Charlevoix was recently honored for her work at the Child and Family Services of Northwest Michigan. She was given the Staff Recognition Award at their annual awards dinner.

Family's love of music is always with Charlevoix student

When Lori Stargardt was 5 years old, she discovered the piano and song-writing as a form of expression.

"They were basic kid songs, like 'I hate this or I like that' the Charlevoix senior recalled.

By the time she was a teenager, she had matured and penned her first adult tune, "Only in the Father," a piece of guidance for a college-bound friend of hers who was searching for an identity. She's continued her song-writing talents by composing her own arrangements of traditional songs which she has played during various school and other musical performances.

"It's a constant way of expressing myself," the 18-year-old said. "It's kind of cathartic, to just pound the keys whenever I get frustrated. When I wake out of that trance, I feel good."

Anyone who has had the pleasure of hearing Stargardt perform, has been made to feel good. Her specialty is flute and during her school career, Stargardt has distinguished herself as one of the more talented musicians that the school has had in their band.

"She's one of the better leaders to come through," said band director Raphe Rittenhouse. "If anyone is going to stand up and get something going, it's Lori."

Throughout both high school and middle school, Stargardt has competed in various district and state competitions, usually earning a One Rating, the highest score available. During competitive performances in her final high school year, Stargardt performed "The Doppler," a Hungarian piece made more challenging, Stargardt said, because of its morbid themes.

She recorded her own personal arrangement of "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing" on a recently released record of Charlevoix band performances. This past winter she served as first chair for the regional district 11 honor band. The fact that she paced a trio of Charlevoix flutists on that band wasn't lost on Rittenhouse.

"She's pulling up the level of playing in all our bands," Rittenhouse said. "She's really inspired all the kids to do their best with what she has accomplished."

Outside of school, Stargardt has performed at fine arts festivals during national conventions of Assembly of God denominations. She appeared on stage four years in row, winning merit awards twice. For Stargardt, religion is not only important, but a major factor in her performances and song writing.

"I don't really have any themes I deal with, but everything usually ends up pointing in some way to God," she said.

The performances at the church festivals showcased her talent as an individual, but also as part of a duet with her father, Steve Stargardt. With the daughter on flute and the father on piano, they won a merit award as a duo during the last festival, playing the melodic "Great is the Lord."

Lori Stargardt

In addition to the festivals, the pair has earned a talented reputation, playing at various area parties and as regulars during the concert in the park series in both Charlevoix and Petoskey. They play jazz, classical and contemporary tunes. Most of the songs they perform, they arrange themselves to bring out new identities in the pieces.

"We just have fun, it's nice to bring some life to people," she said.

Her father called playing with her both a delight and a challenge.

"She surprises me," he said. "Her classic stuff is a tremendous challenge to me."

The entire Stargardt family has musical talents, beyond father Steve and mother Sara, who is a skilled vocalist.

Growing up as the youngest of four children, Stargardt watched two older brothers excel with the trumpet and saxophone. Her desire to play the flute came from her sister Lara, a dozen years her senior, who played the instrument while she was in high school.

"I grew up around music," Stargardt said. "They encouraged us to play any instrument, except for drums because nobody wanted to hear us practice that."

Despite her talent, Stargardt isn't sure to what extent she'll continue her music education at college.

She will be a freshman next year at Western Michigan University and plans to major in elementary education. She wants to be a school teacher, a career path inspired by her work as a Sunday School teacher at the Charlevoix Assembly of God church and, as she put it, "a natural attraction to children."

While in college, she also wants to continue her Spanish studies as well as enroll in political science courses. She is considering a minor in music and is more excited about her collegiate possibilities after performing at a Youth Arts Festival audition on the Kalamazoo campus earlier this year.

She's open to a career in music, especially if the opportunity to travel comes along with it. Whatever she does, music will always be a driving and inspirational force, even when washing away a bad day with a flute solo far away from the ears of any audience.

"It's so soulful," she said of playing. "Playing is so fun, especially when you catch people's ear and the audience says, 'Man, that sounds so great.'"

Golf tournament named in Keith Carey's honor

The first planned sporting event for the week-long "Venetian Games" was recently announced. Local junior and adult golfers will vie for the "Keith Carey Cup," named in honor of the longtime Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course manager and teaching professional who passed away this past winter.

Keith Carey served and assisted Charlevoix golfers of all ages for decades, beginning in the early 1950s. A graduate of Charlevoix High School, Carey achieved an athletic career unparalleled in Charlevoix sports history. Carey played basketball at Alma College, played the game professionally and later coached and taught in Midland, Mich. He always returned to Charlevoix during the summers to manage the Municipal Golf Course.

Newly appointed commissioner of the Venetian Games, Dean Davenport, recalled with fond memories Carey and his contributions to Charlevoix golfers.

"Keith helped develop the first golf school for area youngsters and beginning adults, allowing the Charlevoix Recreation Department to hold classes on the course itself at a time when classes were restricted to the driving range at other courses," Davenport said. "His support and keen personal interest were key to the success of the recreation department's golf school."

Carey also provided individual lessons to many Charlevoix residents. His teaching style and pleasant personality became trademarks at the municipal course.

"We've spoken with Keith's family and they are very enthusiastic about our plans to honor his memory with a golf tournament during our Venetian Games," Davenport added.

Keith Carey

Davenport has appointed a committee which will help develop the tournament format. They include Tom Dorsek, current municipal course manager, and local golf enthusiasts Jim Annis, Glen Taylor and Rick Grunch.

Anyone interested in helping with the "Keith Carey Cup" can do so by calling Davenport at (616) 796-7252 or by leaving their name at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office.

Mary Feindt, Doctor

Charlevoix's Mary Feindt (center) was given an honorary Doctorate degree in Business and Industry from Ferris State University last weekend during the college commencement ceremonies. Track team faces tough competition in Traverse City

In a competitive field at the Traverse City Invitational, Charlevoix's track and field teams did not do well in the team standings, but did collect 10 medals on the day.

"Our sprinters did a really nice job," boys' coach Hal Evans said, "and we had some good individual efforts."

Sprinters Jeremy Rafacz and Matt McClellan paced the boys' effort. Rafacz placed second in the 100 dash and McClellan finished second in the 200. The pair teamed up with Brian Cornet and Colin Carr to place third in both the 400 and 800 relays.

Todd Schaperkotter won two medals with a second place in the high jump and a third in the 110 high hurdles. Jeff Popenhagen took sixth place and set a personal record of 10 minutes, 41 seconds in the 3200 run.

"He's a senior captain and has set personal bests in the mile and two mile in consecutive meets," Evans said of Popenhagen. "He's peaking at the right time."

Others setting personal bests, but not medaling were Matt Dennis, Ben VanGuilder and Hal Evans in the 400 and Adam Kline in the shot put.

The girls' club earned three medals, paced by Meghan Vogel, who placed third in the shot put and sixth in the pole vault. Tricia Hodge added the final medal with a fourth place finish in the 1600.

According to coach Ken Plude, the following athletes missed out on medals, but did set personal bests: Liza Gorkiewicz, 3200; Heather Ferber, discus; Tiffany Fisher, pole vault and 800; Lexi Wilson, pole vault; Leslie Hoffman, 100 hurdles; and Laura Schairbaum, 800.

Friday's 10-team field was loaded with Class A schools like Traverse City West, Traverse City Central, Mt. Pleasant and Bedford.

The teams end their regular season by competing in the Houghton Lake Invitational at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, May 15 and the East Jordan Invitational at 3:00 p.m. Monday, May 17.

Easy rider, tough competitor

Brandon Johnstone, 11, of Charlevoix, is shown here with trophies he has won this past summer and fall season while motorcycle racing at tracks in Cadillac and Kingsley. Brandon placed first in the 80 cc championship race at Bay Area Racing Track and took second place in Cadillac. It was his first season of motorcycle racing. His brothers, Travis and Hunter, race 80 cc and 60 cc motorcycles. Brandon is the son of Scott and Sheila Johnstone of Charlevoix, where Brandon attends Charlevoix Elementary School.

Tennis team enjoys victory

Rayder tennis players won six matches as the team battled to a win and a tie in a pair of meets last week.

In a 4-3 win over Traverse City East, the Rayders swept all three doubles flights en route to the win.

In the No. 1 flight, Dave Drury-Joel Trubilowicz topped Al Loup-Dan McDougall, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2. Mark Yager-Tom Cunningham played for the Rayders in the No. 2 slot and beat Nick Vladmonis-George Freeman, 6-3, 6-3. In the final position, Ian Mays-Russ Ward cruised by Oliver O'Brien-Eric White, 6-0, 6-3.

Scott Pair pulled home the lone singles win for Charlevoix. In the No. 1 slot, he topped Mike Stallman, 6-3, 6-2.

Allen Brooks, Craig Siwarga and Dennis Mitchell lost their matches, as did the team of Molly Arnold-Michelle Martin in an exhibition doubles match.

Pair and Brooks both won matches as the Rayders ended tied with Grayling, 2-2, in a rain-shortened event.

Pair topped Eric Thompson, 6-0, 6-1, while Brooks, in the No. 3 singles flight, bested Mike Winters, 6-1, 6-3.

Craig Siwarga and the doubles team of Yager-Cunningham dropped their matches. Dennis Mitchell and the teams of Ward-Martin and Drury-Trubilowicz had their matches rained out as they began the third sets.

The Rayders wrap up this week with the Lake Michigan Conference finals at Boyne Mountain at 10 a.m. Friday, May 14.

Rayders start strong in soccer tournament, but lose to Elks

Elk Rapids scored a pair of first half goals and held off a late Rayder charge to win the fifth annual Charlevoix Girls Soccer Invitational.

In a physical game in which both sides played well, the Rayders tallied their first goal when Kelly Dreyer scored off a corner kick from the foot of Erika Kammermann.

The Elks countered with a goal to put the Rayders in another two-goal deficit, but Kammermann scored off a direct kick from Lindsey Carland to make the score 3-2. Despite continued effort, the Rayders couldn't score another goal to force an extra session.

The Rayders advanced into the finals with an explosive 4-3 win the previous night against Roscommon.

After giving up the game's opening goal, the Rayders tallied three first-half goals to take a 3-1 lead into intermission.

Kirsten Brendtro emerged from a scrum in front of the net to tie the score with her first ever varsity goal. Abby Schaperkotter added a pair of goals to complete the Rayders' first half barrage.

After the Bucks cut the lead to 3-2, Kammermann gave the team some breathing room with a goal after a rush down the left sideline. The Bucks pulled to within 4-3 with a goal with less than five minutes left in the contest, but they couldn't muster another shot on net as the Rayders played keep-away until the final buzzer.

In the win, Kammermann had a pair of assists and Katie Romig and Kelly Dreyer each had one.

Elk Rapids advanced into the finals with a 1-0 triumph over Williamston. In the consolation game, Williamston blanked Roscommon, 2-0.

The Rayders next play at Suttons Bay at 5:00 p.m. Thursday, May 13.

In junior varsity action, the Rayders remain unbeaten with a win and a tie in a pair of games against Williamston over the weekend.

Danielle Vogelheim scored a pair of goals and keeper Jennifer Rowe made 11 saves as the Rayders topped Williamston in the teams' first match-up, 4-1.

Vogelheim's first goal came seven minutes into the game with an assist to Elissa Wood. The Rayders extended their lead when Karlee Barnard tallied a goal after a throw-in from Vogelheim.

Williamston pulled to within a goal right before half-time, scoring on a shot that was too high for Rowe to haul in.

Michelle Yaldo and Vogelheim scored second half goals for the Rayders, the latter of which came on a penalty kick after a handball call against Williamston.

Coach Carol Madison highlighted the defensive play of Marcy Bennett, Laura Potter and Tegan Lawson as key to the win.

The following morning, the teams dueled to a 0-0 tie.

With six minutes left in regulation, Rowe was injured on an attempted goal kick. Kate Madison took over for Rowe and finished out the game.

Traverse City gives ball players a rough time

It was a rough day for the Charlevoix diamond teams last week in Traverse City.

Both the Rayder baseball and softball teams were swept by conference rival Traverse City-St. Francis.

On the baseball field, the Gladiators scored runs in each inning to cruise to a 13-2, five inning win in the opening game.

Ryan Bier, Jeremiah Teuscher and Tyler Lieberman all pitched for the Rayders, but none could contain the Glads' attack which plated three in the first inning, four in the second, five in the third and one in the fourth.

On offense, Bier and Teuscher had two hits apiece and Jerry Zeitler, Andy Granath and Shay Hutchison each added singles for Charlevoix.

The nightcap was more competitive. The game was tilted toward the Glads when they scored seven runs in the bottom of the fifth inning. Before that at-bat, the Rayders were hanging on to a 7-5 lead.

Matt Horon and Chris Loper doubled for Charlevoix and Teuscher, Bier, Rob Boss and Tom Kennedy added singles.

The Rayders' record fell to 7-11, 3-5 in conference play.

The team next plays at home against Northern Michigan Christian Academy at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, May 13.

In the softball games, the Rayders managed only two hits against the highly-touted Lady Gladiators en route to the 11-0 and 14-2 losses.

Courtney Butler pitched the first game for Charlevoix, scattering nine hits and striking out six. In the second game, Dena Sheldon pitched four innings, giving up only four hits. In the end, it was a light hitting attack that produced only a single apiece from Sheldon and Butler that couldn't keep up with Traverse City.

With the losses, the softball team's record fell to 7-9, 2-6 in conference play.

The softball team plays today, Wednesday, at home against Boyne Falls at 4:30 p.m.

Friends of the Jordan receive two year grant to continue work

The Friends of the Jordan River Watershed (FOJ), now in its ninth year, will continue to protect the Jordan River and its watershed, thanks to a grant from the Frey Foundation of Grand Rapids in the amount of $41,000. The Jordan River watershed, home of more than 22,000 acres in the Jordan Valley, is one of northwest lower Michigan's most pristine wilderness areas enjoyed by many year-round and seasonal residents, as well as visitors from throughout Michigan and across the United States.

The grant will fund efforts to permanently protect and conserve land and accompanying natural resources in the Jordan River watershed. The grant will also provide for continued monitoring of the Jordan River, including education and stewardship opportunities for area schools and citizens. The Frey Foundation grant is for a two-year time period, effective immediately, carrying on through March of 2001.

"This grant will enable us to proactively utilize resource protection and conservation tools and to seek support from other organizations and our membership to carry on what we do best — that is protect the integrity of the Jordan River watershed ecosystem," said the group's director, John Hummer.

The mission of Friends of the Jordan is to conserve the natural resources and protect the environmental quality of the Jordan River and its watershed. Some of the organization's primary goals are: To protect the water quality throughout the watershed, preserve the natural character of the Jordan River and its tributaries; promote sound resource management of both public and private lands within the watershed; and to inform and educate the public about activities and issues involving the Jordan River and its watershed.

The Frey Foundation, based in Grand Rapids, is one of Michigan's largest family foundations. Grants are provided primarily to nonprofit organizations in western lower Michigan, for projects to enhance children's development, protect natural resources, promote the arts and expand philanthropic and civic action.

Additional information on the programs and projects of Friends of the Jordan River Watershed may be obtained by calling 533-5063. They are always looking for new members and charitable contributions, which are necessary for long-term effectiveness of the group's efforts.

Most recently, the group hosted the Friends of the Jordan second Annual Benefit Auction held Saturday, April 24 at the Charlevoix Country Club. Over 100 people came through the doors to help the Friends with what is now one of the group's primary fundraisers. The event grossed around $12,000.00. (Net proceeds had not yet been determined at press time).

The evening featured a silent auction, a live auction, and entertainment provided by the Gailliard String Quartet, who have performed in professional symphony orchestras, ensembles, and as soloists. In addition, FOJ board member Robin Berry Williams performed her popular tune "Big Sam" about the man who died in a logging accident at Deadman's Hill, now known as one of Michigan's most scenic spots, overlooking the Jordan Valley.

"The Friends of the Jordan would like to thank all the financial sponsors, businesses, and individuals who contributed resources to this event," said John Hummer, FOJ director. Visit the FOJ website at www.torchlake.com/foj.

Scholarship will send a student to Ireland

The Robert Emmet Society will give a student from North Central Michigan College (NCMC) the opportunity of a lifetime: An all-expense paid scholarship to attend the Regional Technical College in Galway, Ireland for one semester. The award will be granted in honor of Robert Emmet, the Emmet County namesake.

The trip is part of an exchange program with the college in Galway. A student from Ireland will attend NCMC for one year and study in the field of hospitality.

Students entering the scholarship contest must have attended NCMC for the winter 1999 semester. They will write a 1,000 word essay on how the political values of Robert Emmet relate to our lives today. In addition, scholarship finalists will be interviewed by the selection committee. The essay deadline is June 1.

The award includes airfare to and from Ireland, tuition, and room and board at the college.

Robert Emmet was an Irish martyr who died in 1803 for the sake of democracy in Ireland. While he never came to the United States, the impression Emmet made in Ireland compelled former Mackinac County legislator Charles O'Malley to give Emmet County his name in 1843. O'Malley was from Ireland and sought to name northern Michigan counties after his homeland.

For more information on the scholarship, call 348-6839.

Plant-a-Tree Week is approaching

Mayor Butch Russell has proclaimed Monday, May 17 through Saturday, May 22 as "Plant a Tree Week."

The Shade Tree Commission went before city council at their May 3 meeting to request the mayoral proclamation.

Bern Cannan, Shade Tree Commissioner, also informed the city of a new threat to our maple trees — the Asian longhorned beetle. Until the threat of this bug is accurately determined, only non-maple trees will be planted with the city's street side tree planting program.

To date, the longhorned beetle has been found primarily in the Chicago and New York areas. None have been detected in Michigan yet.

This year, the city will offer 100 trees for side streets to property owners who pledge to water and protect the trees. Call the city at 547-3270 to sign up for a tree.

In conjunction with Plant-a-Tree Week, Cannan, Mary Adams of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club and two other garden club members visited every second grade class and helped every student start to grow a tiny tree from seeds in a plastic cup.

During Plant-a-Tree Week, the group will return to complete the project by helping kids transfer their seedlings into a small pot they can take home. Also included in the project were the second and third grade classes at St. Mary's School.

Watch out for this beetle

The Asian longhorned beetle is about one inch long and is a wood boring creature that can kill a tree within a few years. If anyone sees this beetle, please put it in a jar and call street superintendent John Martin at 547-3275.

ATTENTION
Customers of Cedar Ridge Recycling and Disposal Facility

We regret to inform you that as of Saturday, May 1, 1999 Waste Management must begin diverting waste from Cedar Ridge. This means we will no longer be able to accept materials from all drive up customers.

Cedar Ridge will still be available to immediate neighbors; for emergency situations; and to East Jordan Iron Works to fulfill our contract. In addition, we will continue to operate our recycling drop-off center.

We understand that this is an inconvenience for you; however, Cedar Ridge will be full by the end of the year if we do not divert waste. Meanwhile, we will continue to review disposal options with the goal of expanding Cedar Ridge to meet the growing needs of community members like you.

Please do not hesitate to call with questions or comments regarding the necessary diversion or general operation of Cedar Ridge. (616) 547-4606

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Habitat for Humanity hosts planning meeting

Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity will be building a home on the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road in Hayes Township, about five miles east of Charlevoix. This marks the first home project to be built in the immediate Charlevoix vicinity. Seven homes have been built elsewhere in northwest Michigan. The group needs to raise approximately $50,000 to complete the project. Contributions and volunteers are needed.

The building committee is planning to kick off the project in early June with an information meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 20 at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church on State Street in downtown Charlevoix. Anyone interested in helping with the project is invited to attend the meeting.

Chosen as the partners for the project are Michelle Posten and her two children. The family currently rents an apartment in Charlevoix. Habitat is looking forward to working with the Postens.

Michelle Posten will be required to invest 250 hours of sweat equity in the project. When the home is completed, it will be sold to her on a no-interest mortgage. The mortgage payments will go toward future home building projects.

A fund-raising campaign to raise $50,000 for this project is currently under way.

Contributions may be sent to the Northwest Michigan Habitat office at P.O. Box 827, Petoskey, MI 49770.

For more information about the project, or to volunteer, call the Habitat office at 348-6926.

SCRAPBOOK

Automobile tourists considered undesirable by some locals

The following Scrapbook feature was compiled by Cynthia Postmus, with help from the Charlevoix Public Library, from old Courier news stories. The stories are reprinted in their entirety, exactly as they appeared originally.

Charlevoix's first trailer park campground was located where the Charlevoix Area Hospital is today. Nearly 80 years ago, some locals believed that motor home tourists were an undesirable bunch of tourists. (Photo courtesy of Cynthia Postmus)

FREE TOURISTS CAMP SITES Topic of Lengthy Discussion by Citizens

Charlevoix's Need of Site Brought Out at Meeting of Association of Commerce

(Charlevoix Courier, May 11, 1921)

The discussion of the pressing need of a free tourist camp site for Charlevoix took up a greater part of the evening at the regular monthly meeting of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce last Friday night. The result was that the association went on record as being in favor of the proposition, and a committee composed of ex-mayor S. M. Rose, E. H. Hanna, and Charles H. Emrey was appointed to take the matter up and see what could be done regarding it.

Several sites were discussed, among which were the south end of the present city park, the five acres of land lying south of the old stone foundation at the turn to the beach drive, and a strip of land lying on Petoskey avenue, east of the greenhouse.

Monday, the committee met with the newly elected park commissioners, but here met with opposition which would lead one to believe that a proposition of this kind was not a necessity, nor even a remote possibility, being told, as we are reliably informed, that people who travel by auto, as a rule, are an undesirable class and were not wanted in this vicinity.

We cannot help refrain from commenting on the attitude thus taken. It is an insult, entirely uncalled for, to thus class the automobile tourist.

We have met them, hundreds of them and have as yet to find a single instance where they do not represent a class of people who would be a credit to any community. They may not deem themselves to belong to what is termed as the "exclusive set" but are business men, retired farmers of considerable means who are enjoying their outing in this manner.

The Grand Rapids Herald, in a recent issue, contained the following article:

"Already automobile licenses from other states are making their appearance on the highways of Michigan through the country, sleeping at night in their own tents and cooking their own meals. A tremendous number of these modern gipsies will have the glory of Michigan with us during the coming summer. They are welcome. We want them to come, to see Michigan, to learn all that has been said of the playground state is true. But in order to make these trips more pleasurable and to assure second visits, Michigan should be fully prepared to care for these twentieth-century nomads. The west has gone in for this thing with a progressive spirit that has made pleasant every stop of camping tourists in many western states. We have urged heretofore the need for an extensive system of state camp sites. Grand Rapids is to have one; and the state maintains the Indian Trail camps in the resort country. But this is not enough. Every county in the state should have at least one of such camps. That is one of the ways by which Michigan, at small expense, can make every tourist's visit to the state a guarantee of lasting friendship for the Wolverine commonwealth. Counties all over the state, especially those along the trunk line roads, should seek to set aside at least a small plot of land suitable for campers."

Can it be possible that Charlevoix as a whole believe the auto tourists undesirable? We are of the opinion that the person or persons who so expressed themselves are voicing their own narrow views, and no attention should be given to their utterances.

Now, so far as the location of a tourist camp is concerned, we feel that it makes very little difference whether the city park is used or some other suitable place. The people are beginning to think that the city park is about the most useless piece of property in the city. Efforts to put it in shape to be of some utility have heretofore failed almost entirely.

In the first place some would be landscape gardeners with mistaken notions of shade, have prevented any development of the park along proper lines. It is a cold, forbidding sort of a place. As a consequence, instead of this naturally beautiful spot being thronged with people, during the summer, it is practically deserted. So far as we are concerned, we would prefer to see the westerly end of it put to some practical use. This does not mean that the location of the tourist camp cannot be changed at a later date if conditions require. But the time to do something is right now.

S. S. BRUCE HITS SWING BRIDGE

Both Boat and Bridge Slightly Damaged and Tender Shook Up

(Charlevoix Courier, May 7, 1919)

The S. S. Bruce, on her return trip from St. James about 5:00 o'clock Tuesday night, collided with the bridge as it was being swung, slightly injuring the bow of the boat, and damaging some of the bridge equipment. The bridge was being swung by hand, owing to the electric current being shut off due to an accident at the electric light plant.

Bridge tender Elmer Johnson says he would like to have some wise guy tell him just what to do, as when he swings the bridge some auto is bound to run into the river and when he has it shut or partly closed, he is likely to be bumped by a boat going up or down the river.

DON'T BORROW YOUR NEIGHBOR'S PAPER

(Charlevoix Courier, May 11, 1921)

If you are not a subscriber to the Courier, borrow it and read it anyway. Of course we would like to have you on the regular list, but if you cannot afford it or are nursing a grouch, borrow it. It is interesting and instructive reading, and we feel highly complimented to see the trouble and sometimes expense the borrower or grouch will go to that he may read a good home paper with a good reputation at home and abroad. Of course, they try to cover their tracks, but we know most of them and the methods they resort to that they may read it without helping support it. They are a bunch of good public-spirited citizens — in a horn. We don't find them doing anything for the upbuilding of their village or the region, but are always willing to reach out and grasp the benefits accruing from the efforts and expenditures of their more progressive, broad-minded, liberal and patriotic neighbors.

The Charlevoix High School technology class took first place in national robotics design competition

By Jamie MacMillan

For the second year in a row, Joe Woods' Manufactured Technology class has won a National Gold Medal for their project at the Society for Manufacturing Engineers Robotics competition.

Staged at Saginaw Valley State University, the local class took top honors in the automated work cell category. Their machine, nicknamed "The Screwmaster," molds both ends of the rubber screw driver handle before attaching it to the metal blade.

Last year, Woods' class won for an automated gun loader. Woods admitted that this year's project was a little more complicated than last year's.

"Originally it was going to be more complex," the teacher said. "We wanted to give the machine a selection of different blades to choose from."

How good was the project put forth by the Charlevoix contingent?

Joe Woods' Manufactured Technology class took home a national gold medal at a recent competition. It was the second year in a row his class won the top prize. Class members are (from left) Courtney Butler, Carl Goff, Allen Keehn, Matt Campbell, Mark Campbell, Erik Pollard and Nick Martinchek. Missing from photo are Corey Knapp, Tommy Yaroch, Jeremy Rafacz and Nick Grosberg. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

They won their gold medal despite the fact that their project failed to work effectively in front of the judges. About an hour before their scheduled presentation, the wiring of their project had too much juice and short-circuited their machine.

"At that point, you just want to pack up and go home," student Matt Campbell said, describing the frustration he felt when the project, after months of preparation, wasn't working.

Added classmate Allen Keehn, "Of all the things that could have gone wrong, that was the least likely."

Despite the setback, the Charlevoix students remained undaunted.

With only 20 percent of the scoring criteria based on the actual functioning of the project, the Charlevoix students impressed the judges with their maturity and ability to communicate to the judges why the project didn't work and what solutions existed to solve the problem.

Mark Johnson, executive at Pentwater Robotics and competition judge, penned a letter to Woods telling the teacher that a majority of the class was able to offer information in a professional way to the judges which showed both a team effort and a working knowledge of the machine.

"Your group reassures us in manufacturing that there will be some bright and aggressive young minds coming after our jobs," Johnson continued.

Woods said that the student's ability was honed in classrooms throughout the school.

"We draw from so many different areas," he said. "It's not all robotics, not all math and not all English. Everything is rolled together."

Woods said doing projects like this brings the class together and being more project-oriented helps him connect with the students.

"Part of our purpose here at the high school is to give students as many experiences as possible that might trigger a future career," Woods said.

"Heather's Woods" dedicated in name of late Montessori director

By Laurie Lounsbury

The Montessori technique of education might be the backbone of the Charlevoix Children's House, but Heather Woods was definitely the heart.

Heather, former director of the Charlevoix Children's House, died last summer.

In her honor, the preschool is dedicating a nature walk, appropriately named "Heather's Woods," at noon Saturday, May 22.

"Heather loved nature," said current school director Jackie Hice. "We put our heads together to come up with an idea that would symbolize her. 'Heather's Woods' just sounded so right."

Students at the preschool have been working all week to make concrete stepping stones with their hand prints in them for the woodsy nature trail. Ace Hardware donated the materials to make the stepping stones.

Also in Heather's honor, the school is establishing the Heather Woods Scholarship, which will provide tuition for one year to a deserving student, and the Heather Woods Memorial Fund, a permanent endowment that will help support the Charlevoix Children's House for many years to come. The Charlevoix County Community Foundation will handle the Heather Woods Memorial Fund.

Creating a permanent endowment for the school is something that would make Heather smile. Throughout the years, Heather always made the school her first priority.

"She was always willing to make sacrifices for the school," said Dianne Dreyer, a teacher and long time board member for the school. "In the early years, she would take a pay cut in order to have funding for quality school materials or extra staff."

The Charlevoix Children's House was started in 1978 by Katie Donovan. In 1980, Heather joined the Montessori preschool as director, and continued to guide the school until her death June 4, 1998.

As word of the dedication spread through the community, some of Heather's 'alumni' are already making plans to return to their old preschool to honor Heather. Heather's earliest students are now graduating from high school and others are in college.

Hundreds of Charlevoix children started down the educational path with Heather by their side. It's an experience they distinctly remember as a positive beginning.

"She was always comfortable around all the kids, and had a way of raising them up to her level, never talking down to them," Dreyer said. "She understood them implicitly."

The Montessori preschool stresses learning skills that allow children to work individually at their own speed. Children move to the next level of difficulty with their tasks only when they have succeeded at the preceding level. While Heather was a firm believer in the Montessori methods, she also implemented her own concepts of early childhood education. The result is a preschool class that blends individual studies with team spirit and group projects.

"She did a great job of mixing Montessori practices with her own ideas," Dreyer said.

All current and former Charlevoix Children's House students and their families are invited to attend the Heather Woods dedication.

"We're hoping lots of Heather's former students will come back to visit," Dreyer said. "It's really fun to see them all, and they enjoy catching up with each other."

Refreshments will follow the dedication. For more information or to RSVP, call 547-5308.

Thundering to the top in Formula Two tunnel race boats

Voisin
RACING

Under normal conditions, most parents would be sternly disapproving if their son had a habit of going 107 miles per hour in a flashy red vehicle.

Not Don and Vicki Voisin. They were understandably thrilled when their son, Vince Voisin, took second place in the Formula Two tunnel boat races in Brunswick, Ga., held on Mother's Day.

Nearly 15,000 spectators were on their feet for the final race of the day, when Voisin battled his way from a fifth starting position to a second place finish in a field of 18 boats. Voisin led a furious charge as he picked his way by some of the fastest and best tunnel boat drivers in the country. Average boat speeds ranged from 105 to 107 mph on the one-and-one-quarter mile race course, where drivers made 30 laps to complete the race.

While his father Don usually maintains his calm demeanor during his son's races, he did admit that the race — with his son's aggressive driving — was particularly exciting.

"He made it hair-raising — the rougher the water got, the better he got," Don said.

Vince, a Charlevoix native who now lives in Atlanta, Ga., has been racing boats since he was 12 years old. He started racing the Formula Two tunnel boats three years ago, and now spends spring, summer and fall on the national race circuit.

Don Voisin stays involved with his son's sport as crew chief, maintaining radio contact with Vince throughout the race.

"There's a lot of communicating during a race," Don said. "Not to tell Vince how to drive the boat, but to tell him what's going on in front of him and behind him. With 18 boats going about 105 miles per hour, there's a lot of spray — it gets messy."

Vince will be racing all over the country this season, which is his first full year on the race circuit. He'll make an appearance in Bay City, Mich., June 25-27 for the Formula Two World Championships.

Voisin is a 1993 graduate of Charlevoix High School and a 1997 graduate of Michigan State University. He is employed by Motorola in Atlanta, Ga.

Ear to the ground

Fairy dancing rings or fungus, the result is still desirable

By Roger Knutson

In the spring when grass is just beginning to produce that first growth in your lawn, you may see some nearly circular patches of taller, much darker green grass. They might be small circles of solid green or much larger rings or parts of rings, dark green around the edges and regular lawn color in the middle. You will see such interesting patterns more commonly if your lawn, like mine, is not heavily fertilized or sprayed. People have been seeing and wondering about those rings of especially healthy grass for centuries. They used to be called fairy rings, and were thought to be the places where fairies danced during the night. No one has proposed that they were troll-dancing circles. Trolls, I would imagine, blight the grass rather than greening it up. We don't believe in fairies any more and some might not even believe in trolls.

The current explanation for those intriguing rings of green, vigorous growth is that a fungus is growing in the soil below the grass. The fungus starts from one single microscopic spore and spreads like slow ripples on a pond, making a small ring in its first year, and larger rings each year after. Sometimes it even produces a ring of mushrooms in the fall.

Before you rush for the fungus spray to kill the unwanted guest in your lawn, think about what it is doing for you. The lush green early growth in the ring is produced by the activities of the fungus as it decomposes dead roots below the ground and converts them into new mineral- and humus-rich soil. Nearly all fungi live on dead plant parts and make them into new soil. Without the activities of the soil fungi, we would all quickly be hip-deep in dead leaves, stems and branches that would never return their nutrients to the soil.

Maybe the long-ago explanations weren't so far wrong in considering those spots to be the places where fairies danced. Fairies were the benevolent creatures who made the grass grow greener in the spring lawn just by dancing on it.

Now we call those agents fungi rather than fairies (We can't really see either one of them without help). Whatever we call them, they are still doing the same things; making the grass greener, still helping to keep the world in balance, and still stimulating our curiosity. So next time you see one of those early spring rings in your lawn, raise a toast to the fungus fairies, who are doing us good in the dark of night without charging us for the service.

Waste Management should address the Solid Waste Committee

Dear Editor:

Off again. On again. Off again. On again, unfortunately. On May 6, Waste Management decided to once again announce their intention to present a request for an expansion of the Cedar Ridge Landfill to the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

During this meeting, Waste Management was most interested in having the commissioners change their vote that found the plan NOT in compliance with the current Charlevoix County Solid Waste Plan. Waste Management does not seem interested in submitting a revised request, but rather in finding a way to circumvent the wording of the current plan.

We would like to take a moment to remind Waste Management that the Planning Commission is charged with reviewing a request to see if it meets the siting criteria IN THE PLAN. The Planning Commissioners did not develop the Solid Waste Plan nor do they have the authority to deviate from it or to alter the criteria.

If Waste Management wishes to request an expansion of the Cedar Ridge Landfill or siting for another landfill, they should present their case to the Solid Waste Planning Committee, which is in the process of developing a new solid waste plan. This suggestion was made to Waste Management at a much earlier meeting.

Many of us are concerned about rising rates. Now is the time to explore all possibilities for recycling to reduce the amount of waste. It may also be a good time to check with other companies for competitive pricing.

We have received letters from many of you supporting the "no expansion" position taken by Eveline Township, the Charlevoix County Planing Commission and WATCH (Water and Air Team for Charlevoix). As Waste Management increases the pressure, it's important that we hold firm in our protection of the pristine are in which we live and do business.

Yours truly.,
Nancy Ferguson

Operation Petunia needs financial help

Dear Editor:

On May 27, Charlevoix will be planting petunias from city limit to city limit for the 18th time. I am asking everyone to come out and give us a hand to help get the flowers planted. It's fun, and it shows what a little community can do, working together. We are very appreciative of how everyone has worked together each year.

For the first time ever, I am also asking all who enjoy the flowers during the summer to help Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB) financially. To put it plainly, we need money to do a first class job. KCB is not having an auction or party this year, and I want to thank those who have already made donations to our flower project. All donations are tax deductible. To operate, we need $90 per week for fertilizer and $7 per day for gas for the truck. We also need to cover the cost of weeding the flowers. We must have weeding done. This has been the downfall of other cities' flower projects. We are willing to do the work of watering, but must also be able to have the weeds pulled out. My belief is if you can't do a job right, don't do it at all. I also believe that if you ask, you shall receive. We would appreciate any help you can give, large or small.

The Petunia truck in a Lansing parade.

We are not connected in any way with the pool project, and all money contributed will be used for buying the flowers and caring for them. We have always been willing to do our work for nothing, and we need your generosity to keep the project going.

Marilyn and I have been getting up at 4 a.m. for the last 17 years to spread 12,000 to 15,000 gallons of water per day on petunias, and we have never received a cent for our time. We can't let the flowers go without water for over 36 hours, so when we have to go to a parade, we water them the night before. We take the float to 12 large parades every summer. The chamber of commerce pays rent for the truck and the fuel to power the truck, since we advertise Charlevoix in the parades. Citizens Bank pays $2,000 per year for advertising on the back of the truck, which is supposed to go for the future replacement of the cab and chassis. This is the 13th year the truck has been used for parades, and sooner or later it will have to be replaced.

I personally change oil and continually wash and hand polish the truck, as we represent Charlevoix, whether we are in a big parade in Michigan or on the streets of town. We are not paid for this. It is our contribution to making the town live up to its name. With everyone helping in their own way, the project goes on from year to year, and we have a beautiful addition of flowers to our lovely town.

Contributions may be sent to: Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Thank you,
Dale Boss
Originator and chairman

Area students take part in research

Teresa Holt of Charlevoix and Kris Snyder of East Jordan displayed research projects at a Central Michigan University student exhibition.

The sixth annual Student Research and Creative Endeavors Exhibition featured displays and computer and video demonstrations of class projects, senior and masters degree theses and other research projects by both undergraduate and graduate students.

"Research helps students bridge the gap between classroom learning and the 'real world,'" said Carole Beere, dean of graduate studies and assistant vice president for research at CMU.

"Students who participate in research develop skills and work habits that will serve them well whether they go on to graduate school or enter the workplace," said Beere.

Holt, a senior at CMU majoring in psychology, participated in research related to the development of a therapeutic treatment for Parkinson's disease. She tested the motor skills of adult rats after injecting them with a chemical substance designed to bring on Parkinson's disease-like symptoms.

A graduate of Charlevoix High School, Holt is the daughter of Jim and Angel Bearss.

Snyder, a graduate student at CMU pursuing a master's degree in aquatic biology, examined the makeup and density of algae in Crystal Lake and Lake Michigan. His goal was to study the impact of algae on perch populations in both lakes.

A graduate of East Jordan High School, Snyder is the son of Robert and Linda Snyder.

Charlevoix grad does well in precision flying competition

Michael Cherry, a 1998 Charlevoix High School graduate, is a member of the Sky Broncos, Western Michigan University's precision flight team that captured third place at the 1999 National Intercollegiate Flying Association championship. It is the team's eighth consecutive top three finish at the annual event.

Cherry is a freshman at Western Michigan University, majoring in aviation flight science. He is the son of Gail and Eric Cherry of Ellsworth.

The event was held at Kansas State University at Salina, Kan., April 27 through May 1.

The competition is judged on the basis of points earned in four flight events and six ground events. Cherry participated in the ground events.

"We are extremely pleased with the team's performance," said Sky Broncos head coach Ryan Seiler. "Especially given the large number of new team members we have this year."

Raymond O. Carr

Raymond O. Carr, 81, of Charlevoix, died Wednesday May 12 at Charlevoix Area Hospital. The funeral service was Saturday, May 15 at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Dale Ostema officiated, and burial followed in Brookside Cemetery.

Raymond was born March 5, 1918 in McClure, Ohio, the son of Glenwood Fay and Nellie Elizabeth (Farison) Carr.

Mr. Carr attended a one-room country school in Lenawee County, Mich., for grades 1-8, until 1932. He then attended Metamora High School in Metamora, Ohio, graduating in 1936. Raymond then went on to Bowling Green State University to complete his B.S. degree in education in 1940.

On Nov. 29, 1940 he entered the U.S. Air Corps and fought in WW II in the Pacific Theater. Raymond achieved the rank of Major before his separation on Sept. 15, 1945.

Raymond married Lillian Hart on Dec. 17, 1942 in Salt Lake City, Utah. After their wedding, they traveled to many USAF stations, including Texas, Washington, Florida and Tennessee. Following his discharge from the service, Mr. and Mrs. Carr returned to his home town of Metamora, Ohio where Raymond taught and was a coach at the high school until 1948.

From 1948-1952 Mr. Carr was a self-employed dairy farmer in Blissfield, Mich. Following his work as a farmer, Raymond moved to Barryton, Mich., where he taught and served as principal until 1961. During this time, Mr. Carr also returned to Michigan State University to complete his masters degree in educational administration in 1959. After completing his masters degree, he served as superintendent of Vanderbilt Schools from 1961-63. Raymond also worked as superintendent at Lake City Schools before moving to Charlevoix in 1966 to serve as high school principal until 1971. He completed his career as principal and math teacher at Charlevoix Middle School until his retirement in February, 1976.

Raymond was a member of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, American Legion Post #226, NRA, AARP, Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix, alumni clubs of Bowling Green State and Michigan State universities, NEAR, MEAR and MARSP.

He is survived by his wife, Lillian, of Charlevoix; children, Dennis (Connie) Carr of Charlevoix, Diana (Steve) Weisgerber of Tustin, Mich., Nancy Foltz of Galveston, Texas, Elaine (Robert) Rydze of Iowa City, Iowa; 11 grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; one brother, Lyle A. BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Joe Johnston
Charlevoix Assembly of God Church

Have you ever wondered what life is about? I'm sure you have. It seems like every sensible human being has. Some of us ponder this question at length only to stop pondering and go on with our lives. Others come upon this question and very quickly leave it left unanswered. Maybe we feel it will never be answered or it's impossible to know. Oh, really? What is our purpose?

Many years ago Henry Ford made his first automobile or horseless carriage, as he called it. It was an incredible breakthrough in transportation and we all benefit from its creation, either directly (owner/operator) or indirectly (deliveries of all kinds). Do you think Henry Ford's automobile was an accident? No, of course not! It was a well thought out plan. But the plan itself did not originate until there was a need. The need for easier travel brought about the purpose of the automobile.

It's been decades since the first car was driven by Henry Ford. Has the car changed since then? Immensely! Even though the components, materials and the way they operate have changed, the purpose for the automobile has not changed one Iacoca.

The automobile has a specific purpose. The way to find out what that purpose is is not to ask your Chevrolet, Ford or Nissan. It's the manufacturer who determines the purpose for the thing. When God created you, He did not do it by accident. You have everything you need to fulfill His purpose for your life. Your fulfillment in life is dependent on your becoming and doing what you were born to be and do. As a matter of fact, everything God created has a purpose. Just look at a tree. It gives shade, yields fruit for us to eat and produces oxygen for us to breathe. It has a specific purpose. Have you asked your Maker why you were given breath? Why are you here? Why are you reading about purpose right now? Our Creator is trying to get your attention. Your purpose comes from Him. Consult the Lord Jesus Christ. He is your Maker. A monumental effort

Emory Sloan (left), Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs counselor, and Kevin Stark, inspector for the building department, recently presented the county commissioners with a plaque of appreciation for the county's generous donation of $1,500 to the Vietnam Monument Commission. This was presented on behalf of the Michigan Vietnam Monument Commission and the Michigan Department of Military and Veterans Affairs in Lansing. Stark was instrumental in introducing this request to the board of commissioners. Michigan lost more lives during Vietnam, on a per capita basis, than any other state. Yet today, Michigan is among the last states to erect an official monument in their memory. Michigan lost 2,649 people in the Vietnam War. A 100-foot-long, 10-foot-tall steel arc monument will be erected in the Michigan Veterans Memorial Park in Lansing. It will bear the names of the Michigan people who lost their lives in Vietnam. Scanner dedication brought crowds of hospital friends and supporters

Charlevoix Area Hospital was visited by more than 75 people Saturday, May 8, to participate in the formal dedication of the C-T Scanner in honor of Tom and Esther Carey, longtime Charlevoix residents and hospital supporters.

The hospital's board of directors decided to name the scanner in honor of the Careys because of their many years of service, work and contributions to the hospital, its staff and patients. A plaque with the Carey's portrait now hangs in the scanner area.

Tom Carey currently is a board member at the hospital, a position he has held for the past 22 years, with the exception of a brief break. He is a past president of the board and is now active in the hospital's Development Council. Esther worked at the hospital as far back as 1944, and she has been a volunteer at the hospital for the past 12 years. She is proud of the fact that she was never late or called in sick once in all her years of service.

Tom is president of the Northwest Michigan Shriners and Senior Warden of the Masonic Lodge. He and his wife, Esther, are patron and associate matron of the Eastern Star, and have served on the vestry of Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix. Tom retired from the Horner Equipment Company in 1985, where he was a regional salesman.

The Careys, six of their seven children and 16 grandchildren were at the hospital for the dedication, as well as staff, volunteers, other board members, physicians and friends.

For more information about the scanner, call Tamara Stevens at 547-8501.

Plans to move a road get squelched by township board

By Jamie MacMillan

An ambitious project by the Charlevoix County Parks and Recreation Commission to relocate a road and replace it with a lakeside park has been delayed through a vote by the local township board.

The county commission has plans to abandon and relocate a portion of Magee Road off of the south end of Thumb Lake. The remaining land would be converted into a public park.

The county had eyed this spring to begin their project and the local road commission has already spent $6,550 on preliminary engineering and survey work.

Because the road is within a certain distance of a lake, the local township must first approve road relocation. During a recent meeting, the Hudson Township board turned down a request to move the road in a 3-2 vote.

Township supervisor Terry Erber, who voted against the request, said it's preferable to keep the road close to the water.

"It's a nice road to drive down and see the lake," he said. "If it moves 300 feet away, we lose that."

Erber also said it's a convenient access site for ice fisherman setting up their winter shanties. He also said that with the road close to the beach and water, that people driving by could spot injured people. The beach is not equipped with a lifeguard and with a new road out of site, that safety valve would be lost.

Ironically, it's safety issues that spurred county officials to attempt to relocate the road. The road and beach practically melt into one another and county officials fear that with people cruising the road at high speeds, an accident is waiting to happen.

"Everyone has to cross the road to get to the beach and cross back to use the bathrooms," parks and recreation chairman Ralph Harmon said. "With all the traffic in the summertime, it's only time before something bad happens."

"We just want to relieve some pressure off of the lake."

The projected reroute of Magee Road would be about 350 feet to the east of where the road currently sits and approximately 2,653 feet, close to one-half mile, of new road would be built.

The beach in question sits on about 500,000 square feet of county owned property. The property includes both sides of Magee Road.

The county had a deal in place with the Lake Louise Christian Community to abandon the road and give the organization the land in exchange for easement rights to create a new road.

The group, a large Methodist organization that owns much of the land surrounding the entire lake, had promised the county enough easements to build a 66 foot wide road, Harmon said.

Erber, however, highlighted that arrangement as another reason some township officials were leery about the project.

"We didn't want to sign off on that, we want to keep that land public," the supervisor said. "The Christian Community can still go ahead and give them the easements without getting the land in return."

Erber noted that his board tabled the issue four different times to gauge local opinion and that safety fears didn't seem to be an issue.

As for the future of the project, Harmon said he was confident that eventually it will become a reality. In the meantime, he plans discussions with township officials and residents to educate them on why their actions need support.

"You always run into snags," he said. "Maybe with a new board or a different part of the board, the idea will fly again."

Local bank promotes employees, adds new member to staff

Gerald Russell

Beverly Ironside

Michael Hinkle

Marilyne Joy

Terri Wojan

Richard Hodgson, chairman of Charlevoix State Bank, announced at a recent shareholders meeting that four bank employees are being promoted:

Michael Hinkle, who joined the bank in 1997 as a specialist in commercial lending, has been promoted to vice president.

Beverly Ironside, who joined the bank in 1996 as an assistant vice president, has been promoted to vice president. She has 20 years of mortgage lending experience.

Marilyne Joy, who has been with Charlevoix State Bank since it was formed, has been promoted to vice president. She has 18 years experience in banking.

Terri Wojan has been promoted from bookkeeping supervisor to operations officer. She has been with Charlevoix State Bank since it opened and has 11 years of banking experience.

"This was the perfect opportunity to recognize the accomplishments of these persons who have done so much for the bank and its shareholders," Hodgson said.

In addition to the promotions, Gerald L. (Jerry) Russell recently joined the staff of Charlevoix State Bank as an assistant vice president and lending officer. Russell brings to the bank the expertise which he developed during his 25 years of banking experience.

Russell's banking career began soon after his graduation from Charlevoix High School, when he joined Charlevoix County State Bank as a teller. He advanced through the various departments of the bank, learning all aspects of the community banking industry. Besides his primary responsibilities as a consumer and commercial lending officer, Russell was involved in bank security, employee training, credit cards and compliance. He is a graduate of Northern Michigan University School of Banking and has taken other course work to continue his development as a community banker.

Russell has been active in community affairs as a past member of the Lions Club, a director of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, currently as a member of the Charlevoix Township Board of Review and the Charlevoix United Methodist Church.

Among Russell's new responsibilities will be the opening of Charlevoix State Bank's new north side office in the former Credit Union building.

"Jerry came to us at the perfect time," said bank president John Kurtz. "His wide range of banking skills and all of the friends he has made through the years of helping people will be of great benefit to the bank."

BUSINESS

In-home business offers blinds at considerable savings

Touting well-known brands at unheard of prices, a local businesswoman has opened her own custom window blinds and shades business.

Deborah McCall-Meier has opened Made in the Shade custom blind service.

A Charlevoix resident, McCall-Meier is a member of both the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the local Zonta Club.

The business is unique in that it doesn't have a storefront. Instead, McCall-Meier offers free, in-home shopping, by appointment only.

McCall-Meier said such a service has many benefits to the customer, from relaxed shopping to savings.

"Instead of rushing around after work, customers can sit back, relax and sip coffee during their shopping experience," she said. "There is no need for a retail store, so our overhead costs are kept to a minimum. We are able to pass a significant cost savings along to our customers."

McCall-Meier has been a window fashion consultant for fine furniture and floor covering stores throughout northern Michigan. Through those experiences, she recognized a need for custom window blinds and shades at affordable prices.

Brand names available include Hunter Douglas, LouverDrape, Levelor, Verosol, Comfortex and Blind X-Press. Her extensive product line includes wood, vertical and mini-blinds, pleated, honeycomb, roller and roman shades as well as both Luminette and Silhouette products.

Products need to be ordered and McCall-Meier noted that delivery time take usually two weeks.

McCall-Meier noted that with product lines such as Comfortex and Blind-Xpress she can offer savings of up to 70 percent off retail prices.

PowerRise, cordless, custom drapery and window tinting services are also available.

As an introductory special, Made in the Shade is waiving their professional installation fee.

"I've had a lot of fun helping people find the perfect solution for their home or office," McCall-Meier said. "It's very satisfying knowing now everyone can afford quality custom window blinds for their home or office."

Made in the Shade is scheduling free, in-home shopping at your convenience. The business hours are Monday-Saturday from 9 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. Call locally at 347-8399 or toll-free at 1-877-54SHADE.

Don't miss petunia planting and picnic next week

The Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board of directors invites the public to join young and old in planting petunias along the city's main thoroughfare starting at 5 p.m. Thursday, May 27. The Northwest Academy Jazz All Stars will be performing while the streets are lined with planters. The jazz band will also play in the park during the hot dog picnic.

As has been the tradition for 18 years, the petunia planting will take place along five miles of U.S. 31, from the junction of M-66 to a location past the municipal golf course on the north side of the city. The highway is narrowed from four to two lanes at 1 p.m. and flowers are distributed from about 2 to 4 p.m. The Charlevoix County Transit trolley will be shuttling people from one part of town to the other to distribute planters.

Planters are invited to bring their own trowel, spoon or other planting implement and dress to get dirty.

Those who would like to participate should look for one of the 22 block captains, who will be wearing orange vests. They will offer directions and tickets for the petunia picnic.

If you are interested in being a block captain, call Jackie at 547-5444. There will be a block captain meeting at 5 p.m. Wednesday, May 26 at the Charlevoix Public Library. Planting instructions will be given at that time.

Participants will receive a ticket for a free dinner in East Park at 6 p.m., as well as special coupons from Dairy Queen, 7-Eleven and Kilwins.

Any extra petunias will be on sale in the park for $8 per flat.

A growing group of benefactors have each contributed $100 or more to support the petunia project. The board continues to welcome new benefactors. For more information, call 547-5494.

Petunias, planting, and picnic tradition

Hundred of people always gather in East Park to enjoy the hot dog picnic offered to workers after the petunia planting. This year, planting will begin at 5 p.m. Thursday, May 27 along U.S. 31. (Photo courtesy of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful)

Venetian Parade sees changes this year

Planning is under way for Charlevoix's 69th Annual Venetian Festival Street Parade. The theme this year will be, "Farewell to the 1900s." Participants are asked to choose a decade and decorate floats to reflect the era chosen.

Deadline to enter the parade is June 25. The street parade will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday, July 24.

There are two important rule changes this year. First, a $100 sponsor fee will be charged to all commercial entries. Second, elected officials as well as candidates will no longer be included in the parade. The exception will be law enforcement officials who are on duty and in uniform, and officials and candidates participating in another capacity.

For the first time there will be a limit to the number of entries due to the popularity of the parade. If your float is accepted, you will be mailed your line-up information, including your parade position.

T-shirt design needed for Venetian Festival

The Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Inc., will host a competition for the design of the official 69th Annual Venetian Festival T-shirt. This year's Charlevoix Venetian Festival will be July 22-25. The winners of the T-shirt design contest will receive a cash prize of $200.

Original designs should be submitted on 8 1/2" by 11" white paper as clean line art (no shading or fills) in black ink. Color fills or special shading areas should be included on a separate tracing overlay. Custom font lettering, which can be very time consuming, is acceptable but certainly not necessary. We are more interested in your original design concept.

Make sure to identify your artwork by including your name, address and telephone number.

The winning design becomes the exclusive property of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Inc. Remaining entries will be returned to the respective artists.

All artwork should be submitted to the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Inc., P.O. Box 120, Charlevoix, MI 49720. The deadline for submission is Tuesday, June 15. Please be sure to adhere to the required specifications.

Turning left?

Emily Martinus not only leaps over hurdles well, she can signal a crisp left turn while doing so.

What goes up, must come down

Charlevoix's Ben VanGuilder shows that you can defy the laws of gravity for only so long. VanGuilder made this long jump in a recent track meet at Charlevoix. In an invitational meet last Saturday at Houghton Lake, the girls' team brought home six medals, and finished in eighth place in a field of 15 teams. Charlevoix's Tricia Hodge, Liza Gorkiewicz, Laura Schairbaum and Katie Swenor combined to place second in the 3200 relay with a time of 10:13.9. Also for Charlevoix, Gorkiewicz placed fourth in the 1600, Sarah Dominic was fourth in the discus, Meghan Vogel tied for fifth in the pole vault and Emily Martinus was sixth in the 300 hurdles. Schairbaum, Martinus, Jenny Miller and Kelly Reid teamed up to place fifth in the 800 relay.

The boys' and girls' track team now heads into the regional track meet Saturday, May 22, which will be in Charlevoix. (Photos by Laurie Lounsbury)

JV baseball team beats Mancelona, varsity team falls to Boyne City

The Charlevoix varsity baseball team suffered a hard loss at the hands of Boyne City, 11-0, in a game played at Boyne City May 10. In the second game of the day, Charlevoix rebounded, but not enough to take the win. The final score of game two was Charlevoix 5, Boyne City 6.

Ryan Bier pitched in the first game, with Tom Kennedy pitching the final two innings.

Jeremiah Teuscher had two singles, with Bier and Shay Hutchison each adding singles.

In game two, Shay Hutchison pitched the entire game, allowing eight hits and two walks, and one Charlevoix error. Hutchison struck out six players. At bat, Hutchison had two doubles, Bier had two singles, Rob Boss doubled once, while Teuscher, Matt Horon and Jerry Zeitler added singles.

Boyne City came from behind in the last inning of game two with a single and stolen base by Nick Karaszewski.

"In this double header we started four freshmen and two sophomores," said coach Scott Kelly. "In game one, the defensive mistakes hurt us. In game two, the lack of experience brought about many of our miscues down the stretch. Boyne City played well and came back, as they have during much of the season."

The varsity record stands at 7-13 overall, and 3-7 in conference play.

In Junior Varsity action, Dennis Avery tossed a three-hitter and Chris Loper collected three hits in game two Friday as the junior varsity Rayder baseball team handed the Mancelona Ironmen their first loss of the season and salvaged a split of a non-league doubleheader.

"After a disappointing first game it was great to see the team come back with a split," said Rayder coach Pete Scholten.

Avery struck out nine and walked one for the pitching victory.

In game one, Loper took the loss. He allowed 12 hits, struck out 10 and walked one. The Rayders committed five errors behind him.

Avery and Loper each doubled for Charlevoix.

Both varsity and junior varsity soccer teams claim wins

The Charlevoix Rayders beat Suttons Bay 2-1 in an away game played last week. Suttons Bay player Nicole Davenport scored midway through the first half on a break away. The Rayder's Abby Schaperkotter lobbed one over the goal keeper early in the second half on a throw in by Lindsey Simmons. Taya Drost picked up the game winning goal with seven minutes left to play on a pass from Erika Kammermann.

"I was pleased with the girls' efforts," said coach Hagen Manker. "We were able to control the ball and keep it in our offensive third. Karlee Barnard was our unsung hero of the game, marking Davenport and keeping her scoring possibilities down. Mandy Webb, Lindsay Carland, Kelly Kusina, Juli Swenor, Brook Block and Kate Madison all stepped up to make this a team win."

In Monday's game against Elk Rapids, the Rayders claimed the victory, 4-3 over the Lady Elks.

The team plays next at Cheboygan Wednesday, May 19.

In JV action, it took two sudden death overtime periods to determine the winner in a thrilling game between Charlevoix and Cheboygan. Cheboygan jumped to an early lead, and had the Rayders down 1-0 at half-time.

Early in the second half, Kate Madison crossed a pass in front of the goal to Karlee Barnard, who popped it in to put the Rayders on the scoreboard. Within minutes of Barnard's goal, stopper Jayme Murray, assisted by Elissa Wood, sent a shot just inside the post to put Charlevoix in the lead.

With only three minutes remaining, Cheboygan got off a shot which sailed in the wind over goalie Laura Potter's hands to tie the game. Both teams battled it out, but the game went into overtime.

During the first 15 minute period, the two teams matched each other in strong defensive play. Both sides got shots on goal, but neither was able to score. A two minute break was given, and 15 more minutes went on the clock.

The clock was running out when Taryn Drost carried the ball in unassisted to make the game-winning goal, her first in a game. With only one minute and 36 seconds remaining, Charlevoix had won. Danielle Vogelheim and Marcy Bennett contributed greatly to the win. Laura Potter also played well in goal, completing her first full

Potential grass fire nipped in the bud

Charlevoix Township and city firefighters were quick to get water on a fire on Bob Timms' property located near Garfield and Sheridan streets. The blaze was found in piles of discarded junk. The culprit was probably a discarded cigarette that was still burning.

Great art abounds at elementary school show

Clockwise, from top left: Visitors to the Charlevoix Schools Art Show passed under a rainbow arch as they worked their way through the many halls packed with student art.

Jenni Jacobson, a second grade student, was pleased to find her artwork hanging in the gym. With thousands of pieces of art on display, it's quite a challenge for parents and students to find the family works of art.

High School senior Jessica Seibert did this painting of the Pine River Channel, Past and Present. Bill Supernaw, owner of the Charlevoix Cinema, was so impressed with her work that he reportedly commissioned Jessica to paint a mural at the movie theater.

Ellise Smolenyak, second grade, stands by her dinosaur painting in the school hallway.

SCRAPBOOK

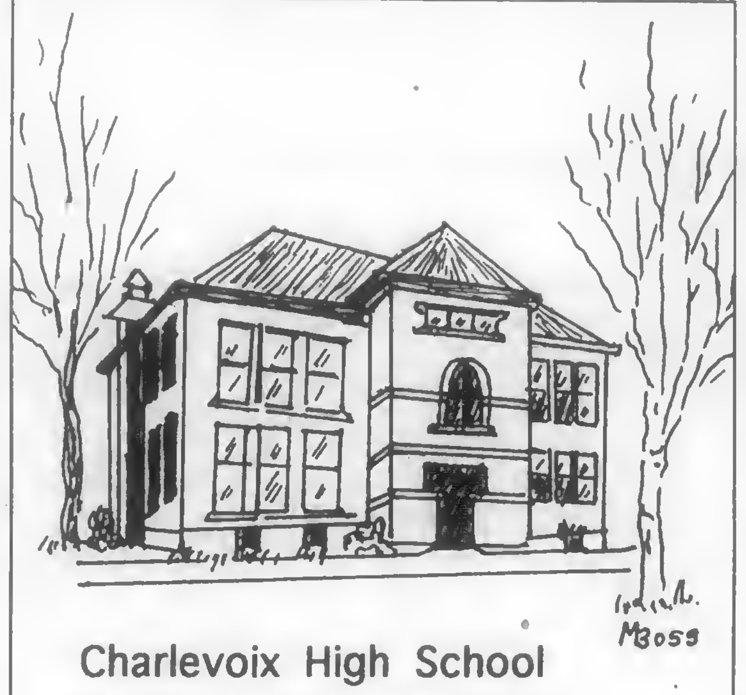
Charlevoix school paper reveals a lot about the kids in 1950

By Marilyn Boss

I came across some old school papers the other day, and they brought back memories of high school days. Our school paper at the time was called The Crimson Flash. It was an important part of our lives. Mr. D.C. Maltby, the general business teacher, was the first advisor, and in 1949, Mr. William Billings took over. LoAnne Andersen was the editor in 1946-47. Beverly Looze took over in '47-'48, Phyllis Mason in '49-'50, and Alvin Ranger took the position in '50-'51. There were 16 reporters in 1947, and in 1950, the reporters had grown to 43. The typing was done by the advanced typing class, and there were also several sports writers and artists involved. The paper was very interesting, with lots of articles about school activities, gossip columns, fiction stories, Who's Who, the top hit song list, plus profiles of new students and teachers..

In reading over these issues, I was very impressed with the quality and quantity of articles which the students put out every week.

These were the years when I was involved with the paper. I began as a reporter in 1947, and then as an artist, drawing line pictures for the cover and inside articles. I also worked on the light table, copying all art work which other students did. These were the final artwork drawings, which were then printed. I used an instrument called a stylus, which was a pen-like instrument with a sharp point that cut the lines of the artwork into the blue, machine-ready copy. This was then placed on the inked wheel, which duplicated it. Our advisors were always there to help, and the work turned out by the students biweekly was top notch.



Charlevoix High School

As it looked in the years '47-'50

Used from 1901 to 1959

Marilyn Boss used to draw line art such as this for the school newspaper.

We had school plays every year, put on by the junior and senior classes. On June 12, 1949, the junior class put on the play "Almost Eighteen." In the play were Jack Dodge, Mary Lagerman (Cunningham) Michael Bergeon, Tom Hamlin, Mary Roberts (Schrant), myself, Lorna Lewis, Roger Sweet, Ann Gill (Puffpaff), Sue Miles (Miller) Betty Orvis (Cooper) and George Haggard. The admittance was 60 cents for adults, 35 cents for students, and 20 cents for children.

During those years, the kids went to Oscar Stroud's teen center, "The Wayside," where dancing, games, refreshments and good times were enjoyed. Also, there was Del's Dairy Bar, owned by Del and Joan Clow. It was located on Bridge Street where Terry's Place is now. They served sundaes and sodas. We kept so busy during those years that there wasn't time for much mischief. I also went to the Methodist Church, where four of us put out a monthly paper called "The Hurricane." It was similar to the Crimson Flash, and covered all our activities in the youth fellowship. Roger Sweet, Lorna Lewis, Beverly Trimble and I were the staff of that paper. Rev. G. D. Howell, pastor of the church, and Mr. W. Billings were our adult advisors. We put this paper out in 1949-1950. The Methodist Youth Fellowship was very active in those years, and we had a large group of kids who attended our meetings. They were also our reporters.

In 1948, several boys had a band called "The Sour Note Five." Those involved were Jim Gibbons, Bob Shanahan, Nick Hamilton, Bruce Shanahan, and Tom Bleha. They played at pep meetings and claimed they produced refined, cultured and nothing but the best music. The song I remember best was their rendition of a Spike Jones' hit. Some of the words were "When der Fuhrer says, "Ve is der Master Race," we "Heil, puttch... Heil, puttch... right in der Fuhrer's face!" I must say, it was always entertaining, and they were good!! Later, some of them were on a national radio amateur show.

In the paper's many articles was one which listed the kids who were going steady in 1949. They all eventually married and remained that way. This list included Audrey Stevenson and Jim Joliffe, Janet King and Don Hardy, Joane Crump and Jack Grubaugh, Mary Lagerman and Ron Cunningham, Marilyn Ikens and Dale Boss, Frances Potter and Bernie Ward, and Nancy Kipke and Don Bambach.

Our class of 1950 was called the Mid-Century class, and our 50th reunion will be in 2000, so we intend to have a great time when we get together. School days were wonderful and exciting 50 years ago, and we had great teachers who taught us discipline and allowed us to do creative things, which made our years at Charlevoix High School very memorable.

War helped vet become a better teacher

By B. J. Hetler

Max Novak displays a photo of himself, taken when he was a young man serving in the United States Navy. (Photo by B.J. Hetler)

Max Novak credits his service in the Navy during World War II for helping him open up the world to his high school students.

A Charlevoix native, Novak taught high school in Charlevoix for 29 years and was a middle school principal for four years. He used his travel experience in other countries while in the Navy to help his students learn about other cultures. Time in Spain, England, France, Italy, and other destinations gave him experiences and knowledge he would pass on to others.

At 88, Novak is one of Charlevoix's oldest World War II veterans. In a time when the U.S. had a draft, he enlisted in 1942, not long after the bombing of Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941. He says he is unsure about the draft.

"It's up to each individual to do what they want to do," Novak said. "I think it might be a better military if it were all volunteer."

Novak began his service as a junior grade lieutenant and then earned the rank of senior grade lieutenant. He served for three years and then retired from the Navy. He is a life member of the Charlevoix American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"I saw a lot of the world," Novak said. "The Navy was pretty liberal about leave and when we were in port we had time to go around. Lots of time to travel." As soon as the Germans and Italians surrendered, they could pretty much go anywhere, he said.

At one port in Italy he met and shook hands with Pope Pius XII. He was with other officers when someone asked for the person with the highest rank.

"It just happened to be me," Novak said. He used his education in Latin and exchanged a few words with the Pope. From college and travel Novak became fluent in Spanish and French, and also learned some Portuguese and Slavic.

The Navy sent Novak to Cornell University where he made it into the top 10 of his class. "It was a lot of hard work, a lot of hustling," he said.

Not long after Novak enlisted, he was told he would be shipped out. He and his wife, Frances, had 30 days to prepare. They didn't know where he was going.

"I knew they would take me. I just decided to tend to business until it was over. You never knew where you were going when they sent you somewhere," Novak said. "It might be used by the enemy."

Frances wrote faithfully from the beginning, Novak said. They had one daughter and another child on the way when he was assigned to a ship that hauled supplies and food to the bases. He later served on an AK ship that transported troops as well, and was known as Thaddeus Kosciusko in memory of a Polish general who was a hero in this country's Revolutionary War.

Novak was stationed in the Atlantic and Mediterranean until the last year of the war when his ship traveled through the Panama Canal

Flower power

Charlevoix Elementary School kindergarten students lined Bridge Street last Thursday evening armed with paint brushes and colorful paint. The students were taking no chances and wanted to make sure flowers were blooming along Bridge Street, regardless of weather. Shown here, Penny Bowling puts the finishing touches on flowers she painted on Carey's Shoes. It was the first year for the students to paint flowers on storefront windows, but it's been so well received that it might become an annual tradition. (More photos on page 15)

Charlevoix junior golf program among best in nation

The Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association will be recognized this summer by the National Association of Junior Golfers (NAJG) as having one of the top 16 junior programs in the United States.

Executive Director Dean Davenport was contacted recently by the national office and, after submitting program material, was notified that the national group would be highlighting the local program as one of the best in the country in an upcoming publication.

Program strengths that will be recognized by the national office are: The excellent number of participants that have been in the program for the past five years, the excellent volunteer teaching professionals that make up the instructional staff, and the tremendous cooperation received from Dunmaglas, Antrim Dells, Belvedere Golf Club, the Charlevoix Country Club, and the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course in allowing their facilities to be used in the teaching of golf skills to junior players.

The popular "Supe Invitational Golf Classic," the community's sole fund-raiser, got special acclaim as an example of how local interests can provide leadership in golf for youth.

A very unique feature of the program that also got "high marks" from national officials was the camp scholarship program that issues tuition, room and board awards to five or six of the older participants so they can attend the week-long Ferris State Golf Camp.

Dean Davenport was very pleased with the honor.

"When they called and said we were being recognized along with outstanding programs in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Phoenix, Albuquerque and other cities of that size, I was extremely proud of what we've accomplished," Davenport said. "It's obvious we have a great program. Youngsters from all over Northern Michigan have been attracted to our program, so we know we've got an attractive product. The support we receive from management of local courses and their teaching pros has been the key. We're grateful to everyone that helps. Our board and staff are convinced that through golf, we can expose young people to desirable traits and attributes that will do them well for a lifetime of success. Playing golf successfully is simply a byproduct of what we're really trying to accomplish — character building. And that's what really excites me!"

to the Pacific. In the Atlantic and the Mediterranean other U.S. ships were always around so there was protection, Novak said. In the Pacific, ships were out there watching for Japanese submarines alone and it was an eerie feeling.

Novak was in charge of the ship's gunnery. "I gave the orders of when to shoot and where," he said.

Joining the Navy was the right decision for him, Novak said.

"I was well treated and well paid. The Navy was the best service for me."

But when the war ended in August, 1945, Novak was glad to come home. Frances and he continued their teaching careers in several Michigan cities before returning to Charlevoix. For two decades, from 1973 to 1993, Novak served on the school board, and was board president for 19 of those 20 years.

He also served on the Charlevoix Area Hospital board.

About 15 years ago Frances died.

"It really changes your life when your wife goes," Novak said. The couple have five grown children. "We had three girls and then twin boys," Novak said.

Comparing World War II with the conflicts of today makes Novak uneasy about present-day military methods, he said.

"It was more of a sensible war because we were defending our country," Novak said. "I'm not too crazy about what's going on now."

Friend and fellow World War II veteran Charlie Butcher agrees.

"The present situation is mind-boggling," Butcher said. "These presidential wars started with the Korean conflict. Every action presidents have taken have all been presidential wars, since World War II."

Butcher served as a flight engineer and was in the Army Air Force from 1944 to 1955.

"You'd still be in if they let you," Novak teased his friend.

Butcher agreed. "I tried to go to Korea."

Both veterans say they are happy about the government's decision to erect a national monument to honor World War II veterans, the first of its kind. Plans are drawn for the monument and it will be built around the Reflection Pool in Washington, D.C.

"There were 12 million men and women in the service during World War II, and 35,000 are dying each month now," Butcher said. Most veterans are now in their 70s and 80s.

Charlevoix's Memorial Day Parade will include about a dozen veterans, Butcher said. Novak will not participate this year because of upcoming surgery on his knee.

"I'll miss it, but I feel fortunate to have been able to have so many years in the parade." Novak doesn't know if he'll be back to march next year.

"I might — you never know."

Ericka Faust, a second grade student, was pleased to find her artwork hanging in the gym. With thousands of art pieces on display, it's quite a challenge for students to find their works of art.

Corrections

In the May 19 issue of the Courier, a student was incorrectly identified. The correct caption and photo are shown at right.

There was also an error regarding the date of the Golf Scramble Shoot-out. The event will be Sept. 9, following the Vacation Properties Network golf tournament at the Charlevoix Country Club. Fifteen winning teams from local golf scrambles will be eligible to enter the Shoot-out, which is sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Community Pool. The winning team will be awarded $500.

In the May 19 issue of the Courier, there was an error in the court news. It should have said that a marriage license was issued in Charlevoix County to Joseph Daniel Froats, 39, of Petoskey and Deborah Ann Butler, 45, of East Jordan.

We regret the errors.

Conservancy receives beach parcel

The Charlevoix County Land Conservancy is pleased to announce the new Margaret P. Erber Nature Preserve on Beaver Island. Generously donated by Tom and Sue Erber of Charlevoix, the Margaret P. Erber Preserve is located on Little Sand Bay, at the mouth of the lovely little Jordan River, where the river meets the sugar sand beach.

"We are happy to donate this to the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy," said Tom Erber, son of Margaret and Karl Erber. "We wanted it to always remain in its natural state."

"This was Margaret's favorite place in the world," added Sue Erber. "It was her little bit of Heaven. She loved the river. Friends and family gathered there and the children spent many happy summer afternoons making rafts and exploring the pond and river."

Margaret P. (Fitch) Erber and her husband, Karl, were long-time Charlevoix residents and Karl conducted business on Beaver Island. Margaret was a charter member of the garden club. She loved flowers and nature and was an avid gardener.

The Charlevoix County Land Conservancy's mission is to advance community land stewardship and to protect critical lands. The conservancy is located at 108 Park Ave., Charlevoix.

Golf program needs mentors to stay on top

The Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association has launched a new program in hopes of attracting more adult volunteers to monitor junior golfers as they play during their lessons at local courses.

Because of the large number of youngsters attending the golf instruction, there is an increased need for more adult assistance. Adults serving as golf mentors are needed to walk along with the various age groups as they play a few holes to conclude their lessons.

Steve Braun, head PGA professional at the Belvedere Golf Club, has worked out a program with Junior Golf Director Dean Davenport so that adults who volunteer to serve as mentors and work at least half the scheduled lessons, can enjoy five rounds of golf with a companion and a cart as guests of the Belvedere for contributing to the growth and improvement of the program. The Mentor Corps, as the volunteers will be called, will walk with foursomes, emphasize golf safety, good etiquette and make suggestions when necessary as to the rules and good golf procedures.

Davenport was very pleased with the new mentoring program.

"Steve has been a fixture in our program from the start, serving as a founding teaching staff member," Davenport said. "It's a great gesture on the part of the Belvedere and Steve to realize that some new incentive is needed to reward our volunteers and to improve our program."

Those who would like to apply for the mentoring program or want more information should call Dean Davenport at 547-6433.

OPINIONS

Manhattan wedding with Charlevoix friends was great

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

The Charlevoix Network is alive and well in Manhattan!

The entire Kleinpell/MacGillivray clan gathered at the historic, gothic St. James Episcopal Church on Madison Avenue to attend the posh wedding of Peter Kleinpell Davenport (great-grandson of Charlevoix's Stewart Mott) and Marla Wonboy. For your information, Peter chose his middle name, Davenport, as his stage name for his successful acting career. (Among other appearances, he recently played the role of father on the road tour of The Sound of Music).

Peter spent nearly every summer in Charlevoix and attended Camp McSauba as a youngster. He and his bride will be returning here again, along with the rest of the far-flung family, to celebrate his mother's, (Joan MacGillivray) big birthday this July at Turtle Hill. (Joan's striking step-daughter, Erika MacGillivray, told me at the rehearsal dinner that she has to wait until next summer to have her wedding to Michael Hudnut at Turtle Hill).

Peter and Marla first met as students at Cranbrook, class of '85, but the romance didn't take off until they bumped into each other years later in a New York coffee shop. The friendship grew closer and closer over the next six years, until one day Peter invited Marla to meet the family and a wedding date was set.

The morning wedding took place on May 1, and the male attendants wore formal cutaway suits. Peter's sisters and his mother all looked stunning in pastel suits with large, decorated, brimmed hats. The bride glowed in an off-white satin wedding dress that belonged to Joan MacGillivray. She and the bridesmaids all wore shoes designed by Marla, who once worked as a shoe designer for Isaac Mizrahi.

After the ceremony, 150 guests, including Charlevoix's summer residents, Julie and Peter Cummings, were transported by double-decker buses to the New York Botanical Gardens in the Bronx, which of course, was in full bloom. We had to tear ourselves away from the lush, flowering tulips, pansies and lilacs to leisurely browse between the hors d'oeuvres stations of salmon and shrimp.

Following the hors d'oeuvres, guests were ushered into a large dining room, to the lilting music of Peter Duchin's orchestra. (As I danced by the band leader, I mentioned with a twinge of nostalgia that when I was in high school in San Francisco, I had danced to papa Eddie Duchin's Orchestra. He took me by surprise when he instantly offered to play my favorite dance tune).

Beautifully set tables surrounded the center dance floor, which was packed all afternoon. Still, everyone enjoyed the delicious luncheon, as described on the printed menu at each person's place setting. With accompanying wines, the meal consisted of the most tasty appetizer that I've ever had — a lemony spring asparagus risotto, followed by a cold salad of field greens and a choice of herbed, free range chicken or Chilean sea bass nicoise. A large, three-tiered wedding cake was wheeled onto the dance floor and served for dessert.

Buses departed again at 3:30 p.m. and as Charlevoix's guests hugged, kissed and bid each other goodbye, they promised to meet again "Up North" this summer, where the next family event will be celebrated in style.

Letters to the editor

(The following letters to the editor were submitted by students in Kathy Gowell's sixth grade English class at Charlevoix Middle School)

Charlevoix needs a new high school

Dear Editor:

We think Charlevoix needs a new high school. First of all, the elementary school is very overcrowded. Two fifth grade classes are located in portables and one class is in an open space with dividers. Also, the middle school is just too old and really can't be remodeled because of the cost. The ceilings in the middle school are cracked and leaking. The floors are warped and the electrical system wasn't made for computers. It isn't handicapped accessible and it is simply outdated. In addition, teachers have to put in their own carpet to stop the noise from traveling to other classrooms.

An idea that might work is to build a new high school where the bus garage and practice field stand today. Then move grades five through eight to the high school which would eliminate overcrowding in the elementary school.

We think with these changes the Charlevoix schools would be a better place to learn. We hope our community can raise enough money for a new school.

Sincerely yours,
Michael Wojan and Jaimen Waha

Bell at middle school sounds funny

Dear Editor:

I'm writing to encourage the public to consider a new middle school. To tell why, I said that, the bell sounds a little funny, the chairs squeak on the ground. Some lockers are broke and they're dirty. They also need new paint. The classrooms need to be enlarged. Also the P.A. system sounds a little scratchy, plus some are crooked. The school could use an elevator only for the handicapped. The noise bothers some teachers. So consider about building a new school.

Respectfully yours,
David Leusink

School district will start to see savings from early retirements

Biggest effect is at middle school, with nine retiring

By Jamie MacMillan

In the spring of 1997, Charlevoix school officials announced an early retirement plan for the faculty members of the district with more than two decades of service.

The plan allowed those faculty members to retire from their school positions in return for a monthly stipend during the first three years of their retirement.

When the plan was approved by the local board of education, the idea was to retire faculty with higher salaries and replace them with younger, lower salaried teachers to help alleviate growing budget problems.

Two years later, it appears that the retirement package is beginning to save the district some money.

The school's current fiscal year, which ends on June 30, 1999, casts a bleak projection of expenses exceeding revenues by $764,510, which will reduce the school's general funds to $2.1 million.

The next fiscal year, however, projects outspending of revenues by $62,330. Initially, the figures for the 1999-2000 fiscal year showed a $135,530 loss.

District business manager Judy Boss gave two reasons for the savings, both of which can be attributed to the early retirement plan and the effect it will have at the local middle school.

Fourteen faculty are retiring this year, nine of whom work at the Charlevoix Middle School.

Of those jobs, the equivalent of 1.5 staffers aren't being replaced. The ones who are will be replaced with new staffers at a level four salary. Most of the teachers retiring are above the 20th level and earn a base salary of around $55,000. At level four, the beginning base salary is $32,500.

The result will be a decrease of 10 percent, from $806,000 to $724,860, from this year to next in combined salary of middle school teachers.

Staying on the middle school level, salary line items regarding faculty in the school's special education, counseling and library programs are also decreasing by as much as 70 percent as experienced and higher paid teachers give way to new blood.

Faculty salaries at the elementary and high schools are also slated to decrease, but by much smaller amounts. At the K-5 building, a decrease of $28,500 is projected. At the high school, the district expects to spend about $1,000 less next year on faculty pay.

Boss told the board at a recent meeting that next year's budget could end up balanced because of a higher enrollment than expected.

Still, long term projections show a general fund below $500,000 in five years.

Shuffle no more along the shuffleboard courts

For the few who loved playing shuffleboard in East Park, there is sad news — the shuffleboard courts have been removed. For the many who tripped on the raised courts while attending art fairs and festivals in the park, the news is probably good. City manager Mike Wiesner reports that the courts were removed because of the many problems they caused during community events held in the park. Future renovation plans for East Park include shuffleboard courts that will be flush with the ground. The Downtown Development Authority hasn't set a groundbreaking date for park renovations yet.

Garden Club hosts awards party for poster contest winners

An award ceremony was hosted by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club at the elementary school last week for the poster contest winners. Prizes were awarded to 15 elementary school students who were winners in the contest. The theme of the contest was protecting the environment and posters had to include Smokey Bear or Woodsy Owl.

Nathaniel Sotuyo, a fifth grade student, was the overall winner. Nathaniel was awarded a $50 savings bond, a framed certificate and a seedling evergreen tree. Rebecca Haney of the local and State of Michigan Federated Garden Club also announced that Nathaniel was a State of Michigan winner and received honorable mention in the five state district.

Other Charlevoix poster contest winners were:

First grade: Jacob Waterman, first, Shawn Anthony, second and Gunner Whitley, third.

Second grade: Veronica Shull, first, Weston Bryan, second and Shauna Spencley, third.

Third grade: Emily Foster, first, Michael Lenhart, second and Sahr Siddiqi, third.

Fourth Grade: Leah Dean, first, Kent Hice, second and Chris Waha, third.

Charlevoix Zonta Club celebrates 10th anniversary

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club recently celebrated its 10th anniversary, and in honor of the occasion, Mayor Butch Russell declared May 19 Zonta Day in Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club was formed 10 years ago with the assistance of the Zonta Club of Petoskey. In the past 10 years, the Charlevoix Zonta Club has improved the legal, educational, health and professional status of women throughout the Charlevoix community by its sponsorship and support of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, the Women's Resource Center, the Charlevoix Food Pantry and the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, to name a few of the local agencies that have benefited from Zonta assistance.

Club members marked the anniversary with a celebration at the Weathervane Restaurant. In attendance were Carol Curtis, Zonta governor, Julianne Binienda, lt. governor, Betty Krueger, treasurer of Zonta International, Sondra Vosper, Area I director, many members of the Petoskey club and some of the Charlevoix Zonta Charter members.

Wedding

Elisabeth M. Brock and Christian B. Groves, both of Mt. Pleasant, were married Dec. 26 in a small, private ceremony for close friends and family.

The bride is the daughter of Buck Brock and Linda Brock, both of Iowa. The groom is the son of Scott and Lynn (Maxfield) Groves of Charlevoix.

The wedding took place at the First United Methodist Church of Mt. Pleasant. The decor was done with a Christmas theme, and the altar was covered with 100 poinsettia plants. Two large wreaths hung on either side of the altar cross, and three decorated Christmas trees were to the left of the altar. A life-sized crèche was also on the altar.

The Rev. Benton Heisler, formerly of the Charlevoix United Methodist church, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor length ivory satin gown with beaded brocade bolero jacket top and a flowing train. Her head piece was a beaded brocade tiara with a tulle veil which hung to her waist. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bride's attendant was Kelsey Heisler, age 11.

The groom's attendant was Hannah Heisler, age 9. The attendants wore black dresses with white lace trim.

A reception was hosted by the parents of the bride and groom at the Great North Trading Company Restaurant in Mt. Pleasant.

The bride received her masters degree in speech pathology at Central Michigan University and is currently working for Isabella County School District. The groom has a masters degree in English from Central Michigan University and is a missionary/musician with the John Gunden Band and R U Red E? Ministries.

Boyne City camp meetings in 88th year

The Northern Michigan Holiness Camp is hosting its 88th annual meeting from June 13-20.

The campgrounds are on N. Park Street, five blocks north of the Dairy Queen.

Rev. David Clardie of Sterling, Ill., will be the speaker and Ken Osborn of Traverse City will be the musician for the eight-day, old-fashioned camp meeting.

Services will be at 6 p.m. Sundays and 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday. A vacation Bible school will be offered to children weeknights.

The camp was organized in 1911 by men and women from the various holiness churches in the area. A few of the evangelists, singers and World Gospel Missionaries were from local families.

The original tent, benches and sawdust floor were replaced by a wooden frame building. The tabernacle was improved about 20 years ago to seat a larger number of people, and now provides for the eight-day, drive-in camp.

Through the year, the camp sponsors hymn sings at area churches. Many of these congregations will provide refreshments during the camp meetings.

Everyone is invited to attend.

For more information, call Rev. Lane Eddy at 582-6843 or Betty Bradley at 582-7000.

Masons and military hold graveside service

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum
First Congregational Church, UCC

As springtime comes to northern Michigan and the weather gets warmer, I find myself dusting off the canoe, looking for the paddles, and making plans for the annual canoe trip to Canada. We already have a special spot picked out where we have never been before. That's part of the adventure and part of the fun — exploring new waters and seeing new scenery. But there are risks too, especially if you don't have good equipment, or forget to take along the essentials.

A friend of mine once told me about an experience he had while canoeing in northern Minnesota. After a storm had blown in unexpectedly while he was on the water, he found himself all turned around, confused, tired, soaked and lost. The shoreline looked the same in every direction. Deciding which way to go to get back to the campsite seemed an impossible task, except that my friend had remembered to bring along exactly what was needed in that situation — a compass. Though the stormy winds had turned him around and had him going in the wrong direction, his weatherproof compass got him back on track again. It was, my friend said, a life-saving guide, which helped him to correct his position and get him where he wanted and needed to go.

Let me suggest that this is what God's spirit does and how God's spirit works, whether we are gliding along smoothly on the calm waters of life or exerting all our energies to control our little "canoes" in the wild action of some storm. If we would follow the steady pointing of the Spirit's magnetic needle, which we can trust to be always accurate and always dependable, then we will always find our way to where we ought to be, regardless of the trouble that we may be in. That's what God's spirit does for all of us, and that's what we want to take along with us wherever we go.

As we move through Memorial weekend, the traditional beginning of the summer season in the north, and take off for vacation spots near or far in the weeks that follow, let us not forget to take along with us what is most important. God's spirit, like a trustworthy compass, will not only help keep us headed in the right direction, but will also add a wonderful sense of confidence and contentment to our journeys by pointing us to the true purpose and destiny of our lives.

Waste Management brings new proposal to county committee

A new proposal for Cedar Ridge Landfill was brought before the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Plan Committee Monday in yet another attempt by Waste Management to come to an agreement with the county.

The county voted down a request by Waste Management for an expansion of the landfill owned by the company last year, and the company responded by closing the landfill last month.

Waste Management's new proposal would include a transfer station at Cedar Ridge that could be used by all haulers of household waste.

Because the site plan for a transfer station is authorized by the county's Solid Waste Management Plan, this should not be a problem, said county commissioner Phil Johnson.

The proposal also calls for a reduction of county barriers to allow the free flow of regional waste so that Waste Management can have free flow of waste among Charlevoix, Emmet, Leelanau, Crawford, Otsego, Kalkaska and Antrim counties.

If the county and Waste Management come to an agreement, Waste Management officials say they will drop the Cedar Ridge Landfill expansion request as a household waste disposal facility. The company would, however, reserve the right to apply for developing a facility at Cedar Ridge for construction disposal.

Nancy Ferguson of Water and Air Team Charlevoix (WATCH) said the environmental group will be discussing the latest proposal. Ferguson is pleased with the communication between the county and Waste Management.

"At least there is negotiation with the committee," Ferguson said. "This is how it should have been approached in the first place."

The Solid Waste Committee will meet June 7 for more discussion of the proposal.

Talk about a land yacht

This boat probably wasn't intended for land cruising, but it did spend a little time skidding along the road when it slipped from its trailer at the intersection of M-66 and U.S. 31 last Wednesday, while being hauled by Dry Harbor Marina workers.

Basketball clinic offered in conjunction with Venetian Games

Another exciting activity has been confirmed for the upcoming Venetian Games, the week-long schedule of athletic activities which makes its debut at this year's Venetian Festival.

Venetian Games commissioner Dean Davenport earned board approval to combine a new activity with a popular existing event. Davenport has designed a basketball clinic for area youngsters which will run for three sessions during the festival week.

"After receiving fine coaching and instruction during our clinic, those participants who choose to play in the three-on-three basketball tournament sponsored by St. Mary's Catholic Church will be better prepared," Davenport said. The three-on-three event is scheduled for the final Sunday of the festival.

"We're calling our clinic "Camp Rayder" and are quite pleased that the Rayder boy's head basketball coach, Keith Haske, has agreed to serve as clinic director," Davenport added.

Plans are to have two morning sessions, which will include both boys and girls. A junior session will be held for 8-10-year-olds, with a later senior session for 11-14-year-olds.

The clinic will emphasize fundamentals and will help participants focus on team strategy for the three-on-three tournament.

Doug Buday, chairman of the three-on-three tournament, is excited about the plans for Camp Rayder and is looking forward to the prospect of having more players and teams participate in the Sunday tournament.

Any adults interested in helping to provide instruction at the clinic are asked to contact Dean Davenport at 547-6433.

Kiwanis Club selling stage tickets to benefit kids

Several of this summer's performances of "Hollywood" at the Mackinaw Center Stage in Mackinaw City have already been sold out. However, tickets still are available for the Wednesday, June 9, performance, with proceeds going to benefit children around the world.

Kiwanis Clubs in northern Michigan are selling all the tickets for the June 9 performance, for both the matinee and evening shows, with one-half of the proceeds going directly to Kiwanis International for its Iodine Deficiency Disorder drive.

Kiwanis Clubs around the world are united in fund-raising projects to complete the objective of securing $75 million by December, 2000. Funds collected are administered by UNICEF, and to date are already at work in more than 67 countries providing technology to iodize and package salt and other means to ensure the universal availability of iodized salt.

To purchase the $20 tickets or get more information on the deficiency, call Ed Collins at 347-9599, Steve Palmer at 526-6221 or 526-9114 or in Charlevoix, Bill Lovett at 547-3592 or ask any member of a Kiwanis Club. Tickets must be purchased by June 1.

Sign up at Petunia picnic to be a Venetian volunteer

An additional feature will appear at the community picnic in East Park, following the annual petunia planting Thursday, May 27. Venetian Festival Board members and the Queen's Pageant Committee will be manning an information booth designed to answer questions, receive input and enlist volunteers for the festival. Volunteers are particularly needed to help fulfill the committee's ambitious plans to enhance and expand Venetian activities.

Venetian board president Dan Barron was delighted with the support and cooperation shown by the board of directors of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

"KCB has graciously provided an excellent setting for the community and the Venetian Board to come together for festival planning," Barron said.

Anyone who is unable to attend the petunia planting picnic, but who still would like to get information, provide suggestions or serve as a Venetian Festival volunteer, should contact the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office at 547-2101.

Summer band camp teachers include:

Dwight Smith, former director of bands at East Jordan Public Schools. He will be giving lessons on all woodwinds.

Evelyn Wujcik, former middle school band director. Wujcik is the lead trumpet with the Up North Big Band and will be working with upper brass.

Gwen Sarya, who has been teaching flute for eight years and was a band director for four years before moving to Charlevoix. She will be teaching flute.

Gary Stutzman, former director of bands for the Charlevoix School District. He is currently the band director at Northwest Academy. He will be instructing the low brass and coordinating the summer program. To register for the summer band camp, call Northwest Academy at 547-9000 or pick up an application at the school at 105 W. Hurlbut St., Charlevoix. You may also request an application by e-mail: gstut@nwa.edu. Applications are due by June 20.

Resolving conflicts peacefully

Northwest Academy charter school was the site for two days of conflict resolution training on April 26 and April 27. Shown here, students work in a team activity on the playground. Amy Jason and Eric Moore, members of AmeriCorps, along with Celia Partida of B.A.S.E.S., taught sixth and seventh grade students different ways to resolve conflict without resorting to violence. Students defined and examined conflict, found common feelings among one another, explored anger management strategies, learned the effects of communication and developed a school and community action plan to make their community safer. Thirty students participated in the training. The Hazelden Foundation assisted with funding for the program, along with AmeriCorps, which is a national service organization designed to offer service projects throughout the country.

Memorial Garden honors loved ones

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club continues to maintain its Memorial Garden each year through memorial contributions made by members and friends.

The garden is located on Mercer Boulevard at the end of East Dixon Avenue. Is was established in 1977 and in 1978 was included in the Charlevoix City park system. The garden club has maintained it since its inception.

Spring is a nice time to view this garden, which is in the process of being thoroughly cleaned and professionally pruned. It will also receive new plantings. It is not necessary to be a garden club member to contribute to this "living" Memorial Garden.

If you are interested in remembering a loved one in this manner, donations may be sent to Nancy Fowler, 409 E. Dixon, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

BUSINESS

All things natural and wild create items for new business

When you make a space in your life for beauty, you make a sacred space.

That is the motto of both local resident Deborah Dudley and her new business, Wild Beauty.

Dudley opened her business last October and specializes in dried parchment and paper floral designs.

Dudley uses all sorts of natural items, crafting her wild beauty from flowers, grasses, birch bark and driftwood. Her final products are typically arranged in baskets, vases, wreaths, swags and garlands with unusual accessories. All is done with the intent to provide natural-looking landscapes with the final product.

Her floral art can be custom-ordered for homeowners, resorts and special events such as weddings.

Dudley is a member of the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy and has been active throughout the area, working to increase senior home care services in the county.

Dudley cares for her elderly mother and she started her business in part as a creative outlet while tending her parent.

With her business, she also wants to target the interior design, gift shop and custom order business in northern Michigan.

"I have a need to push the limits of design and explore new materials," Dudley said.

As an artist, Dudley considers herself mostly self-taught although she did attend a basic course in floral design plus classes in Ikebana, the Japanese art of flower arranging that emphasizes form and balance.

"I think of myself as a radical creator who never makes the same thing twice and occasionally crosses the line into downright quirky," Dudley said.

Wild Beauty is a home-based business, open year-round. Wild Beauty is open from 11:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. and can be reached at 487-9063.

Soccer team delivers stunning blow to Petoskey Northmen

JV team suffers first loss at hands of TC East freshmen

The Charlevoix Rayder Girls' Varsity soccer team stunned the visiting Petoskey Northmen Friday, May 21 at Kipke Field, when they beat them 2-0 on their home turf.

Charlevoix was able to get on the score board in the first half when freshman Kate Madison fed a pass to junior Co-captain Erika Kammermann, who was able to break free of the Northmen defense for the goal. Erika Kammermann again broke free on a clearing pass from freshman Jayme Murray and was able to split the Northmen defense with a pass to freshman Karlee Barnard, who scored the game-winning goal.

"Erika Kammermann was outstanding today in her leadership and effort," said coach Hagen Manker. "She broke a couple of school records today, most assists in a season and most points in a season. This was a great win for seniors Brooke Block, Carrie Beemon, Kelly Kusina, Juli Swenor and Mandy Webb, who were playing their last game on Kipke Field. Freshman Jayme Murray stepped in at sweeper for injured Lindsey Carland and really came up big for us today, making some key stops to limit the Petoskey shots. Kristy Shindorf earned a great shutout in goal. We've lost to Batch's teams the last 10 meetings, so this was a special day for our girls."

Earlier in the week, the Rayders topped Cheboygan 2-1 when Kammermann put the Rayders on the board early in the game on a pass from Kelly Dreyer. The Chiefs were able to get on the board early in the second half, then Kammermann answered with the game winner for the Rayders on a pass from Brooke Block. Kammermann, Taya Drost, Kirsten Brendtro, Kelly Kusina, Mandy Webb, Juli Swenor and Abbey Shaperkotter all played well. Lindsey Simmons and Shannon Nystrom also gave some great minutes of play near the end of the game.

The Rayders will open district championship play at 5 p.m. Wednesday, May 26 at Charlevoix's Shanahan Field, hosting the winner of the Cheboygan/Elk Rapids game.

The Junior Varsity Girls' Soccer team suffered its first defeat of the season at the hands of Traverse City East's freshmen team Tuesday, May 18.

Earlier in the week, the still undefeated Rayder team beat Traverse City West 3-0 in a game with goals scored by Karlee Barnard (2) and Marie Serrels (1). In that game, Charlevoix dominated play the entire game, but the Traverse City goalie kept all but three shots from entering the net. For Charlevoix, Laura Potter collected her first shut-out in goal.

In the match against Traverse City East, Traverse City was first on the scoreboard, followed quickly by a Charlevoix goal.

Unfortunately, the Rayder goal was in the wrong net, giving Traverse City a 2-0 lead.

Danielle Vogelheim went on a scoring spree and evened up the score at half-time with two breakaway goals.

In the second half, both teams came out strong. Midway through the second half, while attempting to clear the ball from in front of the net, Charlevoix once again tapped it into the wrong goal. With five minutes left in the game, Traverse City drove in a goal to bring the score to 4-2. Charlevoix rallied but was unable to catch up.

"The girls played well," said coach Carol Madison. "They just made two very costly mistakes. Danielle Vogelheim played an incredible game, she was everywhere. Jayme Murray, Marcy Bennett, Michelle Yaldo and Laura Potter also played great games."

On Wednesday, May 19, the team redeemed itself, trouncing Cheboygan's JV team 5-0. Vogelheim started the scoring 20 minutes into the first half on a rebounded shot of her own. The shot had actually been rebounded twice, as Karlee Barnard had put it up originally. Barnard added a goal of her own before the half, with an assist from Libby Withrow.

Soccer team earns state honors for academics

The Charlevoix Rayder Girls' Varsity Soccer Team proved that they work just as hard in the classroom as they do on the soccer field. For the fourth year in a row, the Rayders received All-State Team academic recognition for outstanding academic accomplishments during the current school year. The honor came from the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association. The Rayders were first in the state in Class C schools with a 3.6 team grade point average. They were fourth in all classes.

"We are so proud of the girls for this accomplishment," said coach Hagen Manker. "This is what it is really all about, to succeed in the classroom. Athletics are a privilege and to be able to manage their time and be successful at both academics and athletics is a statement of how hard these girls work."

Rayder tennis player tops them all

First time in 21 years a Rayder heads for state finals

It's been more than two decades since the Charlevoix High School Tennis Team sent a singles player to the state championships.

Scott Pair changed that.

After defeating Chris Sutter of Leland, 6-0, 6-0, and Tyson Vozza of Traverse City Christian, 6-2, 6-4, Pair faced Brian Gross of Traverse City St. Francis in the final round of regional play. Pair took the regional championship title with a 6-0, 6-1 victory over Gross. It's the first time a Charlevoix player has accomplished that feat since 1978.

Scott Pair

In overall play, the Charlevoix tennis team took fifth place against nine teams in the regional competition, hosted at Boyne Mountain May 21 and 22.

In No. 1 doubles play, the team of David Drury/Joel Trubilowicz won their first match against Traverse City St. Francis.

Charlevoix's Dennis Mitchell won his first round match in No. 4 singles play, beating Kevin Paul of Boyne City.

Pair will head for the state finals in Battle Creek June 4 and 5.

"He's had a great season," said coach Janet Freidinger. "He's hitting well and has gotten progressively better all season. The only person in the conference he's lost to is Randy Wood of Harbor Springs, and he beat Randy in their first encounter, but lost in ensuing matches. He's proved he's capable of beating anyone in the conference." Freidinger has high hopes for her top player as he advances to the state championships.

"Scott is playing aggressively and smart," Freidinger said. "Overall, he's playing very, very well."

Track teams send 11 to state finals

Even after losing a large number of varsity track members last year, the Charlevoix High School girls' track team finished a respectable sixth place out of 20 teams at the high school regional meet last Saturday.

"The girls ran really well, and they did their best all day long," said coach Ken Plude.

Although it wasn't a strong enough finish for the team to qualify for the state championships, several members did qualify individually for the honor.

The 3200 meter relay team of Liza Gorkiewicz, Tricia Hodge, Laura Schairbaum and Kati Swenor qualified with a second place finish and a time of 10 minutes, 2.4 seconds.

Meghan Vogel took a second place finish in the pole vault with a vault of 7 feet, 6 inches and a second place finish, which will send her to the state championships.

Kati Swenor, a freshman on the track team, qualified for the state meet with a time of 12 min., 24 sec. in the two mile race. Her time was the second fastest time in Charlevoix High School history.

Gorkiewicz qualified for the state finals in the 1600 race with her fastest time ever, 5 min. 33.2 sec.

Coach Ken Plude said quite a few of the team members missed qualifying for the state meet by just a hair.

"They ran really well, and set personal records for themselves," Plude said.

Senior Tricia Hodge missed qualifying in both the one mile and two mile race by 3 seconds.

Sarah Dominic set a personal record in the discus throw with a toss of 99 feet, 8 inches. The throw missed breaking the school record by 4.5 inches, and it was Dominic's first year to attempt the discus.

The boys' track team will send six boys in four events to the state finals.

Luke Whitley will be going in the pole vault, after a successful vault of 11 feet, 4 inches in the regional meet.

Todd Schaperkotter will be high jumping. He qualified with a jump of 6 feet, 2 inches.

Jeremy Rafacz will be competing in the 100 meter dash. His regional winning time was 11.4 seconds.

The relay team of Colin Carr, Jeremy Rafacz, Brian Cornet and Matt McClellan will compete in the 800 relay. Their qualifying time was 1:32.8.

"I'm looking forward to my last state track meet," said coach Hal Evans, who retires at the end of this season.

The teams will next compete in the conference meet here at 3 p.m Thursday, May 27. At 5 p.m. Tuesday, June 1, Charlevoix will host the Twilight Meet of Champions.

Baseball team wins double-headers

The Charlevoix varsity baseball team took both games in a double-header against Central Lake, played Thursday, May 20. They repeated the winning performance Saturday, May 22 in a double-header against Suttons Bay, which they swept, 11-0 in the first game and 7-0 in the second game.

In game one against Central Lake, the winning pitcher was Jeremiah Teuscher, who gave up five hits, struck out four batters and gave up one walk in the game that ended with a 7-4 score.

Charlevoix's Rob Boss had three singles, while Ryan Bier had two doubles and Jerry Zeitler, Shay Hutchison and Tom Kennedy each had two hits.

In game two, which the Rayders won 5-4, Shay Hutchison was the winning pitcher, giving up three hits, striking out five players and giving up four walks.

Dennis Avery doubled and singled, while Teuscher had two singles, Matt Horon doubled and Jerry Zeitler singled.

"Jeremiah and Shay both threw very good games," said coach Scott Kelly. "Tom Kennedy had an outstanding doubleheader defensively at third base." Earlier in the week, the team lost to Petoskey, 14-3 and 12-5 in a doubleheader.

Senior Companion Volunteer

in Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, or Missaukee counties.

The Senior Companion Program is a national older adult volunteer program designed to provide adults over 60 years of age, living on limited incomes, a meaningful volunteer opportunity at no cost to themselves and to help meet community needs.

SENIOR COMPANION volunteers visit several assigned friends providing one-on-one companionship and practical assistance to help other seniors maintain an independent lifestyle. Each week Senior Companions can be found doing what friends do for friends -- assisting with grocery shopping or other errands, offering a lift to the doctor, sharing a meal talking about old times and new challenges, and easing their loneliness.

These "special friends" are often isolated older adults who may be frail and elderly struggling to stay in their own homes, may live in foster care settings or nursing homes, or they may be mentally ill or developmentally disabled.

Race horses chomped at the bit for county fair action

Harness racing has evolved into a sophisticated sport with electronic devices to start races and photo finished to determine the winner. Horse feed is precisely measured and exercise carefully controlled. But there was a time when harness racing at the old county fairs in the first half of this century consisted of no more than a man, a fast horse and a sulky. The owner of the horse climbed into the sulky cart, grasped a long driving rein in each hand and, at the bang of the starter's gun, horse and driver raced around the mile-long track to the music of hoofbeats and wheels and a cheering county fair crowd.

Henry Elzinga, 96, whose years of service in the Michigan Department of Transportation were honored for nearly 30 years with a sign bearing his name at the roadside park between Charlevoix and Petoskey, remembers the old county fairs and helping his father, James Elzinga, with his race horse, "Alice Gordon." Henry grew up in Ellsworth where his dad kept their horse in a small barn behind their house in town.

"Alice Gordon had to be exercised to keep her in shape for the fair races back in the '30s, so my two brothers and I would put her through her paces along the country roads around town," Elzinga said.

"In winter, we couldn't take the cart out so my brothers would saddle her and warm her up by riding her. Well, a race horse likes to go, and the more the boys exercised her, the faster she'd take them right through the middle of Ellsworth! Of course, there weren't many automobiles around then and Dad had the only race horse in town," Henry remembered with a chuckle.

"I must have walked miles in circles cooling Alice Gordon down after her races," Henry continued. "The horse would be real lathered and hot after the races and it took more than an hour of walking before Dad said she was cooled down and could go to her stall in the fair barn.

"To make things more interesting, there were a lot of challenges among the local racers as to who had the fastest horse. Not much money passed back and forth in those days, but there sure were plenty of small friendly bets.

"I remember the county fair races filled the grandstand by the track with hundreds of people. Dr. Newman, the vet who covered northern Michigan, would be at all of the fair circuit race tracks — the Charlevoix County Fair at East Jordan, Emmet County Fair at Petoskey and the Traverse City Fair.

"Sometimes Doc Newman would drive Alice Gordon in the races for Dad and then Dad would climb up the ladder to the starter's booth overlooking the race track. When the horses and their sulkies were all lined up, he would start the races with a blank pistol shot from the starter gun.

"Alice Gordon was a real good horse. She was fast and won her share of races. Dr. Buecher would ask to borrow her sometimes to go to a farm in the country around Ellsworth to make a call or help deliver a baby. The Holiness Church preacher in town borrowed her on Sundays to take him to Phelps six miles north of Ellsworth to preach afternoon church services there.

"Dad always got a big kick out of the way those men would try to slow Alice Gordon down when she got warmed up and wanted to go. She gave the preacher a ride for his life a couple of times."

Harness racing as we know it today originated in the 16th century in the Netherlands, with Dutch Fresian trotting horses. The American trotting horse was established in 1879 as a breed called the Standardbred and is descended from the stallion Hambletonian, foaled in 1849 near Goshen, N.Y.

After President Ulysses S. Grant brought his mare to Hambletonian to be bred, he observed the unique characteristics of all Hambletonian's colts: Their hips stood higher than their front withers. Grant called this the "trotting pitch," and it is the conformation that gave Standardbred horses like Jim Elzinga's horse Alice Gordon her speed and stamina.

Harness horses are classified as either pacers or trotters. The trotter's diagonal feet work in unison, but the pacer strikes out with both legs of one side at the same time. When racing, a horse must maintain a pace or trot throughout the race. If it breaks stride and gallops, it is disqualified from the race. Race track times for trotters and pacers at the old county fairs were between two and three minutes for a mile heat, with time measured to the nearest minute and hundredth of a second.

The old county fairs drew crowds of thousands in the month of September in northern Michigan. The Charlevoix County fair in East Jordan claimed to have one of the best race tracks in this part of the state and spent $25,000 for improvements on the grounds and buildings in 1939. Admission was 35 cents for adults, 25 cents for children 10-14 years old and 25 cents for automobiles parked on the grounds.

Attractions varied from two days of "Thrilling Horse Races" to a "High Dive From a 75-Foot Tower Into Fire." Two baseball games were held, both Thursday and Friday afternoons. East Jordan played Barnard, Boyne City, Gaylord and Mackinaw City.

"Something Doing Every Minute" was the slogan for the 48th annual Charlevoix County Fair in East Jordan in 1933. Baseball teams from Antrim and Charlevoix counties attracted big crowds. Fast horses were signed up to give race fans some real excitement, and a balloon ascension with a triple parachute drop each afternoon was a big attraction. Every fair had its merry-go-round and Ferris wheel and midway, with plenty of sideshows. In 1938, a sideshow urged fair goers to "See the Human Frog."

The Northwestern District Fair in Traverse City in 1933 opened on Labor Day with Farmer's Day and a crowd of over 20,000 people. Every event on the program, which started with a picnic dinner at noon, was for and by farmers. Mule races, farmers' trotting and pacing horse races, horse pulling contests, tugs-of-war and children's foot races were all planned.

"The county fairs were big events for all of us living in northern Michigan in the 1920s and '30s," Henry Elzinga concluded. "But for me, one of the best parts of the fair days was watching my dad or Dr. Newman race around the track behind the flying hoofs of our horse Alice Gordon."

Former resident was ready to do youth ministry

When Chris Groves was a middle and high school student in Charlevoix, he played guitar in a number of local rock and roll bands.

Like many young musicians, he later headed for college and started looking at his future in a practical manner. His rock and roll days started to become an increasingly distant memory.

Groves was going through the motions of getting himself well-educated so he could land a good-paying job when his life took a dramatically different turn.

The turn it took won't make him rich, but it has certainly made him happy.

Groves, who now lives in Mt. Pleasant, is again playing bass guitar in a rock and roll band.

But this is no ordinary rock and roll band.

It is the Christian youth outreach band called R U Red E?, which performed May 16 in Charlevoix at the Assembly of God Church.

Groves joined the band this past February and hasn't regretted his decision for one moment.

"I can't believe I was ever trying to do anything else," Groves said in a recent interview. "This is the perfect match for my gifts and my personality."

Although his decision to abandon a more traditional career path in favor of the Christian rock and roll band seems logical today, it was a decision Groves struggled with a few months ago.

"It was really tough," Groves said. "It took me six weeks to decide to do it. Now I have to deal with friends and some of my family who think it wasn't the best choice."

Groves already had a masters degree in English to his credit and was They're planted!

Once again, hundreds of volunteers hit the streets of Charlevoix to plant thousands of petunias. Northwest Academy band students provided music for the event, such as Jake Mailloux, shown here. — pages 14 & 15 thinking about getting his Ph.D. so he could be a college professor when his life veered in a totally different direction. An old friend of his from a former rock band asked him to join R U Red E?, not once, but twice. Groves turned him down the first time because it seemed impractical. The second time around, the offer seemed to make perfect sense.

"I felt the calling to do this, essentially," he said. "I've been playing music my whole life, and I never thought I'd get a chance to make a living at it, doing youth ministry and music."

Groves was a teen himself, about 18 years old, when he got involved with the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church and found his way into the world of Christ. Joe Johnston, who is now the associate pastor of the church, was the youth pastor when Groves started going to the church.

"Something clicked inside me and it (religion) made sense," he said.

The group R U Red E? plays for teens all over the world, usually those who haven't grown up with a church background. The band writes their own music that they perform, and they also talk to kids and offer seminars.

Groves and fellow band member Dana Freeman recently presented a teaching seminar called "Why Should The Devil Have All The Good Music?"

The group's mission is to take the Gospel to the teenage world with an upbeat, relevant and musical presentation, and to lead kids to make a decision, either to accept or reject Jesus Christ.

When the group played at the Assembly of God Church in May, they drew a crowd of 70-100 people. Now they plan to return to Charlevoix later this summer and play to a broader group of teens, performing in East Park sometime in August.

"It doesn't do any good if you don't go out and try to reach other kids, the ones who don't go to church," Groves said.

Corrections

In the May 19 issue of the Courier, there were some errors in the caption that went with a story about the Charlevoix High School Technology class. The correct photo and caption are shown below.

In a column by Edith Gilbert that ran in the May 26 issue of the Charlevoix Courier, there was a misprint. The sentence should have said the following:

"The entire Kleinpell/MacGillivray clan gathered at the historic, gothic St. James Episcopal Church on Madison Avenue to attend the posh wedding of Peter Kleinpell Davenport (great-grandson of Charles Stewart Mott) and Marla Wonboy."

We regret the errors.

Area novelist and storyteller visit Charlevoix High School

Duncan Sings-Alone (left) a Native American storyteller, and author Priscilla Cogan recently visited Charlevoix High School to discuss story-telling and writing with students. Their visit was sponsored by the Charlevoix Council for the Arts.

Novelist Priscilla Cogan, who wrote Winona's Web, and storyteller Duncan Sings-Alone gave a presentation to Charlevoix High School students on May 25. The presentation was sponsored by the Charlevoix Council for the Arts.

Cogan, who won the Small Press Book Award for Winona's Web, presented two sessions in the library media center. During the first session, she discussed methods and techniques for writing a novel. She talked about story line, point of view, character formation, and the importance of conflict and plot. She advised students to "read a lot, to write a story for which you have passion, and to rewrite, welcoming criticism." Her second session was on creative writing in story form. She began her presentation by describing a paranormal event and discussed characters, style and the therapy of writing.

Duncan Sings-Alone told Native American myths and discussed oral traditions. Following the presentations 11 students and members of the faculty went to a luncheon with the authors. Discussion was lively and focused on students' questions about writing.

New local music group forming

Gary Stutzman, director of bands at Northwest Academy, is putting together a new instrumental group to perform this summer in the Odmark Pavilion. The band will be playing intermediate level music which most eighth and ninth grade students would feel comfortable playing.

This past fall, Evelyn Wujcik, former Charlevoix Middle School band director, started an adult beginner band for adults who were interested in playing a wind or percussion instrument. The response was tremendous and now there is a group of musicians ready to play on a regular basis.

Stutzman decided to use the group as the moving force behind his new venture, the Pine River Winds.

"I have always wanted to be part of or direct a group with a name associated with the Pine River Channel," Stutzman said. "Now that will become a reality." The group will rehearse from 2-4 p.m. Sunday afternoons and perform at 4 p.m. Sundays in the Odmark Pavilion in East Park. The first rehearsal and performance will be Sunday, July 11.

Anyone interested in playing with the Pine River Winds this summer should contact Stutzman at 547-9000 or 547-1311 (home).

OPINIONS

To the REST of the Charlevoix grads — you count too!

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

(Editor's note: I don't usually like to repeat myself — or my columns — but after numerous requests from parents, I am running this column again, in honor of the Charlevoix High School Class of 1999. This column originally appeared in the Petoskey News-Review in May, 1996).

In the past few weeks, I've been wearing out the pads on my fingertips typing up all the awards and honors bestowed on graduating seniors.

It's become obvious to me that the DNA strand which causes academic excellence is also linked to leadership, athletic ability and that elusive prom queen gene.

Invariably, the top students have a list of accomplishments as long as a standard commencement speech.

Which leaves me to wonder about all those other kids who are graduating. I know quite a few senior kids — nice kids, funny kids — but their names don't show up on the list of Outstanding Students.

I've decided to compile my own awards list, honoring those other kids. I can't list all their names in a 20 inch column, so you'll just have to put the kids' names with the appropriate award. I'm sure you know who they are.

My first award is the Underachiever Award. Underachieving is underrated. Underachievers are obviously bright, talented kids. If they were dummies, no one would accuse them of not achieving their full potential.

Everyone has an underachiever living on their block — or under their roof. These kids are usually bored with classroom work — with the exception of chemistry class, where there's a possibility they can set something on fire or make liquids explode. This gets their attention.

These are the kids who excel outside the classroom. They paint spitballs with their sister's glow-in-the-dark nail polish, load them up in a Nerf gun and recreate the Milky Way galaxy on their bedroom ceiling.

The underachievers have been known to take a section of PVC pipe, a potato and some hair spray to make a launcher that will send a potato rocketing at 200-miles-an-hour through the next door neighbor's patio door.

Let's give these kids their proper due. They are the inventors of tomorrow, the Steven Spielbergs of the next generation, assuming they don't blow themselves up before reaching maturity in some accident involving a lawn mower, a Bic lighter and some charcoal briquettes.

My next award goes to the Followers. At every honors program, students are commended for their leadership skills. Yet I've never heard anyone commended for followership skills: Everyday life requires a lot of following — follow directions, follow orders, follow your dance partner — following is an important skill. Leaders would be crazy-looking martyrs without a number of followers.

My following award is for those kids who know they'll never be the starting quarterback or have the lead in the school play, but they follow faithfully. These kids could choose to take a different path to avoid the shadows of the leaders, but they don't. They could choose to be trouble-makers for the limelight it would get them, but they aren't. They just keep plugging along, following in the wake of the star students. Following well is an important job and deserves recognition.

My next award is the Staying Alive Award. It is named for John Travolta's character in the movie, Saturday Night Fever. This guy's parents wanted him to become a priest or a house painter — anything but a hip-thrusting disco dancer.

In spite of long odds, this character followed his dream to make ridiculous arm-flinging gestures on the dance floor and create a national frenzy.

Go figure.

There are kids graduating from high school who probably have dreams that don't mesh with their parents' idea of a proper career choice. I applaud the kids who stick to their guns and pursue that dream of becoming a pyrotechnic expert, a dental floss technician or a champion cow pie flinger.

Go for it.

I'm going to have to cut this awards ceremony short, so I'll get to my final award category.

This award goes to The Rest. You know who you are. When the principal gets on the loud speaker and says, "We want all the National Honors Society members to report to the study hall. The Rest may stay in class.

"We need to dismiss the track team early. The Rest may leave at the regular dismissal time.

"Will all the honor students bring their class pictures to the front office? The Rest may turn in their pictures next week.

"The homecoming court needs to report to the football field at halftime. The Rest should stay in the bleachers."

Maybe no one else noticed you, but I did. You didn't let your smile slip while you clapped for the honor students, cheered for the homecoming queens, or did the wave for the varsity football team.

I've got news for the Rest of you. You are the ones who will do the real work in corporations, stimulate the economy with consumer spending, become city council members and teach your kids how to play baseball.

Congratulations.

You're an equally important thread in the fabric of society. The whole thing would unravel without you.

Women's Resource Center celebrates anniversary

Editor:

This spring, one of our area's most dynamic organizations, the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan, celebrates another anniversary by reaching out to prospective new members and clients. After 22 years of service to our region it might seem that everyone knows who we are and what we do. Not so!

Lots of people correctly associate the WRC with its Safe Home and other highly acclaimed support programs for victims of domestic violence. But this amazing agency has undergone significant change through the years, responding to community need in many different ways. For example, did you know-

The Women's Resource Center isn't just for women! Our membership is open to everyone and includes men, women, and students-all who care about creating a healthy, caring community and enhancing the well-being of our area's families. Last year, nearly one-fourth of those served by the WRC were males.

Although our main office is in Petoskey, the Women's Resource Center covers a large area: Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, and Otsego counties to be exact. Satellite offices in Cheboygan, Gaylord, and Mancelona make our services more convenient for a growing number of clients.

In addition to domestic violence prevention and support services, the WRC provides a host of important programs including the Children's Learning Center and a special learning readiness program for preschoolers; play groups for children and parents and parenting workshops; MERIT, a project that helps young girls set goals, resist peer pressure, build self-esteem, and develop as capable teens; personal and family counseling services; crises intervention-including a 24-hour hotline for victims of rape and assault; education and training assistance for displaced homemakers, single parents and others pursuing a nontraditional career; and numerous educational presentations on issues that affect both home and worklife.

The Women's Resource Center receives some support from federal and state grants to operate these programs. Other financial help comes from local United Way agencies, proceeds from the Gold Mine Resale Shop, donations, and memberships-from people like you.

Regardless of your gender, age, or where you live within our five-county area, there's a good chance your life has been touched in some way because the Women's Resource Center was hard at work. We welcome support and invite partici-

Two Charlevoix grads play baseball in the college league

By Jamie MacMillan

Joe Grundman

Steve Speigl

The Division II Junior College baseball playoffs began two weeks ago with Grand Rapids Community College, Lake Michigan and Glen Oaks as the teams to beat.

But a darkhorse candidate could be seen grazing in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association, in the form of the Kellogg Community College Bruins.

The team secured the No. 4 seed in the tournament's Regional 12 after finishing fourth in conference. The team boasts a trio of major college prospects and coach Russ Bartell, whose squads qualified for the playoffs in 1989 and 1996, said the offense carries the load for a team with a nice blend of experience and depth.

Part of that depth comes from a pair of Charlevoix High School graduates.

Joe Grundman, a 1997 Charlevoix graduate, and Steve Speigl, a 1998 alum, arrived at Kellogg on different paths.

Grundman began his college career at the Northern Michigan University where he was a member of their varsity hockey team. He enjoyed the brief stint, but found that he missed baseball more, so he enrolled at Kellogg and joined their ball club as a catcher.

"It takes more discipline to play baseball from being in the weight room and hitting the ball off the tee because you're not able to get out on the diamond most of the year," he said explaining the difference between college hockey and baseball.

As for his love for the national pastime, he noted it's one of the few aspects of life where, if you do something only one out of three times, it's considered a success.

"It's a game of failure," he said. "I enjoy the challenges that come with overcoming those failures."

Speigl, who is eyeing a future as a Department of Natural Resources officer, looked to play college baseball from the start and chose to play for the Bruins over Grand Rapids and Glen Oaks.

A common thread for both arriving at Kellogg was Charlevoix High School coach Scott Kelly. Kelly played at Ferris State University when Bartell was an assistant coach. Because of that connection, Bartell attended one of Speigl's games last spring during his senior season. Speigl said that the personal visit played a large factor in his final decision to play there.

Kellogg is classified as a Division II school, which means the scholarships given to athletes cover only tuition and other university fees. The pair from Charlevoix landed themselves in a program that advances 70 percent of its players into the realm of major college ball at the four-year school level. Three of Bartell's more recent players have been signed to professional contracts.

In his two years at Kellogg, Grundman has had to play second fiddle to starting catcher and top prospect Champ Champanois. Still, he has caught in a handful of games and been in the lineup as a designated hitter.

In 22 games played, he has a .260 average with 11 RBI. In a recent split of a doubleheader which helped clinch their postseason slot, Grundman scored the game winning run in extra innings after reaching base on a walk. In the nightcap, he went 2-for-3 with 2 RBI.

Bartell said he would be the No.1 catcher in any other year.

"He has the perfect catcher's mentality, he's so easy going. Balls in the dirt or fouls tipped into his body, don't really bother him. He knows the territory and has a good rapport with the pitchers."

Speigl, meanwhile, has been a pleasant surprise for Bartell. After an average fall practice session, Speigl has improved as a hitter and started 19 of the 27 games he has played in at shortstop. Bartell said he will be the team's top shortstop next season.

"He's worked his tail off and has made himself into a good hitter," the coach said.

Speigl noted that his season turned around in a contest against Mott (Flint) where he placed a 4-for-5 game in the box score. Currently he is batting .354 with 13 RBI and a slugging percentage of .542.

Speigl said college ball is obviously more competitive, with people fighting for spots. The team plays ball throughout the school year and has extensive fall workouts and exhibitions. Speigl said playing ball has helped him relieve the stress that comes with the academic side of college.

"I have a sense of relaxation when I'm out on the field," he said. "It's a good escape."

Bartell, who is in his 10th year as Bruin coach, said both Charlevoix grads have an excellent shot at continuing baseball careers at four year institutions when their eligibility at Kellogg is expired. Speigl has one more year left at Kellogg while Grundman will move onto a four year school next year.

He wants to study prelaw, but is undecided where he will transfer. He's considering Michigan State, Western Michigan, Central Michigan and Olivet. He plans to play baseball wherever he goes.

"The key is to get it in your mind what you want to do and that you're good enough to do it," Grundman said. "Too many people will tell you that you can't do it. But, if you put in the work, people will be watching you."

Added Bartell, "The next thing you know, you end up with a college degree, and everyone wins with that."

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton

I flew from Orlando to Indianapolis last week to help our daughter drive home from college for the summer. Figuring I was a big boy and loved hanging around airports anyway, my wife gave me a smooch, dropped me at the terminal door and headed back to our house. Little did she know that my 7 p.m. departure had been pushed all the way back to 9:15 p.m.

Back in the days when I was in the airline business, there was nothing more dreadful to deal with than a flight delay and no people harder to handle than businessmen. On this particular night, it wasn't so much businessmen as it was families with lots and lots of kids. This one dad had been feeding his kids gum left and right to appease them. And kids being kids, they were going through the gum fast. When he announced he was down to the last piece, that's when I spoke up.

"Dad, if your kids have trouble with their ears, you might want to save that last piece of gum for the airplane. They don't sell gum in the terminal and you might need it." He gave me a rather strange look at first and then the light of logic dawned on him. "Thanks, we'll do that. How did you know?" I winked and told him that it was "the wisdom of experience."

When I boarded the plane, my assigned seat happened to be next to a grandma and grandpa who were caring for a 16-month-old set of twins and one of them was not happy. Picture the scene: A full plane, not one single spare seat, and one screaming baby! Then the stewardess came along and said there were five of us in three seats and only four oxygen masks, so if we had an emergency, someone would have to move. Grandpa traded with a man across the aisle and guess what — we have two screaming babies!

Well, I couldn't sit there and do nothing, so I asked grandma if she wanted some help. "Oh, would you?" I took the little girl in my lap and started talking to her. She stopped crying! I passed her to grandpa and took the little boy. For the next two hours I was holding babies and trying to keep them semi-happy. The little girl finally gave up the ghost and fell asleep in my lap about 15 minutes before we landed. The little boy was fine once I discovered he liked airplane cookies which the stewardess gladly kept me supplied with as long as he stayed quiet. All the while grandma was saying to me, "Never again — not until they're grown!"

If knowing Jesus means anything to you, you cannot just sit back on the sidelines when you see someone struggling. You have to bring what gifts you feel you have to bear on the experiences you have gained, and all the blessings God has poured into your life have done you absolutely no good if all you do is sit and watch the world go by.

There are far too many spectators in this world today. There are far too many people who are able to make a difference and are doing nothing. If you really know Jesus, you know you can't do that. If you'll make an effort in sincere faith, God will find a way to use it in a fashion that really matters. Paraphrasing an oft-quoted verse by the apostle Paul, "You can do all things through Christ who strengthens you," even if it means spending two hours on a plane with a couple of unhappy babies!

Watershed group gets grant to study Lake Charlevoix

By B. J. Hetler

It's 122 feet at its maximum depth, 13 miles long, two and one-half miles wide, and holds 307 billion gallons of water.

It's Lake Charlevoix's 307 billions of gallons of water that is the subject of a new study. The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is working with other environmental groups to keep the water clean.

"It's a special resource," said Watershed Council Program Director Ann Baughman. "Lake Charlevoix has really good water, and we want to keep it that way with a protection and prevention project."

A recent $129,000 grant funding approval from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) helps that effort. The watershed council received word of the funding in early May, and the MDEQ wants the project to begin in early June.

The Lake Charlevoix project goal is to identify probable areas of pollution and to correct problem areas before they pollute the lake. The groups involved will first inventory non-point source pollution threats to Lake Charlevoix. Non-point source pollution occurs, for instance, when rain run-off picks up pollutants such as animal waste or toxins from roads and deposits them in a body of water.

"We'll look at the entire watershed," Baughman said. "Primarily Charlevoix County and Antrim County, where identification is critical."

The watershed area includes Charlevoix, Ellsworth, East Jordan and Boyne City.

The first phase of the five-year project is to take an inventory and develop a work plan, Baughman said.

Enhancing and protecting water in lakes, rivers, streams, wetlands and ground water is the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council's goal. Members live in Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim and Cheboygan counties.

A work plan meeting will be hosted at 1 p.m. Tuesday, June 8 in the Boyne City Commissioners Chambers.

Applications being accepted for 1999 Venetian Queen contest

1998 Venetian Queen
Danica Kilander

The Charlevoix Venetian Festival board has confirmed that the Miss Charlevoix Venetian Scholarship Competition will once again be held at this year's 69th annual Venetian Festival. Dianna Phillips will chair the scholarship committee for the fifth consecutive year and will be assisted by two past Venetian Queens, Erin McNamara Wright and Natalie Ward.

"The committee is very excited with the prospects for this year's competition, since the Venetian board has increased the scholarship fund," Phillips said. "The winning candidate will be awarded a $2,000 scholarship, the first runner-up will receive a $1,000 scholarship and an additional $500 scholarship will be awarded for academic and extracurricular excellence."

Candidates must be between the ages of 16 and 22 as of the date of the competition and must either have a primary residence in the Charlevoix area or be a graduate of a Charlevoix area school. Entry forms will list other qualifications and entry requirements.

Sponsorships of $150 per candidate will be required this year and must be submitted along with each application. Candidates are encouraged to contact a sponsor of their choice and local businesses are likewise encouraged to promptly select a candidate for sponsorship, as the application deadline is June 22.

Following the format established during the past few years, candidates will participate in an interview with judges from outside the Charlevoix area. The decision of the judges will be based upon the candidates knowledge of Charlevoix and the Venetian Festival, poise and ability of candidates to express themselves and general presentation.

The coronation ceremony is tentatively scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday, July 24, at the Odmark Pavilion in East Park. The Venetian Crown will be passed on by the reigning queen of the 1998 festival, Danica Kilander.

Applications are available at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office and must be returned no later than 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 22. The committee is also seeking confirmation of the identity and whereabouts of past Venetian Queens. Please provide such information to the Charlevoix Chamber office at 547-2101.

Another year, another five miles of petunias

The petunia gods smiled on their favorite city of Charlevoix and provided excellent weather for last Thursday's petunia planting.

Block captain John Kurtz helps pass out petunias.

Traveling in style to the Petunia Picnic are (from left) Allie Hodge, Grace Glenny, Elizabeth Hodgson, Delaney Hodge. Moms in back are Katie Glennie and Gaye Hodge.

Steve Bennett looks like he could double as a waiter, the way he carries his trays of petunias down the street.

Students from Charlevoix High School split their time between cheering for their friends at the conference track meet and planting petunias along the highway near Carpenter Street. They are (clockwise, from lower left) Jill Ramsey, Michelle Martin, Taya Drost, Justin Thorp and Lanie Lopez.

The Northwest Academy Jazz All Stars entertained the appreciative crowd in East Park, under the direction of Gary Stutzman.

It didn't take long for Rotary members to find a job cooking hot dogs for superintendent John Sturock. Veteran cooker Bruce MacArthur (right) keeps a close eye on his protege.

Sheron Laney and Rosemary Roske relax and enjoy their hot dogs in East Park.

Stutzman said it might have been the best use of the fish pond ever seen when he put his horn players in the pond.

Block Captain Dave Novotny does a little planting of his own.

Date set for the next Crop Walk

Charlevoix County CROP Walk coordinators recently met at the Charlevoix Methodist Church with Johanna Blazer, associate director of Church World Services to make plans for the 1999 Charlevoix County CROP Walk.

Coordinators for this year's CROP Walk are Kay Smith of Charlevoix, Marge Teske of East Jordan and Diana Walls of Boyne City.

Since the 1998 CROP Walk ran into difficulty with torrential rains, it was decided to set both an actual date for the walk and an alternate date. Saturday, Sept. 25 was selected as the date for this year's walk. If an alternate date is needed, it will be Sunday, Sept. 26.

Despite the rain, in 1998 the county CROP Walk had 119 walkers and a total of $16,617 earned to combat world hunger and help the three food pantries in Charlevoix County. This averaged to $139 raised per walker. Charlevoix County ranked second in the state in the amount raised per walker.

The goal set by the coordinators for the 1999 CROP Walk is a total of 160 walkers from the three communities and a cash total of $17,000.

For more information, call Kay Smith at 547-2920, Marge Teske at 536-3128 or Diana Walls at 582-6485.

Water safety classes offered at pool

Water safety tips and techniques will be demonstrated by aquatic expert Dr. David Smith at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, June 2 for all interested boating and swimming families and individuals.

Smith, author of a textbook on water safety and president of the pool board, cites the rise ln boating accidents. Most serious boating accidents, he says, pertain to craft under 14 feet long and involve misuse of Personal Flotation Devices, or myths concerning "heavy" clothing, and similar misunderstandings.

He will therefore have family members enter the pool to try various types of life jackets, unassisted floating in boots, waders and snowmobile suits, cold water survival tactics, swamped boat float and other basics. A simple, but a too frequently neglected skill such as reentering a dinghy or small inflatable will be covered.

All the concepts practiced in water are carefully controlled, thoroughly supervised and well-tested. The same ideas have been shared with large numbers of school students from Charlevoix and Beaver Island. The session will end at 9 p.m.

Participants are urged to bring a set of clean clothing to wear in the pool and their own life jackets. Non-swimmers also may participate. Personal Flotation Devices will be available at the pool.

The pool's regular family or individual rate will be charged. For more details, call CACP at 547-0982.

Recycling survey should be returned to county

The Charlevoix County Planning Department reminds the 1,500 residents who recently received a solid waste and recycling survey to complete and return the form. Residents were randomly selected from voter registration.

The survey answers will assist the planning department in determining the county's waste and recycling policies. Examples of questions in the survey include: What are residents' monthly costs for garbage collection and disposal, what method of payment residents use for garbage collection, what is the percentage of garbage that could be recycled, and what materials residents would like to recycle.

Residents may return their responses in the envelopes sent with the surveys, or mail them to the Charlevoix County Planning Department, County Building, 301 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Kayaking and canoeing classes offered by watershed group

Kayakers enjoy themselves paddling on the lakes and streams of northern Michigan with the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. (Photo courtesy of Tip of the Mitt)

Want to paddle but don't know how? Are you interested in discovering more about the lakes and rivers in our area? Then the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, in partnership with The Outfitter and Canoe Hut, have just what you are looking for — naturalist-led aquatic field trips that will explore a variety of water resources, while giving you an opportunity to improve your paddling skills. Would you rather someone else do the "paddling" for you? The watershed council will also be offering a pontoon boat tour of Black Lake.

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council.

"With 20 years of experience preserving and enhancing northern Michigan's waters, the watershed council is uniquely qualified to host these trips. Getting people out on the water is one of the best ways to encourage the future stewardship of these incredible waters," said Kristina Wieland, membership and communications coordinator for the watershed council.

The watershed council is out to make this summer's trips the best ever, by adding more trips and keeping them smaller in size. A smaller group size will help to provide a high quality experience. To give more people a chance to come on the trips it is requested that participants sign up for a maximum of two trips this season.

These trips are free to members of the watershed council, or $25 for nonmembers. Bring your own paddling gear, refreshments, and kayak or canoe (some trips for kayaks only). Kayaks, canoes and paddling equipment will be available for rent from The Outfitter and Canoe Hut for $15. Please call Kristina Wieland at the watershed council at 347-1181 to reserve your space and boat if you need one. Directions and more information on the trips will be mailed out to participants prior to the trips.

Donating to the cause

Left: For years, Consumers Energy has provided realistic smoke, fire and rescue training to local fire departments during its annual fire brigade training. Now that the Big Rock Point plant is closing down, the plant's fire bridge is changing its role, and is donating much of its firefighting equipment to local fire departments. Specifically, 20 airpacks and 12 sets of turnout clothing were given to the Charlevoix Fire Department, and more than one dozen sets of turnout gear were given to the Charlevoix Fire Department, for use by the Explorer Scout post sponsored by the department. Shown here, Ken Powers (left), general site manager for Big Rock Point, donates turnout gear to city fire chief Doug Carver (center), along with Mike Van Alst, property protection supervisor at the plant. Charlevoix students create their own fresco mural

Above: The high school mural, now completed, is hanging in the high school cafeteria, where students and parents are invited to view the recently completed work of art.

Thanks to a grant from the Charlevoix Council for the Arts, two muralists from Detroit were able to visit Charlevoix for one week and teach students about the ancient art of mural painting.

Rick and Deb Zuccarini, muralists, taught art students in the elementary school and high school how to create a fresco mural from scratch.

Students were involved in the project from the very beginning, where mesh is used to attach wet plaster.

All 600 elementary students drew their own interpretation of a jungle scene. Then Deb Zuccarini compiled all the work and turned it into the layout for a massive jungle mural.

Using the 12 original colors that are always used for fresco murals, students added layer after layer of color to the wet plaster to create the murals in both the high school and elementary school.

Painting murals is one of the oldest art forms in the world.

"All painting came from wall painting originally, and fresco murals came from that, so this art form has been around since the beginning of time," Rick said.

It's impossible to give one geographical area credit for developing murals.

"It's so universal, it's hard to say where it originated," said Rick.

The murals were completed last week in both schools.

The artists are hoping to return to the area in the future to work with middle school students on a similar project.

Girls' track team misses second place by two points

It was not only hard to believe, it was a crushing blow to the Charlevoix girls' track team when a mere two points kept the team out of second place and pushed them to a fifth place finish in the conference track meet hosted at home last Thursday, May 27.

The winning team was Traverse City St. Francis with a score of 106, followed by East Jordan, 84, Kalkaska, 83, Boyne City, 83, Charlevoix, 82, Harbor Springs, 66 and Elk Rapids 20.

Highlights of the meet included a first place finish by Liza Gorkiewicz in the 800 meter run, and two second place finishes in the 3200 relay and the 800 meter relay, with relay teams Emily Martinus, Jenny Miller, Karianne Miller and Laura Schairbaum in the 800 and Tricia Hodge, Liza Gorkiewicz, Laura Schairbaum and Katie Swenor in the 3200. Hodge also finished fourth in the 800 meter run.

The 400 meter relay team of Emily Martinus, Jenny Miller, Leslie Hoffman and Karianne Miller finished in third place, while the 1600 meter relay team of Laura Schairbaum, Leslie Hoffman, Jennifer McClellan and Kelly Reid took a fourth place finish.

In individual events, Tiffany Fisher finished third in the pole vault and Sarah Dominic finished fourth in the discus throw.

Jenny Miller took fourth in the 100 meter dash and sixth place in the 200 meter dash. In the 100 meter hurtles, Leslie Hoffman took fifth and Meghan Vogel finished sixth.

In the 300 meter hurtles, Leslie Hoffman finished fourth and Emily Martinus, fifth.

Boys' track team takes second place in conference meet

The Charlevoix Boys' Track Team came to within a few points of winning the conference title, but in the end, East Jordan's distance runners made the difference. East Jordan took the title in the conference meet hosted in Charlevoix last Thursday, May 27.

"We had a great run at it, and there was a superb effort by everyone," said coach Hal Evans.

Jeremy Rafacz was the star of the day, with four first place finishes in the 100 and 200 meter sprints, and in the 400 and 800 relay races. Teammates in the relay races were Matt McClellan, Brian Cornet, Hal Evans in one relay and Ben VanGuilder in the other relay.

Matt McClellan took two first places in the relay races and two second places in the 100 and 200 meter sprints.

Todd Shaperkotter took second place in four individual events: The 100 low hurtles, the 300 intermediate hurtles, the high jump and the long jump.

Wally Wujcik finished second in the shot put.

The one-mile relay team of Hal Evans, Ben VanGuilder, Brian Cornet and Zack Hopkins took third place.

Pole vaulters for Charlevoix claimed three out of six places, with Luke Whitley taking first, Jeff Buckner taking second and Ryan Rafacz taking sixth place. Ryan Rafacz, a freshman, also scored in the high and low hurtles.

Brian Cornet also scored in the long jump, Ben VanGuilder scored in the 400 meter dash, and Jeff Popenhagen took sixth in the two-mile race.

"The East Jordan distance runners really held on," Evans said. "In the end, that made all the difference in the meet."

The boys competed Tuesday, June 1 in the Twilight Meet of Champions in Charlevoix, but results weren't available at press time. They will compete in state finals this weekend.

Softball team crushes opponents

Charlevoix girls' softball pitcher Courtney Butler is keeping the competition in the dug-out, not running the baseline.

In a doubleheader against Ellsworth Wednesday, May 26, Butler held Ellsworth to a goose egg for a score in game one, finishing with the score at Charlevoix 16, Ellsworth, 0.

"She didn't give up one single hit," said coach Ron Cox.

In game two, Butler still held the opponents to three runs, with a final score of 13-3.

In the first game, Butler allowed four on base on balls and struck out eight batters.

Tasha Morrison had two singles, Butler added a triple, along with Krysta Pearsall, who also tripled. Jessi Whitley had a double and Jennifer Liddicoat and Ann Spang had singles.

In game two, Dena Sheldon was good for two doubles, while Tasha Morrison had one double and two singles, followed by Sarah Jones with one double and one single.

Krysta Pearsall was the big hitter in game two with a home run. Butler, Laurel English and Ann Spang each had singles.

Following the Ellsworth game the next day, Charlevoix pounded Rudyard, 11-2 in game one and 12-4 in game two.

Again, Butler pitched both games. In the first game, Butler gave up one hit, put two opponents on base with balls and struck out 10 batters. In game two, she gave up two hits, put four on base with balls and had three strikeouts.

Game two was a bit of a slug fest with doubles by Sarah Jones, Butler, Dena Sheldon, Jessie Whitley, Tasha Morrison, and a grand slam home run by Krysta Pearsall. Jones, Butler, Sheldon, Shandra Spencley, Whitley, Christine Potee, English and Liddicoat each had singles.

Senior Companion Volunteer

in Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, or Missaukee counties.

The Senior Companion Program is a national older adult volunteer program designed to provide adults over 60 years of age, living on limited incomes, a meaningful volunteer opportunity at no cost to themselves and to help meet community needs.

SENIOR COMPANION volunteers visit several assigned friends providing one-on-one companionship and practical assistance to help other seniors maintain an independent lifestyle. Each week Senior Companions can be found doing what friends do for friends -- assisting with grocery shopping or other errands, offering a lift to the doctor, sharing a meal talking about old times and new challenges, and easing their loneliness.

These "special friends" are often isolated older adults who may be frail and elderly struggling to stay in their own homes, may live in foster care settings or nursing homes, or they may be mentally ill or developmentally disabled.

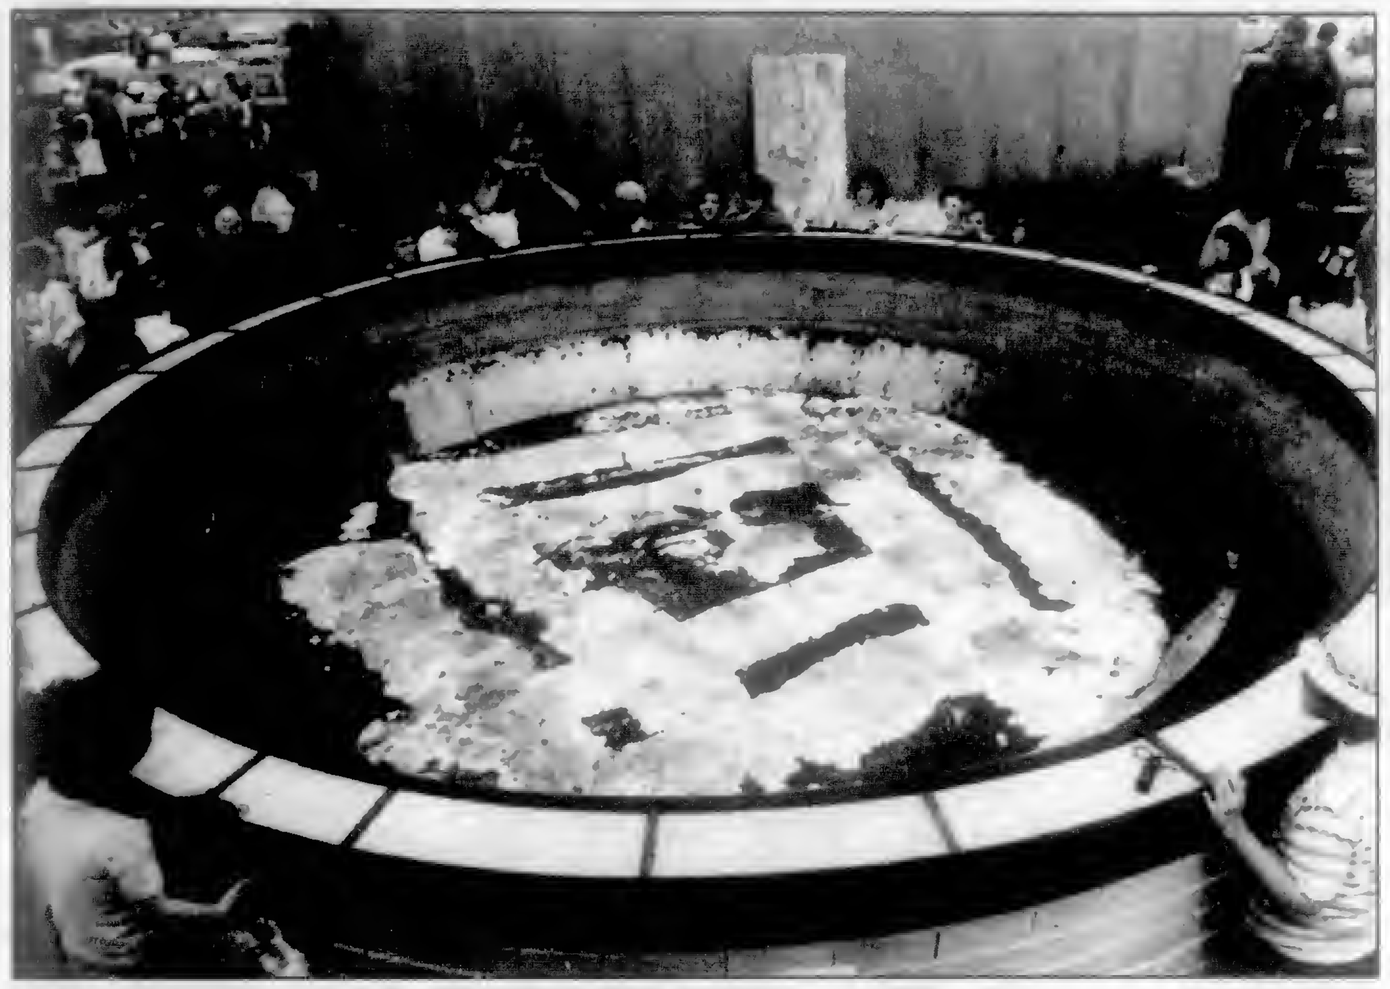
SCRAPBOOK



World's biggest cherry pie was Charlevoix's claim to fame

To celebrate the nation's Bicentennial in 1976, Charlevoix chef Dave Phillips organized an effort to bake the world's largest cherry pie. It put Charlevoix on the map when the whole town, plus many visitors, turned out to see the giant pie. It was baked in a kiln at Medusa Cement Co. (Courier file photo)

Historical society honors Charlevoix artists of the past with retro art show in August

Raymond Knight, called "Charlevoix Harbor in 1911," is owned by Cynthia Postmus and is an example of the historic paintings that will be on display at the "Artists of the Past exhibit," offered by the Charlevoix Historical Society. (Photo courtesy of Cynthia Postmus)

The Charlevoix Historical Society will be presenting an exhibit called "Charlevoix Artists of the Past" from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Aug. 13 and 14 at the Charlevoix Railroad Depot. This special showing will honor those deceased residents whose work spans many decades, but some of which is little known to the general public. Oils, watercolors, prints, pastels, pen and ink drawing, wood carvings, plus other media will be featured, with emphasis on local and area scenes.

Artists to be included are: Harold Kohn, Irene Young, Lyle Miles, Manie Fessenden, Peter D. Campbell, Capt. Raymond Knight, Rosa Nettleton, Wayne Beiding, George Smith and Eleanor Brow. Their works will be assembled from the historical society museums and many private collections.

There will be a $2 charge for admission.

At 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 14, Charlevoix Middle School art teacher Caroline Smith will conduct a free children's workshop featuring painting and wood block printing. The children, from kindergarten through sixth grade, will focus their artistic interpretations on Charlevoix and area scenes.

At 1 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 15, a special meeting for the historical society members will be at the Depot Museum to discuss the artists' lives and work. Relatives and friends of the artists will be invited guests to help relive the years of so much locally inspired and rich production.

For the special "Charlevoix Artists of the Past" exhibit, the society received a matching grant from the Cheboygan Area Arts Council, a regional agency that channels grants for the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs.

Parent workshop offered by Women's Resource Center

A parenting workshop, based on the best selling book, "How To Talk So Kids Will Listen and Listen So Kids Will Talk" starts at 3:00 p.m. Wednesday, June 16 at the Women's Resource Center, 423 Porter St., Petoskey.

Parents will learn proven skills, such as how to set limits while maintaining goodwill, cope with their child's negative feelings, express anger without hurting, engage their child's willing cooperation and help their child become caring and responsible. Parents will also learn how to resolve conflicts peacefully and create a family atmosphere of love and respect.

The six-session workshop is sponsored by the Women's Resource Center and will be led by Joann Townsend. The cost of the workshop is $60 per person or $65 per couple; materials are included. The dates of the sessions are June 16, 23, 30, July 7, 14 and 21. Certificates of Completion will be awarded at the conclusion of the program. Advanced registration and payment is requested. Space is limited.

"Parents are on the firing line seven days a week. Yet few of them have had any training for this demanding job. No wonder even the most well-intentioned parents often find themselves feeling frustrated, bewildered, guilty or alone," said Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish, award-winning authors of the book and program.

In studies in Wisconsin, Colorado and North Dakota, researchers found that attending parents developed skills that significantly and lastingly improved the quality of their family life. They also found these new-found skills worked equally well with children of all ages.

To register, call the Women's Resource Center at 347-0067.

Valedictorians and salutatorian are scholars and athletes

A trio of young women will be honored as class valedictorians and salutatorian when the class of 1999 goes through commencement ceremonies at 2 p.m. Sunday, June 6.

Named as valedictorians are Jamie Gowell and Laurel English, who completed their high school careers with 4.0 grade point averages and are at the top of their class.

Liza Gorkiewicz was named salutatorian, with a 3.994 grade point average.

Gowell is the daughter of Roger and Kathy Gowell. English is the daughter of Robert and Kathy English and Gorkiewicz is the daughter of Jeanne Gorkiewicz and Dennis Phelps, Robert and Diane Gorkiewicz.

In addition to superior work in the class room, the three top students were active in extracurricular activities ranging from athletics to drama to civic organizations.

Gowell eared varsity letters in basketball, volleyball, softball and track. She has been president of her class since the eighth grade and this year she served as National Honor Society president. She also was a member of the St. Mary's Church youth group for three years.

Gowell said the desire to be active within her school and community comes naturally.

"It's what I do," she said. "I feel like I constantly have to be on the go or else I begin to procrastinate."

English, on the other hand, said she dove into extracurricular activities as a way to get to know her fellow students when her family moved to Charlevoix from Jackson.

"The habit kind of stuck with me," English said.

English has been involved with Future Problem Solvers, winning a state title with her team in 1997. She's been in performing arts as a member of the debate team and this year had the lead role of Laurie in the school's production of "Oklahoma!" She's a member of the percussion section in the school's band and joined the school's Key Club. She ran cross country this fall and has been starting catcher and infielder for the school's softball team the last two seasons. She's also active within her church, Parr Memorial Baptist.

Remarkably, English did all of that while skipping a grade to graduate with the class of 1999. By testing out of freshman English and science classes and by taking various classes during summer terms at Jackson Community College and North Central Michigan College, English had amassed enough credits to graduate one year early.

"My parents felt very strongly that I should try this," she said. "It's been a tremendous challenge and it took a lot of energy. It was worth it because I got to meet people from the other classes."

For Gorkiewicz, excelling in school and in sports just came naturally.

"I'ts my type of personality, I guess, to do the best I can at everything," she said.

Gorkiewicz involved herself in many extracurricular activites, including National Honors Society, Spanish club, track, cross county, cross country skiing, and was the class treasurer/secretary for her senior class.

As a member of the cross country team, she was named to the academic all-state team in 1996 and 1998.

Gorkiewicz said her track coach, Ken Plude, was a major influence on her during her four years of high school.

"He goes beyond being a coach and teacher, and helps people realize who they are and what they want to get out of life," Gorkiewicz said of her coach. "He taught me not to train just for today or tomorrow, but to be fit for the rest of my life. He also taught me about living up to my potential, beyond running."

Gorkiewicz said the academic teachers she found to be the most helpful were her English teacher, Kris Shaperkotter, and biology teacher, Roger Gowell.

"When I grew up, I was outdoors a lot, so I learned to like biology," she said. Gorkiewicz will attend University of Michigan in the fall and is considering a major in either biology or psychology.

Jamie Gowell said her favorite academic classes were Spanish, English, history and psychology. She's an avid reader and enjoys classical literature and historical fiction. Reading Shakespeare in her classes, she said, will be a classroom experience she'll never forget.

Laurel English enjoyed all her science classes and also highlighted science teacher Roger Gowell as a teacher whose class was always both challenging and fun.

English will be attending Michigan Technological University, where she plans to study Materials Engineering. Gowell will attend the University of Michigan. She is still undecided about a major, but said she's leaning toward pre-law or psychology.

The trio of students are looking forward to their collegiate ventures.

"It's going to be exciting to see what is out there," Gowell said. "It's a big confidence builder, being able to do so many different activities and being involved with everything that a small school like Charlevoix offers."

Four score and 10 years ago...

... one of Charlevoix's finest residents came into the world

By Laurie Lounsbury

Charlevoix's Charlie Bleha will enjoy his 90th birthday June 10.

When Charlie Bleha celebrates his 90th birthday on June 10, he can look forward to many more years of good health and pleasant days spent in Charlevoix. He can also look back on his 84 years of a vibrant, active life in Charlevoix, where he has seen the town evolve from a quiet resort community to a bustling tourist town.

He can remember a time when walking to the movie theater downtown meant allowing plenty of time for the stroll.

"You had to leave home early to allow time for talking to everyone sitting on their front porches," Bleha said.

He remembers when you could buy a .22 rifle from a catalog for one dollar and put it to good use right in town, shooting the sparrows, woodchucks and crows that threatened the local crops.

"The county clerk would pay us two cents for sparrows, five cents for crows and 50 cents for woodchucks. It was a bounty paid for killing the vermin."

Of course, no one was paying a bounty when Bleha and his buddies were goofing around with their rifles and put a round through the top of the deputy sheriff's hat.

"There was only one sheriff and one deputy back then, so they weren't too happy with us for shooting the deputy's hat," Bleha said, chuckling softly at the memory.

Bleha was a 6-year-old Bohemian boy who could barely speak English when he and his family moved to a farm on Phelps Road outside of Charlevoix. His parents and older siblings had emigrated from Bohemia and moved to Detroit before making the move up north, where jobs were available at the Sugar Beet Factory on Ferry Avenue.

A little more than one year after moving to Charlevoix, Bleha's father died, leaving his mother to support her youngest son. Mrs. Bleha spoke no English, so she moved herself and Charlie to a Bohemian settlement on the north side of town. His older siblings were already on their own, so it was just young Charlie and his mom who carved out a life in Charlevoix.

Charlie's mom did laundry for summer resorters and housework for local residents to make ends meet. As a high school student, Charlie used to go up and down the street, offering to work for nothing in the local businesses.

"I wanted to learn a trade," he said.

Bleha learned his trade in the grocery business. He worked for the A and P grocery store for 17 years before taking over the business himself in 1950. Called the Food Port, it was located where Koucky Gallery is today.

"Mine was the first store with a name that had anything to do with the water," Bleha said. "I was the first one to think of that."

Another first in Bleha's store was the concept of serving yourself. Prior to that, customers would enter a grocery store and turn their shopping list over to a shopkeeper, who would go up and down the aisles filling the list. Called a superette at the time, Bleha provided customers with shopping carts they could fill themselves.

Competition was fierce in the grocery business then, with 11 stores in town. When a new Kroger store opened on the top of the south hill, Bleha sold his business to Dick Edwards in 1957.

It was during the Depression that Bleha met his wife of 65 years, Esther. She was a waitress at the Beach Hotel and Bleha was a bouncer at Moonlight Gardens, a lively local dance spot on the north side of town, where Giuseppe's is today. Esther and her waitress

Wild weather

While most of the weekend weather was enjoyably warm, sunny and humid, a few turbulent bursts of storm activity caused damage around town.

A thunderstorm in the early morning hours of Sunday, June 6, knocked out power in portions of the downtown area, including the city marina and Belvedere Avenue.

Parents and graduating students attending the senior breakfast at the Grey Gables found themselves spooning food from heating dishes without knowing what it was they were spooning onto their plate. The friends used to go dancing at the Moonlight Gardens when their job of tending to a single family at the hotel was done for the day.

Looking at the tall, trim Bleha today, it's easy to understand how he was a strapping football player for Charlevoix High School and a choice bouncer at the Moonlight Gardens. Most nights, the job of a bouncer simply meant Bleha had to escort a few young men outside to sober up in the parking lot. It was around the time of Prohibition, and some of the wealthy resorters had figured out ways to get liquor illegally from rum runners who made routine trips to Canada across the Great Lakes.

Bleha recalls one evening when a customer solved her own problem, needing almost no help from Bleha. The girl he recalled was a strong young woman, nearly six feet tall and weighing close to 200 pounds, who liked to go dancing at the Moonlight Gardens in her short flapper dress, the costume of choice in those days. When she bent over to pick up her compact she'd dropped, a bold young man ran his fingers up the back of her leg. In one swift move, the young lady clutched her compact, made a fist around it, whirled around and delivered a knock-out punch to the impertinent man.

"All I had to do was drag him outside," Bleha said.

Bleha married his bride in 1933, during the Depression years.

"I was earning $10 a week, clerking at the A and P," Bleha said. His gainful employment at the time made it impossible for Esther to get a job teaching. During the post Depression years, one paying job per family was all that was allowed. Esther eventually got a job as a teacher in Charlevoix, retiring in 1972. Bleha retired in 1971 from his job as a meat cutter for Kroger's grocery store.

Although Bleha's stories of dancing at the Moonlight Gardens and tony parties at the Charlevoix Inn near the Depot sound romantic and exciting, Bleha claims life was slower paced in those days.

The slower pace of life probably came from the fact that Charlevoix had no real tourist industry then. The town was populated only by local residents and resorters.

"The resorters came in June and stayed until September or October," Bleha recalled. "We got to know them, we were invited to their homes for meals, and we played with their kids.

"We walked a lot, got to know everybody," he continued. "There was a time I could walk down the street in the summer and I bet I knew 97 percent of the people I would see by their first name."

On the north side of town, most of the resorters living in the elegant homes along Michigan Avenue and Dixon Avenue were Jewish. "They were the friendliest people you could find," Bleha said.

Bleha's only time away from home was during World War II, when he served in the Army with the 13th Armored Tank Division from 1941 to 1946. His division was sent where the fighting was heaviest, so he saw major battles from Le Havre to Brechtes Gardens, where Hitler ultimately took his own life.

After returning from the war, Bleha joined a local veteran's group called the "Congregators." The group introduced fluoridation of water to Charlevoix first, and then to the state.

Bleha was also a Cub Master, and helped increase the number of Cub Scouts in Charlevoix from eight to 125.

If being involved with the community helps a person stay young, then Bleha is 90 years young and getting younger. He served as president of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, has been a member of the Congregational Church for 81 years and held every office at the church, and served as the Charlevoix Area Hospital board treasurer for 18 years. He also served on the Charlevoix Township Board and is a member of the Lions Club and the American Legion.

It was during Bleha's time as chamber president that the name of Pine Lake was changed to Lake Charlevoix.

As Bleha turns 90, he takes a philosophical approach to the big day.

"It's just like any day, you can't get excited about it," he said. "I've been fortunate to have good health."

Charlie and Esther Bleha won't officially celebrate Charlie's birthday until later this summer, when his two sons, Tom and John, their wives and children can join them in Charlevoix.

"We're expecting our first great-grandchild," Esther explained. "It's due any day now. That's why the kids can't visit right now."

In the absence of family, be sure to wish Charlie Bleha a happy birthday as he marks four score and 10 years of a happy, productive life in Charlevoix.

restaurant was plunged into darkness for the event. In spite of the lack of power, the Grey Gables managed to serve hot food and provide some lighting with candles. The power outage was apparently due to lightning, which struck an overhead line and blew out the transformer located at May Street and Belvedere Avenue.

At about 9 p.m. Sunday evening, a microbust storm brought winds up to 60 m.p.h. sweeping through town off Lake Michigan, damaging many of the older trees in town. Large limbs were knocked down along Dixon Avenue, Michigan Avenue and State Street.

"There are piles of tree branches all over town this morning," said police chief Dennis Halverson on the following Monday morning. The blast of high winds lasted about 10 to 15 minutes. Fortunately, no power lines were knocked down with the tree limbs, and no cars or homes were damaged by falling limbs.

In Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego and Antrim counties, Great Lakes Energy reported that 5,600 customers lost power Sunday morning, due to the number of severe, widespread thunderstorms.

The Class of 1999 commences with its bright future

By Laurie Lounsbury

Charlevoix Commencement speaker James Maas amusingly reminded us of the shortest — and possibly most memorable — commencement speech ever given, when he told the story of Winston Churchill's speech.

"NEVER GIVE UP," was all Churchill told a graduating class many years ago. "NEVER GIVE UP."

While Maas wasn't quite that brief, the renowned speaker and Cornell University professor did issue three words with the same emphasis and vigor that Churchill used long ago.

"GET ADEQUATE SLEEP," Maas told the graduating seniors.

Maas, who has done extensive studies on the necessity of proper sleep, told everyone in attendance at the Charlevoix High School commencement ceremonies that "We are a nation of sleep-deprived people."

Students and parents were surprised to learn that kids from the age of adolescence to 25 years of age need nine and one-half hours of sleep every night. Adults need eight hours of sleep. The amount of sleep is needed to allow for proper regrowth of neurons and synapses in the brain.

"Anyone who says, 'I only need five or six hours of sleep' is basically saying, 'I'm stupid,' because sleep deprivation makes you stupid," Maas said.

Maas' message about sleep came near the end of his commencement speech, which was loaded with amusing anecdotes and pithy words of advice, backed up with solid ways to achieve goals and make dreams come true.

The distinguished author won the hearts of everyone when he opened his speech by saying, "It was thrilling to appear on the Oprah Winfrey Show, but no less thrilling than sitting under the basketball hoop of the 'No Limit' Rayders today."

Maas has spent 42 summers in Charlevoix, and accepted an invitation to speak at the high school commencement from Brooke Block, a graduating senior. As a longtime summer resident, Maas was able to weave anecdotes about graduating seniors into his speech, noting the fishing excursions he's taken with Brian Ward and the polite deference he's received on the Belvedere Golf Course from caddy and graduate Todd Shaperkotter.

In addition to Maas' enjoyable speech, valedictorians Laurel English and Jamie Gowell, and salutatorian Liza Gorkiewicz gave a blend of light-hearted, touching, and motivating speeches. The high school band played "An American Symphony," from Mr. Holland's Opus. In all, the 111th Charlevoix High School Commencement was a delightful mixture of decorum, laughter and tears as the Class of 1999 prepares to move onto the next step of their promising lives.

Manners are back in style in the borough of Manhattan

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

Tourists! They will descend on us again this summer like the swallows of Capistrano. For this reason my recent trip to Manhattan as a tourist should be of interest to all those who serve the hospitality industry. Thanks to Mayor Guiliani's active campaign to "Create a More Civil Society," tourists are finding that their reception in the Big Apple has changed for the better. Much better!

I can remember when it was almost dangerous to hail a cab in New York City. People would sprint out of the blue, without a care, to see who could jump in first. One had to be on the alert not to get knocked down. This trip, after I hailed a cab, a man turned to me sweetly and said, "Are you waiting for a cab?" When I said "Yes," he opened the door for me and helped me in!

Taxi cab drivers were often surly. Therefore, it was surprising to see the complete turnaround that I experienced recently. On this trip when I hailed a cab, the driver pulled right up to the curb, jumped out and put my luggage in his trunk with a smile, and closed my door. Another time, when I tried unsuccessfully to attract the attention of a cab that was waiting for a light to turn green, a young black man ran over, notified the driver he had a fare, and gallantly opened the door for me. After settling in, the driver turned around and gave me the compliment of the year!

"Your hair is just like Elizabeth Taylor's!"

Courtesy? Compliments? Friendliness in New York City? The mayor's campaign seems to be working!

"This is what the idea of a civil society is all about," said the mayor. "It's about understanding that our actions have repercussions. What we do has an effect on other people and on the city as a whole. It's our obligation to think about the consequences of our actions."

The strategies employed to help restore the spirit of optimism are: traffic enforcement, taxi safety standards, noise pollution, littering and reckless bicycle riding.

I can relate to reckless bicycle-riding on my street in Charlevoix. Last summer a teenager rode by on the sidewalk in front of my house just as fast as he could go. When he was forced to stop by the bridge, I caught up with him and informed him that one is not allowed to ride bicycles on the sidewalk. He said he didn't know that. The next day, darned if he didn't race by my house again! In New York, the mayor promises to enforce the existing ordinances and create tougher penalties for anyone bicycling on the sidewalk. I hope we can do the same in Charlevoix.

To go one step further, many years ago the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce spearheaded training for restaurant wait staff, which worked well then. Would it work today? Could we form a class off-season for youngsters to learn that we eat from the left (salad, butter plates, etc.) and drink from the right! Then one would know whose baked potato or French fries are on the left, instead of having to ask the person seated next to you, "Did you order a baked potato?" "Is it my coffee?" "Who's salad is this?"

Pleasant dining in a resort area also affects the quality of life. It includes consideration of the rights of fellow citizens to have respect for each other. In my book it includes the notion that our visitors dress appropriately in a white tablecloth restaurant. Those who deal with the public, such as restaurant owners and managers, need to reinforce the sense of civility by turning away people who are dressed for the beach. The only way respect and courtesy truly flourish is when it is mutual, according to the mayor.

Some of the better New York restaurants, I was told, won't allow customers to keep their cell phones with them during dinner. Instead, they provide a "check your phone" service. And finally, in case you haven't heard, the latest Emily Post Etiquette book states clearly that cell phones do not belong on the table when one is dining out. Who would think that Emily Post and the mayor of New York would be in complete accord in their desire to create a more civil society for everyone!

Our petunias are actually exotic visitors from Argentina

By Roger Knutson

Ear to the ground

Now that we have them all planted for another year, it might be a good idea if we knew something more about our most abundant summer residents. Why don't we just plant seeds for our petunia crop? If you have ever purchased petunia seeds and tried to plant them, you already have some idea. Petunia seeds are just about 1/50th of an inch in diameter — not quite as small as orchid seeds, but still nearly invisible to someone with my aging eyes.

Like a number of our usual summer visitors, petunias have traveled a considerable distance to get to Charlevoix. The ones we plant here every year are a hybrid of two wild species of petunia that originally lived in Argentina, and still manage very nicely there without any human help. Those original hybrids between a white-flowered species and a violet-flowered one have been so much further manipulated by plant breeders that it is possible to find petunias of almost any imaginable size and flower color. If we had the climate of their Argentinean home, our petunias could grow as perennials and we would not have to plant them anew each year.

A little broader examination of the ancestry of our petunias reveals a number of fascinating relatives. The family of plants that contains the petunia includes potatoes, tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, and more than a few of the most poisonous plants in the world. Substances like atropine, scopolamine, and nicotine are extracted from relatives of our petunias.

Probably the most notorious of all the petunia relatives is the Mandrake plant found in southern Europe. The root of that plant had magical properties which included producing the most uncontrollable sexual urges. The plant was so dangerous that folklore suggested it could only be harvested in the dark of night (the leaves were supposed to glow brightly). The person digging it up was in some danger of death or derangement, so the usual method of harvest involved tying the root to a dog and frightening the dog until it pulled the plant out. We no longer commonly believe that the shape of a plant root is a guide to its usefulness. I won't tell you what the Mandrake root resembled — you can look it up.

Fortunately, for our collective peace of mind, the petunia plant is dangerous only to very small insects who get permanently mired in the microscopic sticky hairs on the surface of the leaves and starve to death there. It must be something like an organism of our size being dropped into the middle of the Great Dismal Swamp.

Even without the useful poisons and imaginative folklore of its relatives, our petunias seem to work their own magic for Charlevoix.

Letter to the editor

Editor:

The fifth annual Bryan Roloff Memorial Benefit Jam was a big success!

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the owners and staff (especially Teresa) at the Flight Deck for helping us make this event a huge success.

A very special "Thank You" to J.R. Russell for coordinating all the bands. Thanks to Stunt Coyote, Mojo & The Boogieman, Obsolete, Shadow Puppets, The Mural Project and Gary Grapp for all the great music!

A total of $3,252 in donations was made in memory of Bryan to help someone in need. This year the proceeds went to Robert Pardee, recovering from a brain tumor operation.

Thanks to all of you for spending the evening with us, remembering our son and helping keep his life and music alive. What a wonderful day! What wonderful friends.

We Love You and Thank You

School seeks public input

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent John Sturock announced that the Charlevoix Board of Education Facilities Steering Committee will host a community meeting to seek public input regarding the district's need for new facilities. The meeting will be at 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 9 in the high school gymnasium.

"There is no question that as a district we are facing some challenging question regarding our facilities," Sturock said. "The overcrowding at the elementary school, an aging middle school and a high school that needs to be updated has created a need to develop a facility management plan which will address our students needs."

The steering committee appointed by the board, has worked diligently over the past six weeks to come up with answers to questions with regard to three potion plans brought out at the community forum, held in March. They will be making a report to the board of education June 21, but are seeking input from the community before making their report. Charlevoix school officials are encouraging area residents, businesses and parents to attend this meeting.

For more information, call John Sturock at 547-3200.

Beaver Island task force studies future health care needs of island residents and visitors

A newly-formed task force met recently for the first time to address current and future health care delivery needs of Beaver Island residents and visitors. Members of the volunteer task force include island residents and health care personnel, mainland health care providers, and state government officials.

One of the largest goals of the task force is to write and help implement a long-range plan that incorporates input from "customers" of the Beaver Island Health Center. This input, along with other data collection and research, will help the center determine the scope of services that it will offer to meet future health care needs and demands.

"The task force will examine and make recommendations regarding issues of funding both public and private; staffing needs; scope of service; and opportunities created by telemedicine technology and partnerships with newly emerging health care providers," said Dr. Phil Lange, past president of the Beaver Island Health Center. "We have gone out of our way to ensure that members of the task force are representative of the various interests of island residents."

A series of public information-gathering and public education activities is being planned. A community forum will be hosted from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Aug. 14 at the Peaine Township Hall.

The best way to design a health center that will be trusted and utilized by island residents and visitors is to find out what those groups want on the front end.

"The services offered by the new and improved health center will be driven, in large part, by customer demand," said Joe Latoff, current president of the Beaver Island Health Center.

Members of the task force include: Laurene Adams, Jayne Bailey, Jon Hansen, Pinky Harmon, Eric Hodgson, Penny Kiss, Phil Lange, Joe Latoff, Pete LaDico, Theresa Laurain, Joe Moore, Barbara Murphy, Pat Rowley, Bill and Eula Thomas and B.J. Wycoff.

The task force activities will be facilitated by Anne Glendon, a professional strategic planning consultant. The task force expects to take 18 to 24 months to thoroughly research various aspects of health care delivery on the island.

Celebrant Singers come to Charlevoix

The Celebrant Singers

Jon Stemkowski's Celebrant Singers, an internationally known Christian music ministry, will present a concert for the community at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, July 3 at St. Mary's Catholic Church, 102 W. Garfield St., in Charlevoix.

Concert attendees will be treated to contemporary Christian music, praise and worship, personal testimony and ministry. Featuring 10 singers and a 12 piece orchestra, Celebrants will inspire and bless as they share the Gospel through a musical celebration.

In their 20 year history, Celebrants have ministered in all 50 states, through Canada and in more than 80 nations around the world. They have sung to more than six million people in live concerts and countless others via broadcast media.

Celebrants are ecumenical in nature. Teams are comprised of dedicated and talented young adults.

Founder/director Jon Stemkowski is the driving force behind this vital ministry. Stemkowski has more than 25 years of experience in music ministry and is a highly respected minister of the Gospel.

New fund established for church members

The Beishlag family has long been active in the Evangelical Lutheran Church of East Jordan. They've sung in the choir, served on the church council, lectured, and helped lead children's programs. Now, Beishlags will serve their church and benefit its members in a special way.

A new fund in the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, called the Evangelical Lutheran Church Scholarship Fund, will award college and vocational education scholarships to children of church members. Started by Lorna Beishlag with gifts made in memory of her husband and daughter, the fund honors Everett Beishlag, who died in 1997, and Diana (Dee) Beishlag, who died in 1999. The fund is open-ended, and the Beishlags, church members, or others who support educational opportunity may add to the fund's assets at any time. All donations are fully tax deductible; and, because they are made to the community foundation, gifts qualify for a Michigan tax credit as well.

The Evangelical Lutheran Church Scholarship Fund joins 92 other funds held by the community foundation — 30 of them designated for scholarships. Started in 1992 by local citizens, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation receives donations and manages them in a permanent endowment. Each year, income earned on investments is used to make charitable grants to benefit a variety of local programs. To date, the community foundation has assets totaling more that $6 million, and has distributed grants and scholarships of more than $1 million.

For more information about the community foundation, or the new Evangelical Lutheran Church Scholarship Fund, call the foundation office at 536-2440.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God

A parable is told of a farmer who owned an old mule. The mule fell into the farmer's well. The farmer heard the mule "braying" — or whatever mules do when they fall into wells. After carefully assessing the situation, the farmer sympathized with the mule, but decided that neither the mule nor the well was worth the trouble of saving. Instead, he called his neighbors together and told them what happened, and enlisted them to help haul dirt to bury the old mule in the well and put him out of his misery.

Initially, the old mule was hysterical! But as the farmer and his neighbors continued shoveling and the dirt hit his back, a thought struck him. It suddenly dawned on him that every time a shovel of dirt landed on his back, he should shake it off and step up! This he did, shovel after shovel!

"Shake it off and step up, shake it off and step up, shake it off and step up," he repeated to encourage himself.

No matter how painful the blows, or distressing the situation seemed, the old mule fought panic and just kept right on shaking it off and stepping up!

You guessed it! It wasn't long before the old mule, battered and exhausted, stepped triumphantly over the wall of that well!

What seemed like it would bury him, actually blessed him, all because of the manner in which he handled his adversity. Often life is hard. Often life is not fair. Adversity inevitably comes to us all. The end result depends on the way we respond. If we face our problems and respond to them positively, refusing to give in to fear, panic, bitterness or self-pity, the difficulties that come our way to bury us have the potential to benefit and bless us!

As Christians, we have not been promised a trouble-free life. But we do have numerous promises of God's presence, power and provision to see us through.

Jesus said, "These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: But be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." (John 16:33). The Apostle Paul, whose life was riddled with painful experiences of all kinds, writes, "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall trouble or hardship or persecution or famine or nakedness or danger or sword?" As it is written, "For your sake we face death all day long; we are considered as sheep to be slaughtered. No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us. For I am convinced that neither death nor life, neither angels nor demons, neither the present nor the future, nor any power neither height nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God that is in Christ Jesus our Lord." (Romans 8:35-39)

So whatever comes your way, you can either let it bury you, or you can shake it off and step up!

Former African man knows importance of stressing nonviolent solutions to problems

By B. J. Hetler

Jean D'Arc is shown here with eighth grade students Chris Case (left) and Will Kerkstra (right). (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

A soccer champ brings a message as well as his sport to Charlevoix students and their parents.

KaKuSu Jean D'Arc (Jean) believes kids who trust adults and receive support from them are less likely to turn to drugs or violence. He said not only parents, but coaches must also be involved in players' overall well-being, as well as in their soccer skills.

"A coach is like a parent," D'Arc said. "A coach must assist a kid not only in soccer, but in life. A coach needs to motivate and you need to understand a kid to motivate him."

D'Arc said he was a member of the soccer World Cup team and participated in the 1989 Olympics in Seoul, South Korea. In Charlevoix, he assisted the junior varsity soccer team in its successful season. He plans to hold a summer soccer camp in the area.

His positive relationship with the students is shown through letters written to him. One student wrote that he will use D'Arc's advice so he can be a good kid in life. Another wrote that it was the first time in her life to get so much attention, and that the advice she received from D'Arc was priceless.

That advice includes having respect for others, striving to succeed in life, and knowing that when life gets rough, not to give up.

"The past can be an obstacle to the future," D'Arc said. "Problems are part of life — don't give up, move on."

D'Arc said he came to the United States on refugee status from the Congo, Africa last August. He joined AmeriCorps and moved to Charlevoix. Having seen too much violence in his country, he teaches kids here how to solve problems without violence.

"We discuss among the students and share different issues," D'Arc said.

"Give kids a chance to express themselves and kids will respect that and respond."

But when a kid is wrong, D'Arc believes in the child facing it along with adult support. Support the kid and help him to improve, he said.

D'Arc lives in Charlevoix with his host family, John and Mary Lee Campbell.

"It's my first experience to live with a family," D'Arc said. D'Arc was in an orphanage when he was a boy.

"I thank them so much for encouraging me and loving me. They support me a lot in anything I do."

Age is irrelevant to D'Arc.

"People ask me for my age. I say if I am with 7-year-olds, I am seven. If I am with 20-year-olds, I am 20. If I am with 4-year-olds, I am four."

To help with the celebration of Flag Day, Monday, June 14, members of the Marine Corps League Northern Michigan Detachment and their spouses will be handing out miniature American flags. This will be done at local businesses in Emmet, Charlevoix and Cheboygan counties on Saturday, June 12.

This is an annual event and the proceeds from any donations go toward a scholarship fund for two graduating students from local schools.

Selected from among 24 applicants, this year's winners are Jacob Hull from Inland Lakes High School, son of Larry and Patty Hull of Alanson, and Rachel Warnos of East Jordan High School, daughter of Ron and Terri Wornos of East Jordan.

the summer soccer camp. In the fall he plans to attend college.

"I really love this community," D'Arc said. "I count my days and I am sad."

The kids have told him to work hard and return. When he does, he should return with soccer medals and a college degree.

D'Arc's future schooling may require him to live in a large city. He acknowledges the change this will bring, but says there is not much difference in the size of a community.

"There are no small communities," D'Arc said. "Only small minds."

Family farm reaches century mark

By B. J. Hetler

Elzinga Farm and Country Market opened for the season last week, marking the first opening with the farm's plaque designating it a centennial farm. Three generations have owned the farm near Atwood.

The Michigan Historical Commission bestowed the distinction upon the Elzinga farm last summer. Owners John and Phyllis Elzinga spent nearly two years completing forms and meeting state requirements for the historical designation. They hung the plaque over their farm market store.

"We've had a lot of comments from customers," Phyllis said. "People say 'That's funny, you don't look that old.'"

John's grandparents, Hemke and Jane Elzinga, homesteaded the 160-acre farm in the late 1800s. The original house was made with hand-hewn, 10 inch-wide logs. It was a two-story house with four bedrooms. One of John's fond memories are of the times he and his five grown brothers and sisters spent in the house with their parents, Albert and Gertie.

"My mother always made coffee on Sundays after church," he said. "The whole family and their families would get together. You don't have time for that anymore."

The log home was torn down about 35 years ago after the state bought the land to enlarge highway U.S. 31. The Elzingas then built their present home.

They sold all of the logs from that home, not realizing the value of them in the future, Phyllis said. Nothing was saved from the old house.

John's parents operated the dairy farm for many years. He remembers his father milking 20 Jersey cows by hand, twice each day.

"My dad was noted around here for his Jerseys," John said.

John was born in the original farmhouse and helped milk the cows every day as soon as he was old enough. He milked them before he went to school and again when he came home.

John's father died in 1950. A senior in high school, John took over the farm's operations. He doesn't remember it being a conscious decision, but a natural process.

"It fell on me to take the farm," he said. "The cows had to be milked."

John and Phyllis met on a blind date. Phyllis is a Charlevoix native and the daughter of Joseph and Marguerite Williams. Her parents owned Williams Cigar Store and Newsstand at Bridge and Clinton streets for about 35 years.

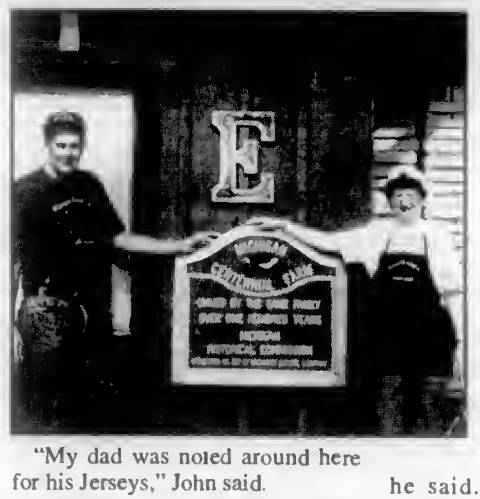
John and Phyllis married in 1957. They have two grown daughters, Susan and Cheryl. Phyllis uses her Alma College business degree to operate the market. She said she has liked the farm from the beginning.

The couple eventually bought 40 additional acres and started an orchard. Not long afterward, they decided to stop dairy farming and grow fruit instead. John doesn't miss the milking and has no regrets about selling his cows.

"It was the happiest day of my life when that herd left," he said. "I sold the whole herd and watched them leave."

The orchard has grown to 100 acres. Regular customers and visitors stop at the farm market to buy handpicked cherries, apples, peaches, pears, plums, nectarines and apricots. Customers enjoy coffee and a slice of homemade pie or a pastry at the market's diner. There is also a bakery and a craft shop.

The Elzinga Farm and Country Market is located 10 miles south of Charlevoix on U.S. 31. Market hours are 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday. The telephone number is (231) 599-2604.



Above: Regulars and visitors enjoy the diner at the Elzinga Farm & Country Market. The market and diner open at 6 a.m. Regulars are seated and drinking coffee by 6:05 a.m., John Elzinga said. Left: John and Phyllis Elzinga are proud of the designation by the Michigan Historical Commission.

Trout tournament will draw anglers to Charlevoix

Hundreds of anglers are hoping the recent warm weather will encourage the fish to start biting — particularly the lake trout, brown trout, steelhead and salmon.

The anglers will be gathering in Charlevoix Friday, June 11 for the 15th Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament. Deadline to register for the tournament is at 8 p.m. Thursday, June 10. Registration will be at tournament headquarters in East Park at the Odmark Pavilion. There is a $25 entry fee.

For three days, fishing folks will pursue the wily brown trout, steelhead, lake trout and salmon in an effort to win one of the grand prizes of $1,000 for the biggest fish in each category.

During the three day event, the city trout pond in East Park will be stocked with fish for kids to catch. The trout in the pond are paid for by Pat McKeown Ford, and proceeds from the kids' trout pond will benefit the Women's Resource Center in Petoskey.

Also in East Park during the event will be displays provided by trout tournament sponsors.

The awards ceremony will start at 1 p.m. Sunday, June 13 in East Park.

Antique dealer opens "Antiques," a new store in town

By B. J. Hetler

A stroll through Antiques, with its gallery atmosphere, takes one into rooms displayed artfully with furnishings of bygone eras.

The eclectic pieces include a red upholstered Victorian chair, early photographs, jewelry, a colonial wooden cradle, Stickley mission-style furniture, European brass and copper, formal art and tramp art. The items range from the late 19th century to the mid-20th century.

Tramp art is a unique craft made by prisoners and tramps during the Great Depression. Decorative boxes and miniature houses were patiently crafted with matchsticks and cedar.

Antiques opened in March at 1209 Bridge St. Owner Jeffrey Hochhalter said he is happy to be in his own building after traveling for the last five years to attend shows. He rents space at Antiques to 11 dealers and staffs the store himself. Prior to his five years of traveling in the antique business, he owned an antique store in Charlevoix, so he is not new to the antique retail business.

"Business has been good since we opened the doors," he said.

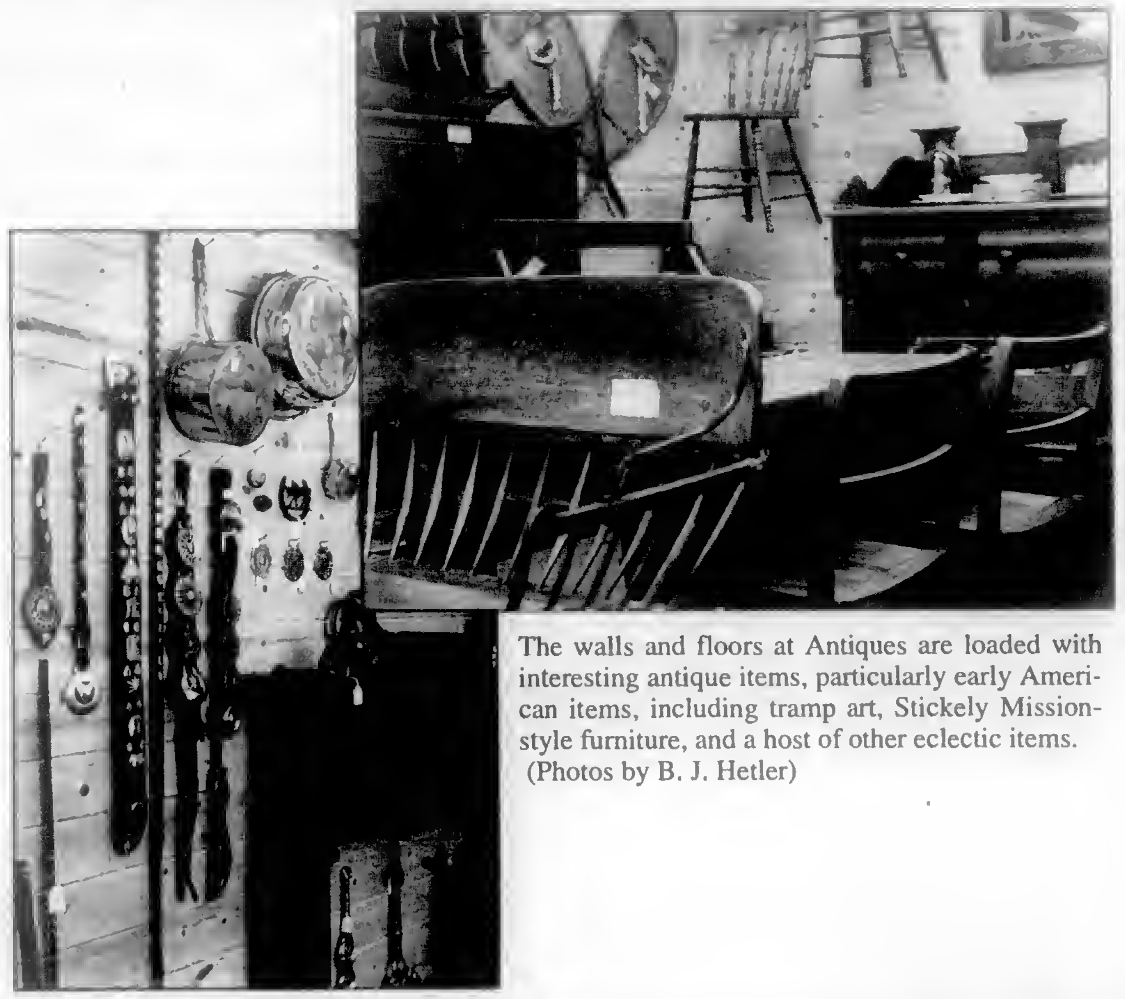
His wife, Cara, is an artist and illustrator. When she isn't doing art fairs, she helps with the couple's business.

Jeffrey has lived in the Charlevoix area since 1975, except for several years spent in Seattle, Wash.

Hochhalter said customers will find reasonable prices at Antiques.

"I'd rather sell a lot at a lower price, than a little at a large price."

Antiques is opened from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. The telephone number is 547-3135.



The walls and floors at Antiques are loaded with interesting antique items, particularly early American items, including tramp art, Stickely Mission-style furniture, and a host of other eclectic items. (Photos by B. J. Hetler)

Yacht Club races off to a good start, in spite of unpredictable weather

By A. Nony Mouse
Charlevoix Yacht Club

History tells us that, on a typical evening, the Wednesday night Charlevoix Yacht Club races start with a decent breeze but that it can be expected to diminish over the course of the evening. Just the opposite occurred in the third race of the 1999 Spring Series.

The heavy rains and winds that lasted all day let up well before the 18 sail yachts started, but a nice breeze moved in later. The J-22s again had the largest fleet, with seven starters and the closest race. Hussy finished first with a time of 7:32:30, just over a minute ahead of H.S. Moisture. Superfluous was next, followed by High Maintenance one minute later. Paleface Lite followed by 20 seconds, then Jumblies crossed the finish line with Swine Flew well behind them. Since they race one design, their corrected position was the same as their finish position.

After three races, H.S. Moisture leads with 5 points; Hussy, 6; Superfluous, 7; High Maintenance, 12; Paleface Lite, 15; Swine Flew, 19; and Jumblies, 21.

Only Kamikaze made it out to the third race in Fleet A and is now tied for second in the standings with Mint Julep. Both have 8 points. Gotcha leads with 6 points.

Fleet B had a much closer race after M3 earned its first-to-finish. J Hawk crossed next, but was unable to save its time on Cabaret. Our Thyme II trailed the others. Standings in Fleet B are: Cabaret, 4; Our Thyme II, 8; M3, 9 and J Hawk, 12.

Fleet C's Lost Vermonter was nowhere to be found as Jesse led the way for Blasen III, Original Sin and Cygnus, in that order. Standings area: Original Sin, 7; Jesse, 9; Lost Vermonter, 10; Cygnus, 10 and Blasen III, 13.

The two no-spinnaker Fleets found only two starters, one in each Fleet. In the jib and main 198 and higher category, Red Hot, being the only starter, was again both first and last and now is the same in the standings with 4 points. In the jib and main 195 and lower group, the same race honors go to MI Joy, who also leads the standings with a perfect 3 points. Flash has 8 points and Bald Eagle, 10.

The Fifth Annual Charlevoix Coast Guard 5K Run/Walk drew a strong field of 84 participants for the event, held Saturday, May 29 at the Charlevoix Country Club.

Coast guardsmen and their families, from both the Acacia and the Charlevoix life station, hosted the event.

Overall top finishers were: Douglas Bergmann in the Men's 5K and Gina Wittenberg in the Women's 5K; Jack Hambidge in the Men's 10K and Laura Taylor in the Women's 10K.

First place medal winners in their respective age groups were: 5K, Men; Jeremy Schellie, 12 and under, Douglas Bergmann, 18-29, Matt Peterson, 30-39, James Toler, 40-49, Nick Kling, 50-59 and Glen Taylor, 60-plus.

Women, 5K: Anne Boyce, 12 and under, Elizabeth Madagame, 12-17, Stephanie Inman, 18-29, Gina Wittenberg, 30-39, Terri Parsons, 40-49, Anne Burzyck, 50-59 and Marilyn Sprik, 60-plus.

Men, 10K: Mike Kenney, 18-29, Jack Hambidge, 30-39, Paul Gelderblom, 40-49, Gary Schafer, 50-59 and Paul Jackson, 60-plus.

Women, 10K: Megan Coffey, 18-29, Laura Taylor, 30-39 and Karen Brant, 50-59.

Rayder softball team ends season with even record

In a doubleheader against Kalkaska played at home, the Charlevoix girls' softball team came back to shut out Kalkaska in the second game, 8-0, after dropping the first game to Kalkaska, 3-6.

The pitcher for both games was Courtney Butler, who gave up eight hits, put five runners on base with balls, and struck out seven batters in the first game. In the second game, Butler improved her record by giving up only five hits, walked four players and struck out seven.

The Kalkaska pitcher had a tough time in the second game, walking 12 players for Charlevoix. The team played much better defense in the second game, according to coach Ron Cox.

In game one, Sarah Jones had one double and one single, and Dena Sheldon had one triple and one single. Tasha Morrison, Krysta Pearsall and Laurel English each had one single in the first game.

In game two, English doubled while Tasha Morrison had a single. Their plays drove in the Charlevoix runners on base.

In the district playoffs, the Rayders won their first game against Mancelona, 13-0, but fell to East Jordan in game two, 4-0.

The girls finished their season with a record of 16-16

Above: Varsity softball coach Ron Cox shares a bit of advice and, apparently, an inside joke with Sarah Jones before she steps up to the plate.

Charlevoix soccer players compete with select Petoskey team

Three Charlevoix Varsity Soccer lettermen continue to play soccer this spring and summer with the Petoskey Northmen Select soccer team. The team, coached by Edmond Antony, is comprised of invited players from Petoskey, Harbor Springs and Charlevoix.

The three Charlevoix players on the select team are: Chris Tilley, who was all-district goalie last fall while playing for the Charlevoix Rayders; Sean Stockman and Ryan Vogelheim, who both were awarded conference, district, region and state level awards in soccer.

The Petoskey select team, with the three local players, recently won the U-17 Division in the Canton Invitational Tournament, played over Memorial Weekend. The team will play in more tournaments in Saginaw, Portage and in the Petoskey Invitational. The boys look forward to playing as seniors next fall on a strong varsity soccer team for the Rayders.

Baseball team completes season

On Saturday, June 5, the Rayder varsity baseball team played in the district championships, but lost to Mancelona, 13-10.

Mancelona was leading the game by four runs in the fourth inning, when the Rayders poured on the steam to make a come back with seven runs.

"I was proud of the team for coming back from a 7-3 deficit in the fourth inning," said coach Scott Kelly. "The boys hit the ball very well. Jeremiah Teuscher threw a very good game, giving up only three earned runs in the first four innings. Ryan Bier and Tom Kennedy finished their CHS baseball careers on a very positive note and our starting line-up of three freshmen and two sophomores gained some very valuable experience."

Kennedy hit his first career home run in the fourth inning to spark the seven-run inning. Bier had three hits, including a double, Andy Granath had three singles. Jeremy Zeitler, Teuscher, Shay Hutchison and Rob Boss each had two hits.

The team finished the season with a record of 11-20.

Senior Companion Volunteer

In Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, or Missaukee counties.

The Senior Companion Program is a national older adult volunteer program designed to provide adults over 60 years of age, living on limited incomes, a meaningful volunteer opportunity at no cost to themselves and to help meet community needs.

SENIOR COMPANION volunteers visit several assigned friends providing one-on-one companionship and practical assistance to help other seniors maintain an independent lifestyle. Each week Senior Companions can be found doing what friends do for friends -- assisting with grocery shopping or other errands, offering a lift to the doctor, sharing a meal talking about old times and new challenges, and easing their loneliness.

These "special friends" are often isolated older adults who may be frail and elderly struggling to stay in their own homes, may live in foster care settings or nursing homes, or they may be mentally ill or developmentally disabled.

Fishing and school elections are always a part of June

MONSTER TROUT CAUGHT SUNDAY

TIPPED SCALES AT THIRTY AND THREE-FOURTHS POUNDS

Prize Contest conducted by Local Hardware Puts Anglers On Their Mettle

The prize contest being conducted by the Charlevoix Hardware Co. is putting a lot of "pep" in the sport and Charlevoix anglers are right on the job in an effort to see who can land the largest fish, for which prizes are offered.

Louis O'Neill, 16-year-old son of Eddie O'Neill, has the edge on the bunch just at present in the lake trout class. On Sunday last he caught a monster lake trout weighing thirty and three-fourths pounds. This old-timer was caught in the bay just outside the harbor by hook and line. The young lad had the time of his life in subduing the fish, but after a good tussle, managed to do so and safely land him in the boat. This is the record to date, both as to size and weight.

Other good sized lake trout are being caught every day, some tipping the scales at from 10 and 18 pounds, and a larger one may be caught before the contest closes.

In the beautiful rainbow class, Henry Nowland has the credit for catching the largest fish, a beautifully marked rainbow that tipped the scales at one and one-fourth pounds, measuring fifteen and one-fourth inches. This is by no means a prize-winning fish, and without a doubt a larger one will be caught within the week.

Old-timers say most anyone can catch a lake trout or a rainbow trout, but it takes a real fisherman to land a good sized speckled trout. Last week Clifford Sutton brought in a 13 and one-half inch speckled trout that weighed exactly a pound. This beautiful specimen was caught in McGeagh's Creek, near the Sutton farm south of the city. Cliff says it's no trick at all to land the big fellows if you know where to find them — and he intimated that if luck was with him, he might, if necessary to win the prize, go on a real fishing trip and capture a larger one.

And this is the sport that has put Charlevoix the Beautiful on the map as the place where the big 'uns are to be found. Fishermen and loves of out-of-door life will travel hundreds of miles to the place where fishing is known to be good. It is the direct result of re-planting our lakes and streams each year.

District Will Vote on First Unit of High School At Election Monday

Monday the citizens of School District No. 1 will decide whether their children will have a new and adequate high school, or continue with the present one.

The special election on the question of a $225,000 financing program will be held then in the school gymnasium. The polls will open at 10 a.m. and close at 6 p.m. To meet the legal requirements, there will be two ballots. One will be on issuing five year bonds. The other will allow the tax limit to be raised for the next five years by 1.5 percent to obtain the money to pay the bonds.

The 5 mill increase, voted five years ago, ends this year.

The need for a new building has been discussed at three public meetings, the first last fall, and repeated news stories. The present building is almost 50 years old and was designed for 150 pupils and a simple curriculum. Today there are 350 and a demand for agriculture, science, home making, and, shop and similar specialized courses. The new building would meet these needs.

"No high pressure campaign methods have been used," said Mrs. Walter Bergeon, Board of Education secretary. "We have tried to explain what is needed and why. Now it is up to the citizens of the district to decide what sort of a school they want for their children."

U.S. Coast Guard Frees Fish Tug "Gipsy" From Shoal At Hog Island

U.S. Coastguardsmen from both the Charlevoix and Beaver Island lifeboat stations combined their efforts Tuesday to free the 36 ft. fish tug, Gypsy, owned by Jake White Sr. from a shoal off Hog Island 10 miles north of Beaver Island.

The tug went aground in the storm that hit the area Sunday.

Aboard with Mr. White were eight Charlevoix men who had left Charlevoix at 4 a.m. Sunday to spend the day bass fishing in the Garden-Hog island area.

A boat from the Beaver Island lifeboat station and the plane from the Traverse City air station were dispatched to the area late Monday when the tug failed to return.

Earlier it was believed that the tug would remain in the area until the fog lifted, However, when they did not return late Monday the Beaver Island and Traverse City units were asked to investigate. The Beaver Island lifeboat went to the scene and found the tug aground about 100 feet from shore. The men on the tug requested provisions which were dropped on the island. The men went ashore on the small skiff to retrieve them.

Early Tuesday Beaver Island lifeboat returned to the scene with pumps in an effort to pump out the tug which had taken water when it went on the shoal. Later they requested assistance and the 40 ft. patrol boat from Charlevoix was dispatched to the scene taking with it additional pumps and other equipment.

The Coast Guard floated the tug Tuesday afternoon and proceeded to tow it into port at Charlevoix.

On board the boat with Mr. White were his son, Mark, Leroy Plum, Clarence Goldstick, Peter Kanoff, Norman Empey, Guy Smith, Claire Martin and Robert Reed.

Time to register for Junior Golf program

Official registration for this summer's Junior Golf instructional program is Thursday, June 17 at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course. Area youngsters must be at least 8 years of age and no older than 17. Registration requires a parent or guardian to be present to provide a signature on the waiver of liability form and to learn of the family commitment necessary for youngsters to successfully benefit from the program.

Kids 12 years and older are to register at 9 a.m. and those 8-11 will sign up at 10 a.m. There is a per lesson fee of $4 or a $35 season plan option that pays for 12 scheduled lessons and includes accident insurance. Pros from local courses who will make up the teaching staff include: Steve Braun and Marty Joy from the Belvedere Club, Joan Waha from Dunmaglas, Steve Good, Terry Walker, and Sara Stone from the Charlevoix Country Club, and Jerry Roman from the municipal course.

The emphasis again will be on learning golf rules and procedures, and proper fundamentals and techniques, and course etiquette.

There will be two sessions each week with a couple of tournaments spaced in during the summer program. Lessons will be held at each of the Belvedere, Charlevoix Country Club, Municipal, Antrim Dells and Dunmaglas courses. In addition, a new feature this year has been added for selected advanced players. There will be a Sunday evening fun league with a variety of events scheduled for the Belvedere Course.

"We will again have scholarships available based on need as well as loaner clubs," said Dean Davenport, director. "We want every youngster to have this golfing and educational opportunity." Additional adult volunteers are needed to work in the mentoring program so that whenever youngsters play a few holes to conclude each lesson, they have an adult monitoring them. Those interested should call 547-6433 or the City Recreation Department at 547-3253.

Citizens voice opinions on proposed school building project

By B. J. Hetler

Parents and school district residents listened carefully to a presentation made by the school facility committee about the options available for renovating old school buildings or building new facilities. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

Parents at the school facilities meeting in the high school last Wednesday broke into applause only once, and that was prompted by the plea from facilities committee member John Winn.

He cautioned against a reticence to act, leaving the community to face the same issues in another four years.

"Whatever happens, I just hope that something is done," Winn said. "I hope that as a community we have the best interests of our children in mind."

Winn is among the 26 committee members who researched Charlevoix's school district needs and presented the information to the public. The committee sent 6,000 meeting invitations to the voters seeking input before reporting to the school board.

Three options for the schools were presented by committee member Bill Trubilowicz to the approximately 100 residents at the meeting. The first option calls for remodeling the elementary, middle and high school buildings. The second option is to remodel the elementary and high school buildings and build a new middle school on a new site. The third option is to remodel the elementary school, move the middle school into a remodeled high school, and construct a new high school with an auditorium on a new site.

Option one requires no land purchase and is the least expensive. The estimated bond issue is $14.2 million.

The fifth grade would be taken out of the elementary school and put into the middle school. The K-4 elementary school would have a 20-to-one class size and 560-student capacity. Proposed plans include a computer lab, a science lab, and the construction of a media center or two new classrooms. The portable buildings would go.

The fifth through eighth grade middle school would have a 495-student capacity. Much of the remodeling would be to bring the building up to code, add an elevator and a ramp and eliminate the asbestos.

Khris Rundblad, a mother of three children, asked about the fifth grade moving into the middle school.

"I'm concerned about fifth graders going to school with sixth

Four seniors will graduate from Beaver Island Community School at a ceremony Saturday, June 19 overlooking Paradise Bay.

Lindsay McDonough, daughter of Tim and Denise McDonough, will be the class valedictorian. She is graduating with a grade point average of 3.86.

Lindsay plans to attend Grand Valley State University to study business. During her years at the Beaver Island School, she had been captain of the varsity volleyball team, recipient of the Michigan High School Athletic Association 1999 Scholar-Athlete award and was president of the student council.

Lindsay Russell is salutatorian with a 3.37 grade point average. She is the daughter of Mike and Bev Russell.

Russell plans to attend Aquinas College to study sports medicine. She served as captain of the varsity volleyball team, was a member of the student council and will complete her Emergency Medical Technician Basic Level during her senior year.

The two other graduates are Nick Olson, son of Mike and Kelly Collins, and Will Markey, son of Shaun Markey and Will Markey.

Markey was captain of the Islander soccer and basketball teams this year. He was named to the 1998 Boys' All-District Soccer Team. Markey plans to attend Central Michigan University to study computer science.

Olson is currently working at Beaver Island Marine as a marine mechanic while he completes his senior year. He plans to move south in the fall and join the Coast Guard within the next two years.

City beaches open officially with lifeguards this week

The three city beaches — Ferry Avenue Beach, Depot Beach and Michigan Beach — will be manned by lifeguards starting at 11:30 a.m. Friday, June 18.

"This is the earliest in June we've ever had the lifeguards start, because the lakes are warming right up with the hot weather we've had," reported city recreation director Ike Boss.

Guards will be on duty at all three beaches from 11:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. seven days a week, throughout the summer.

The recent cold snap won't deter the guards from taking up their posts Friday. The weather is supposed to improve by this weekend, with temperatures in the mid-70s.

through eighth graders," Rundblad said. "Kids get too old too fast without being pushed."

Committee member and elementary school principal Dick Swenor responded that he was hesitant when his daughter went from the elementary school's fifth grade into middle school sixth grade for similar reasons. But, he said, the fifth graders won't be pulled into interacting with seventh and eighth graders, and instead would interact with sixth graders. The sixth graders at the current middle school have no sports or activities of their own, Swenor said, and are outside of the seventh and eighth grade loop.

The middle school would separate fifth and sixth grade students from the older grades by constructing wings in the school and structuring schedules.

"There could be different activities for them," Swenor said. "They can have different hours and lunch times. Sixth graders will stay young with fifth graders."

Swenor also said he feels people like smaller schools for elementary schools.

"Our elementary is already larger than Petoskey's," he said. "Even with the fifth grade out, we're still the largest elementary (in northern Michigan)."

Option two remodels the elementary and high school, but calls for building a new middle school on a new site. Student capacity in the 75,000 square foot building would be 495. The land cost is estimated at $1.4 million, including land utilities. The estimated bond issue is $16.6 million.

Option three would construct a new 121,000 square foot high school with an auditorium and a 510 student capacity. The estimate for a new site is $1.6 million. The middle school would move into a remodeled high school and the elementary school plans are the same. The estimated bond issue is $18.5 million.

Committee member Dick Joseph said he believes the district will need a new site. The school board will choose the site upon the recommendation of a site selection committee. Single building sites to campus-sized parcels will be considered.

Jeff Porter told the committee that the community has made it clear it doesn't want the schools situated outside of the downtown area.

"Why doesn't the board understand that people want in-town schools? With schools out of the downtown area you've got higher busing costs, you've got high school kids driving out of town," Porter said.

"The committee wants to keep schools in town," Trubilowicz said. "But downtown property is going fast, if you can find it."

Charlie Butcher asked the committee to consider multi-level buildings, saving land space. The committee said it has looked at multi-level buildings and found them less expensive to operate, but made costly by the need for elevators.

The comments from residents at the meeting are incorporated into a report by the committee for the board at its June 21 meeting.

The board will survey the community by postcard in late June. On July 6, it decides which proposal to put on the ballot.

OPINIONS

Let's consider the future carefully when planning for schools

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

With a new facility committee, new board members and a new superintendent, the Charlevoix Board of Education is tackling a not-so-new issue once again.

The issue is what to do about our aging school buildings.

In tackling the issue, several things were done better this time than they were a few years ago.

For starters, the facility committee simply researched the situation, came up with three possible solutions and put an estimated price tag on the three options. The committee isn't making a recommendation, but simply providing a report.

The public has been invited on several occasions to share their ideas about school facilities. This was done professionally in a forum with an experienced moderator, and helped to accurately identify the needs facing the district.

The options this time aren't really different than the options considered a few years ago — the difference is that no option was immediately ruled out. Nothing, so far, has been rammed down voters' throats as the only sensible solution.

Basically, the three options are:

— Renovate all three existing schools;

— Build a new middle school to accommodate grades five through eight and abandon the old middle school;

— Build a new high school, move the middle school students to the existing high school, and accommodate grades five through eight in the former high school building. With the new high school, build an auditorium.

With all three options, appropriate renovations to existing buildings would be included.

It's difficult to say what the best option is, because two of the three choices will involve buying land and building a new facility. Until we know where the land is, how do we know if we want that location for a new school?

I am willing to consider all three options, but I must admit, I am strongly opposed to abandoning the existing middle school building.

'I absolutely do not get the concept of abandoning a fine, old brick building.

True, if the building is going to remain a school building, it will need extensive renovation.

I would much rather tear off the old addition and put on a three story addition than abandon the building.

Maybe it's a Midwestern notion to dispose of old buildings and build new ones, since we have more available land than people do in other parts of the country. I recently went to visit my son at prep school in New Hampshire. His school had old buildings — VERY old buildings. Instead of tearing them down and building new, every old building was lovingly renovated and restored. They revere their old buildings. Even after a nasty fire gutted one brick building, they cleaned it and rebuilt it from the inside out instead of tearing it down. The result was incredibly beautiful and functional. It showed me what can be done with old brick buildings.

EDITORIAL

I question some of the facts that were presented along with the three options.

The experts, whoever they are, tell us that middle schools and elementary schools need to be built on very large tracts of land.

Why?

The new charter school opened up on a very tiny hunk of land and seems to be doing just fine.

Indeed, young middle school students, particularly fifth grade students, need playgrounds and playground equipment. But go visit a playground during recess sometime. The kids all congregate at a favorite piece of playground equipment. Not a single kid runs around in circles, covering a 28-acre area.

Many facility experts and educators say that we need lots of land for school buildings, but educational theories change as quickly as fashion and food trends.

Who knows what the future educational theories will require? Maybe, in 15 years, school facility experts will say that children are best served if their school is in an urban, downtown area where students can benefit from strong neighborhoods and retail shops close at hand.

Maybe, in 15 years, they will tell us to build brick buildings because the traditional brick will make students feel rooted and secure.

Perhaps future educational trends will show us that students suffer if educated in buildings that look like cookie-cutter shopping malls.

People talk a lot about future growth, and how we'll need bigger schools with more space to accommodate future growth. Absolutely nothing indicates that the student population in Charlevoix will grow in the future. In fact, the student body has remained the same or decreased in the last 30 years.

When discussing the future, there hasn't been much talk about future gas and oil supplies to fuel the school buses. In a recent study, oil experts predicted that our world oil and gas supply will be exhausted in 10 years. The optimists of the bunch said the oil supply will be gone in 30 years. Either way, where does that leave school districts that built schools several miles out of town?

I'm not carping about the price tag of the three options, although, like any taxpayer, I'd like to see improvements made as economically as possible. If the elementary school is overcrowded, then let's fix it. If the middle school needs extensive renovation and a new addition, let's do it. If the high school needs updating, then update it.

But tell me where you're going to buy new land and build new schools if that is what you want to do.

And tell me what you'll do with that old middle school if you abandon it. The board of education has a responsibility to everyone in this community not to saddle us with a brick behemoth that can't be sold and won't be renovated.

Blood drive was a big success

Editor:

I am the coordinator of the American Red Cross community blood drives in Charlevoix. We had a very successful blood drive on June 3.

Many volunteers were busy behind the scenes distributing posters, baking sweet treats, making phone calls and passing the word about this lifesaving event.

Thanks to Oleson's Foods, Girl Scout Troop #267 and their leader, Mel Morrison, Vacation Properties Network, Subway, Ed Whitley and his staff, the Charlevoix Lions Club, the American Legion and all the businesses who displayed posters.

I have been able to depend on a wonderful team of volunteers who are willing to do whatever it takes to make each blood drive a success and an enjoyable experience. Thank You! A big welcome to my new volunteers.

I certainly want to express my appreciation to each and every donor who shared so generously with others who were sick or injured. Each unit of blood given can be made into as many as four different products. Donors, give yourselves a pat on the back!

On June 3, donors gave 113 units of blood, consumed five gallons of ice cream, almost two gallons of hot fudge, three cans of Spanish peanuts, hundreds of homemade cookies and seven gallons of Kool-Aid. I would love to see those numbers increase at the next community bloodmobile drive on Sept. 16. Please mark the date on your calendar.

Sincerely, Ellen Schuling

Raven Hill Discovery Center offers teacher development classes

Raven Hill Discovery Center will offer two professional development classes for teachers during the summer of 1999. Teachers may take the classes for graduate credit or undergraduate credit by registering through Central Michigan University or simply take the class at no cost through Char-Em Intermediate School District's Eisenhower Fund.

A class called "Science Instructional Design" helps teachers develop a science unit of their choice that incorporates the science process skills; links science to math, language arts and social studies; and improves assessments. This is the third year that this class has been offered. The class will run from Aug. 16-18, as well as one day per month in September, October and November of 1999.

A new class called "Dig In: Archeology for Teachers" will make many new connections for students and teachers. Participating teachers will work mornings with an archeologist at an authentic dig site. They will practice actual field techniques and then spend their afternoons creating a "dig" for their students. They will use the resources at Raven Hill to develop a grade level-appropriate unit that integrates science, math, social studies, language arts and the arts through the common subject of archeology. The class will meet July 26-28 and Aug. 2-4. Call Cheri at 536-3369 for more information or to receive a registration packet from Central Michigan University.

Elementary school sign made possible with community help

Editor:

Last fall, the P.T.O. of the Charlevoix Elementary School asked me to get involved in a project they had been looking into, an outdoor information sign for the front of the school. With my background in architectural design, I said sure and started to get to work. I found out that the only way the Charlevoix Elementary School could afford a durable outdoor sign was to get some of the community to help out, so I started making phone calls. I called 14 people and had donations of product or services from 14 people. I couldn't believe how eager everyone in this community was to support the school system. And with the help of these people we now have a beautiful outdoor information sign in front of the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The following people or companies donated their time and material:

Swanson K and D., Kevin Swanson; Manthei Development Corp., Judy Schillinger; Western Concrete and Block, Scott Hills; Wolohan Lumber, Jim Fiser; Stevens Concrete, Dudley Stevens; Currier Lawn Maintenance, Vince and Kim Currier; Charlevoix Electrical Service, A.J. Witthoeft; Ed Whitely and the City of Charlevoix; Dave Arnold, Paint Shop of Charlevoix, Jim Fiser and Roger Houghlton.

I would also like to thank all the students of Charlevoix Elementary School who sold Christmas ornaments and donated pennies to help pay for the sign.

The sign is paid in full. If you have the chance, drive by the elementary school and see the generosity of our community.

Thank you,
Amy Fiser

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Stephen Guthrie
Community Church of God

I received an e-mail from David Behling, the Northern Michigan Hospital chaplain who is spending several weeks in Romania and the Ukraine on a medical mission trip. He writes of the children of Romania, where tens of thousands of them live on the streets, in sewers, canals and parks. They seldom have coats or shoes, and because most were abandoned at birth they often lack the state identification card necessary to receive health care. Missions funded by people like you and me provide what food, clothing and medical care the children receive.

David tells of a draining day spent working in the kitchen serving six seatings with each place taken. He was asked to do the devotional, and he tells in his e-mail of groping for what to say to the most desperate children in the most hopeless situation imaginable. He writes that the Lord put it on his heart to tell them that even though they have not felt it from people on this earth, God loves them. David told them that even though they may have never known the warmth of a father or mother on this earth, there is a Father in Heaven who hurts with them and desires to embrace them just as they are. For dessert that day, these children received a long, loving hug.

As we look around the world there seems to be so much heartache. If there were a "heartache scale" or a human misery index," surely those Romanian children would rate high. But we need not go that far from home to find hurting people in need of help and a hug. In our midst there are those who bravely face declining health, or who struggle to find work and pay the bills. We have among us the lonely and frightened, the heart that is aching, and those whose spirit is broken. The treatment is the same in Charlevoix as it is in Romania: It involves one person reaching out to another with no motive or agenda other than to share the love of Jesus Christ, that peace which passes all understanding. It involves being willing to be inconvenienced, to invest time and money with no reasonable expectation of return other than the satisfaction of doing for one another what God has done for us.

Our work as Christians is not limited to gathering once per week to worship together. It's out there on the front lines of the war against pain and loneliness, and it's a way of life for the person who has Jesus in their heart. For that's how men will know us as his disciples... that we love one another.

New state sentencing guidelines will fill expanded jail

By B. J. Hetler

Expansion of the county jail is underway and new state sentencing guidelines will help fill the 62-bed addition with inmates.

Construction began on the first of May to expand the 25-bed jail because of inmate over-crowding in the county. But with the new sentencing guidelines, felons who are categorized as nonviolent, minimum risk criminals will go to jail instead of prison, giving the county more reason for expansion. Judges previously had the option of sentencing criminals to county jails or to state prisons.

The guidelines became effective Jan. 1, and are an attempt by the Engler administration to relieve the overcrowding of state prisons.

The maximum sentence in county jail is one year, and sentences for some criminals will be shorter than prison sentences, said jail administrator Babette Meggison.

But the county has programs and methods for monitoring criminals following release from jail, she said. These include probation and electronic monitoring. Counseling programs attempt to integrate criminals into society after they have served time.

The state funds programs under Michigan's Community Corrections Public Act 511 to provide alternatives to jail. Community corrections program administrators must seek approval for funding from counties before the state releases grants.

The Regional Community Corrections Project is managed by Northwest Michigan Council of Governments. Project manager Dave Wells recently obtained a nod from the county board for continued state funding for programs in its fiscal year 2000.

The region covers Charlevoix and six other counties. Charlevoix and Emmet counties share the $82,900 grant funding by the state.

Wells said the programs in effect for 11 years help the problem of overcrowding and save counties money.

"Between Charlevoix and Emmet counties, 33 jail beds a day are saved," he said.

County taxpayers pay $35 a day per inmate. When the programs help to cut or eliminate jail time, it aids the problem of overcrowding and the cost of housing inmates, Meggison said.

The $3.6 million jail expansion should be completed by the end of the year. Along with the cells, the building will house a recreation area, a multipurpose room, dorms for work-release inmates, a visiting area and a control center. The Michigan Department of Corrections granted $336,000 toward the expansion.

Getting ready for business

Local radio personality hosts book-signing at Bridge Street Book Shop

Christopher Knight, author of the novels "St. Helena" and "Ferocity," will sign books from noon to 2 p.m. Sunday, June 27 at Bridge Street Book Shop in Charlevoix.

The popular "St. Helena" is a fictional horror/thriller that is set on the very real island of St. Helena, just seven miles west of the Mackinac Bridge. "Ferocity," Knight's just released novel, is yet another thriller with a Michigan setting — this time the villain is a 12-foot muskellunge that inhabits the depths of Mullett Lake.

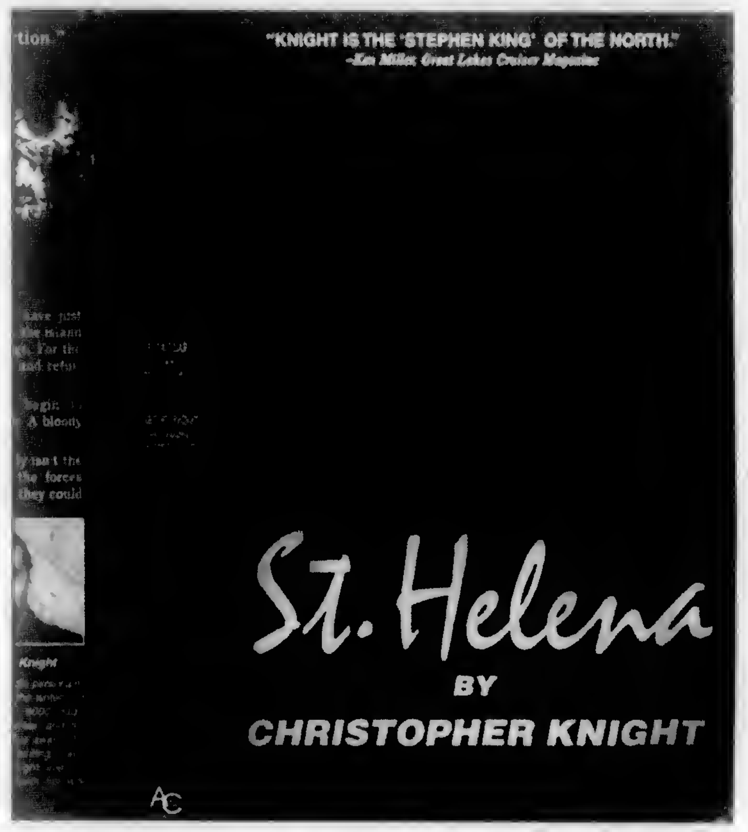
Christopher Knight

Knight has 14 years of radio and television experience, both on air and production, and has written and produced over 8,000 radio commercials worldwide.

He has been the top speaker two years in a row (1996-97) at the Radio Advertising Bureau's International Managing Sales Conference, held annually in Dallas.

As a radio producer, Knight has won over two dozen awards for his creative radio commercials.

As a testiment to his determination and creative drive, Knight will admit that he barely made it through high school and flunked out of college. He is 34 years old and married.



Christopher Knight's first book, St. Helena, was originally released as an audio book. Knight had a lot of expertise recording sound effects and reading into a microphone from his years in the radio industry. The book is now available for the first time in paperback.

Local waste hauler gets $1.2 million loan guarantee

Donald L. Hare, state director for USDA Rural Development operations in Michigan, announced the approval of subsequent loan guarantee request made by Charlevoix State Bank on behalf of its customer, Top Rank Disposal, Inc. of Charlevoix. The $1,212,000 loan guarantee will be used to construct a waste transfer station.

"USDA's rural business loan program is designed to assist lending institutions expand their ability to serve their rural business customers," said Hare. "Charlevoix State Bank and USDA Rural Development continue to share a common interest and commitment to supporting business development in rural Northern Michigan. We are very supportive of the efforts by Charlevoix State Bank and Top Rank Disposal, Inc. to create additional job opportunities for Northern Michigan residents."

Hare indicated that USDA Rural Development had previously approved a $714,000 loan guarantee in May of 1998. The original loan guarantee was used to purchase new equipment and land.

The Business and Industrial Loan Guarantee Program guarantees loans by eligible local lenders to businesses to benefit rural areas. The program's primary purpose is to create and maintain employment and improve the economic and environmental climate in rural communities. This is achieved by expanding the existing private credit structure capability.

Circuit Court judge denies athlete's request for a jury trial

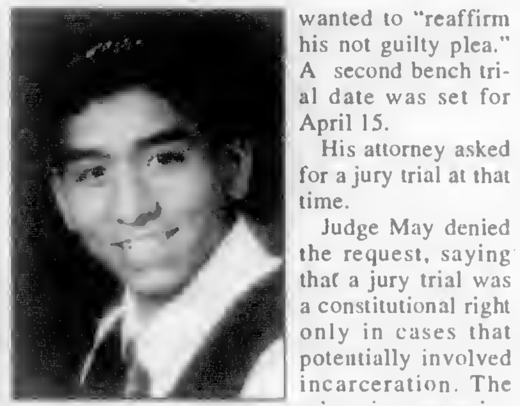
Matt McClellan will eventually have his day in court, but after a recent ruling by Circuit Court Judge Pajtas, his day in court won't include a jury trial.

After reviewing a request from McClellan's attorneys, Roy Hayes III and Harry Golski, Pajtas denied the request to take over the case.

Instead, Pajtas sent the case back to district court for a bench trial or other appropriate proceedings.

McClellan's case, which stems from a minor-in-possession charge that was issued in December of 1998, has dragged through the court system for months.

The alcohol-related charge was set for a bench trial in front of District Court Judge Richard May in March, but the trial was canceled when McClellan's lawyer said his client intended to change his plea.



Matt McClellan

A key basketball player for the Charlevoix Rayders, McClellan's court date was changed from March 22, which was during basketball season, to March 30, after basketball season was over.

At the March 30 plea and sentencing hearing, McClellan changed his position and said he wanted to "reaffirm his not guilty plea." A second bench trial date was set for April 15.

His attorney asked for a jury trial at that time.

Judge May denied the request, saying that a jury trial was a constitutional right only in cases that potentially involved incarceration. The minor-in-possession charge is a misdemeanor and never includes jail time.

McClellan's attorneys objected to the denial and filed an action in circuit court asking for a stay of proceedings. The lawyers claimed that May failed to perform a clear legal duty by not providing McClellan with a jury trial.

On April 14, Judge Pajtas halted the district court case and gave Judge May 21 days to respond to the defense attorney's complaint.

May filed a 15-page response, which Pajtas then reviewed.

"Following a review of all the briefs and cited authorities, this court cannot find that the district judge failed to perform a clear legal duty," Pajtas wrote.

"It appears that even though the petitioner (McClellan) is charged with a misdemeanor, he is not entitled to a jury trial since a conviction under the statute allegedly violated cannot result in a loss of liberty. This court adopts the well-reasoned brief of the district court in support of its conclusion."

Pajtas continued in his written response by saying, "The minor in possession charge is clearly a petty offense never contemplated by the framers of the U.S. and Michigan Constitutions as the type of proceeding to which a right to a jury trial attaches."

Because school athletic director Keith Haske and high school principal Gary Grundman determined that McClellan could not be found guilty of violating the school's zero tolerance policy until he had his day in court, McClellan was also allowed to run on the track team this past spring.

New scout troop has successful first year

The nine first and second grade girls that make up Brownie Troop #264 have had a very successful year. This newly formed troop began activities in mid-October and is planning to continue meeting throughout the summer months. Although the girls have earned an average of 12 badges this year, they have also put an emphasis on community service.

Sponsored by Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Center, the troop has been able to give most of their community service directly back to their sponsor by taking on the task of watering plants for its residents. The troop has also provided holiday decorations for their sponsor, marched in the Memorial Day Parade, and participated in Charlevoix's annual Operation Scout Court of Awards Ceremony held on June 8 at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

Community youth help plan teen activities for Venetian

Sticking with their plan to make the Venetian Festival truly a community event, the Venetian Festival Board included Charlevoix students in their planning sessions.

Working with student councils at Charlevoix High School, middle school and Northwest Academy, the students polled other students with a survey prepared by festival organizers.

"We've been determined from the beginning to plan events with the people in the community and not simply plan for the community," said board chairman Dan Barron.

"The willingness and spirit of our community's youth to become involved in the festival is both exciting and refreshing."

By working with the students, festival organizers learned that teens want an event that will allow them to get together with their peers in a social setting that would be fun and entertaining. They proposed a concert and dance held early in the Venetian week, perhaps to kick off the Venetian Games, and it was their top priority.

To that end, festival planners have scheduled a dance and concert with entertainment by Fourth House In, a Traverse-City based band made up of ninth grade students in the musically gifted program. They play contemporary, acoustic rock music, such as music by Dave Matthews and Eagle-eyed Cherry. They also perform their own original music.

Gary Stutzman, director of bands at Northwest Academy, has committed his leadership and that of several academy students to plan the dance concert and will act as a facilitator but would like to have others help as co-sponsors.

Students expressed strong interests for several other activities during the planning sessions. Based on that information, the group has tentatively scheduled the following events.

— Sunday, July 18: Opening of the Venetian Games, with a youth dance and concert; tennis tournament.

— Monday, July 19: Junior Golf Tournament; soccer four-on-four tournament.

— Tuesday, July 20: Youth Camp Rayder Basketball Clinic; adult golf championships; soccer continues.

— Wednesday, July 21: Continue with basketball clinic; Bingo in the Park; city swim races; co-ed volleyball; Venetian Cup Sailing Regatta.

— Thursday, July 22: Sailing regatta for juniors; continue co-ed volleyball.

— Friday, July 23: Continue basketball clinic; co-ed softball tournament.

— Saturday, July 24: Jeff Drenth Foot races; continue co-ed softball tournament.

— Sunday, July 25: Three-on-three basketball tournament; awards ceremony; closing of the Games.

The Venetian Games Committee also announced that a Partners of the Games program has been created with the city recreation department. The city recreation department was the first group to offer their support and expertise to assure that the Games are successful. City recreation director Ike Boss has stepped forward and will help administer the many events.

"The (city recreation) department has always worked to meet the recreational needs of the community's youth, and so it's natural for them to help with our mission of providing the best events and activities to Charlevoix's citizens," said Dean Davenport, director of the Venetian Games.

If others in the community would be interested in helping sponsor various events, call the chamber of commerce office at 547-2101 or Dean Davenport at 547-6433.

These classes are Red Cross certified and meet once each week. They are available on Tuesdays or Saturdays at a cost of $36.

Semi-private lessons are available three days a week for a two-week session. Semi-private classes will meet Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9-11 a.m. and again from 3-5 p.m. There will be five sessions during the summer, beginning June 22. The cost of the six lessons is $60 and classes will be limited to four students per class.

Aqua exercise: Eight Aqua Exercise classes are offered each week. Classes are held Monday through Saturday mornings from 8-9 a.m. and on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5-6 p.m. The fee is $5 per visit for non-pass holders and $3 for Charlevoix Area Community Pool pass-holders. Individuals can purchase a six week lesson pass for $50 or $30, respectively.

Swim Team: Swim team will continue over the summer. All ages of swimmers are welcome. Stroke work, as well as starts and turns and general conditioning will also be part of the program. This is a great way to stay in shape over the summer and make some new friends or find out what competitive swimming is all about.

Teen swim will be hosted from 8-9 p.m. Monday nights. The fee is $2.

Public swim times are as follows:

Open swim, all ages, 6-8 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and 1-4 p.m. Saturdays; On Your Own, adults only, from 1-3 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. The On Your Own swimmers share the pool with rehab programs from the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Lap swimming is offered from 6-8 a.m. Mondays through Fridays, 5-6 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays.

The pool will be closed on Sundays until after Labor Day weekend.

Additional open swim times are offered as pool space is available. A change in the fees and charges policy will include a fee of $2 for four- and five-year-old swimmers. This new fee is effective June 19, with the start of summer swim programs. Swimmers three years of age and younger will still be free.

Lions Club hosts fifth annual golf charity tournament

Belvedere Golf Club

At the boom of the starting gun on Thursday afternoon, July 15, 100 or so golfers are expected to begin testing their skills and luck on the Belvedere Golf Club links in the Charlevoix Lions Fifth Annual Charity Golf Tournament. Afterward the golfers will meet at the Charlevoix Yacht Club for the awards banquet featuring the Lions Club's famous barbecued chicken.

The fun event is a four-player team scramble. The top team members will win trophies and cash prizes. Second and third teams win cash prizes. There will be prizes for individuals who win the on-course challenges. At the banquet there will be drawings for a wide range of door prizes, including rounds of golf from many well known nearby golf courses.

A $10,000 cash prize awaits anyone who aces the 17th hole. There is also an attractive prize for an ace on each of the other three short yardage holes. Five thousand dollars awaits the finalist putter who sinks his or her 50-footer in the "Putt-for Bucks" contest. In addition or otherwise, the finalist will receive a trophy and a cash prize.

Signs honoring the club's business sponsors will be displayed over the course. New this year are sponsor signs on the individual golf carts. The tournament is a major club fund-raising project. Proceeds go to the Lions Club's beneficiaries. Close to 80 percent of the money is dispensed locally and the balance goes to the Lions eye-related state programs.

The fee of $85 covers all course and banquet activities. The fee for banquet-only guests is $10. Tournament check-in will begin at 1 p.m. Thursday (there will be a prestart with barbecued brats). The start will be 2:30 p.m. Doors at the yacht club will be open at 5:30 p.m., food starting at around 6:30 p.m.

Lion Jeff Rizzo is heading the tournament team with direct assistance from fellow Lions, Dorian MacGillivray and Bern Cannan. The whole club will be on call for tournament and banquet duty. For information, or to join in the fun, call Jeff Rizzo at 547-5117 or Bern Cannan at 547-5512.

Staying out of harm's way

When the Charlevoix Township Fire Department responded to a call last week at Charlevoix Estates, the ladies who were swimming in the pool decided they were in as safe a place as any if there was a fire. It turned out the smell of smoke came from a shorted wire in the clubhouse heating and air conditioning unit, which burned the filter.

Charlevoix Downtown Art Festival opens next week

Across the nation, artists are putting the finishing touches on their creations in studios as far away as California, Florida and Texas in preparation for the First Annual Downtown Charlevoix Art Festival. The event will take place from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, June 26 and 27.

With a group of over 100 juried fine artists, Charlevoix will come alive for two spectacular days of art, music, food and much more.

"We are delighted to be producing a festival in downtown Charlevoix," said Howard Alan, president of Howard Alan Events Ltd., which produces 40 juried fine art festivals across the nation. "Charlevoix is a beautiful city and we are very excited to bring our tour to northwest Michigan."

The June art festival is not to be confused with the Waterfront Art Fair, which will celebrate its 41st year this summer on the second Saturday in August, which is Aug. 14.

The Downtown Art Festival in June will feature a broad selection of fine arts and fine crafts. The variety of mediums include something for both the novice collector and the art connoisseur by featuring watercolors, pottery, woodwork, photography, sculptures and more. Visitors will have the opportunity to meet each of the individual artists in person and discuss the ideas and techniques that go into creating each work of art.

Exhibiting artists will include metal sculptor Kimberly Carmichael of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., watercolorist Cyndy Callog of Niles, Mich., photographer John Galbo of Saginaw, Mich., and mosìac designs by Zoe/Steve Terlizzese of West Palm Beach, Fla.

In addition to great art and food, there will be continuous live musical entertainment. Featured musicians include international composer and keyboardist Kayte Wolf, Doug Walker on steel drums and Dan McClerran, keyboard player, guitarist and composer with Earth Angel Records.

Above: These vases were made by Dave Eickholt, a native of Michigan who earned a BA in art from Central Michigan University. He will be one of the featured artists at the Downtown Art Festival June 26 and 27.
Right: David and Kami Turner of Ypsilanti create eclectic, colorful jewelry. They will be featured at the Downtown Art Festival.

Down on the farm

Left: Kindergarten classes from Charlevoix Elementary School recently took a field trip to two local farms. They visited the sheep farm of Tim and Linda Matchett, where they were treated to the sight of new lambs, and the dairy farm of Wilson and Judy Boss, where they met a few dairy cows. Shown here, the students pet a new lamb while Linda Matchett bottle feeds the baby creature.

Calling on their creative sides

Sixth grade students in Mrs. Kathy Gowell's middle school class held an "Authors' Tea" after writing and designing their own poetry books. Parents, guests, and school board members attended the event held last Friday. Pictured here are students (left to right) Ginni Gibbs, 12, Lindsey Marek, 12, Chris Wyniawskyj, 11, and Cody Crain, 12. Most of the students agreed that the project took a great deal of time and patience. Chris Wyniawskyj found something he liked about the project. "It was cool," he said. "I'm happy because I knew it was the last project I would have to do." Chris said he didn't like to write, then clarified his comment. "Only if someone pays me." (Photos by B. J. Hetler)

A rare hole-in-one

During the weekly Sunday night scramble at Dunmaglas Golf course, Charlevoix's Scott Parker hit a hole-in-one on the 16th hole.

Parker used an eight iron for the 145 yard shot.

"They're not common out here," said Derek Price, a Dunmaglas employee, of the hole-in-one shot.

SCRAPBOOK

Soda fountains were always popular gathering places

Hometown Chronicles

By Marilyn Boss

Back in the 1940s, there were at least six ice cream soda fountains in Charlevoix. This was before the days of Dairy Queen and McDonald's. There were several ice cream companies that came to town to sell their products. The Swift Company was the main one that came from out-of-town. Maxbauer's Creamery made their own ice cream. Dale's dad was the manager, and the ice cream was made in their creamery building from local milk and cream. It was located where the library parking lot is today.

Lloyd Curtis had a soda fountain, located in half of the building at 804 Bridge St. on top of the south hill. Fessenden's Drug Store had a fountain in their store, also. Their establishment was known as F.J. Fessenden and Son, and was located at 401 Bridge St. John Schroeder bought the business, and the soda fountain continued for many years. I remember the ladies from various shops near the store, coming over to have cherry coke or coffee during their breaks. Those regulars were: Sarah Sternberg, who owned a beauty shop on Mason Street, across from the drug store, Laura Courier, who partially owned Brown Motors up the street, Dotty Henry, who, with her husband, Dal, owned Dal Henry's Barber and Beauty Shop, Joe and Onnie Phillips, and Eileen Fessenden. Ken and Norm Empey, Harry Elzinga, Bud Heeres, and Aubrey Block were regulars from Brown Motors. Nate Boss, Spike and Geraldine Goss, and various others also made it a daily stop.

Mont's Cafe had one of the prettiest soda fountains in the north. It was a Baston Blessing brand, with all marble tops and sides on it. Mrs. Withers kept it immaculate until it was taken out about 15 years ago. Bob and Millie Withers manufactured their own ice cream, and sold it from a window which opened on the sidewalk, in a small room adjacent to their folk's restaurant. I worked there in the ice cream dispensing section one summer when I was a young girl.

Dale remembers Central Drug Store getting a brand new soda fountain in 1940, when he was 9 years old. They sold Maxbauer's Quality ice cream, and his dad made a deal with the Ochs family, offering to install a new soda fountain at no charge. The creamery would charge $10 a can of product, instead of the going rate of $5. The can held five gallons of ice cream. This way, the fountain was paid for more easily. It was a beautiful black and green fountain, and it had a brand new compressor that went in the basement. A tank of liquid carbonic gas was installed, which made the nice fizzy soda water. There was a lot of crating left when the fountain was unpacked, and it was placed on the curb along Clinton Street. Dale begged his dad to bring the crating home so he could build a play house. He proceeded to build a 6-foot by 8-foot floor, and he put four corner posts up and began building the gable roof. He was only nine at the time, and the next door neighbor, Mr. Ray Graves looked out the window, saw his construction, and came out.

"Sonny, you've got to nail the side walls on first, or it will tip over. and you'll get hurt," he said. That was Dale's first instruction in building. Central Drug was the favorite place for the girls from both banks to have their coke break, as I recall. In those days, the banks were only open for a period of four hours a day.

George Glados also had a soda fountain, at 218 Bridge St. He had his restaurant there, known as the Sugar Bowl Cafe. He and his wife Mary Maud operated it. It was a very popular place for teenagers, and I understand he always put on a banquet for the ball teams each year. George was a very nice man from Greece, and he had a little accent when he talked. One morning when someone ordered plain toast, he hollered back to the cook "One order butta toast — no butta!"

Fred S. Myers had a cigar and confectioner store, located at 106 Bridge St. In 1947, when the new bridge was installed, the store was moved to the north half of the Charlevoix County State Bank building, across the street. About the same time, Joe Williams, who worked for him, took over the ownership of the store. The fountain, along with a fancy self-serve cigar lighter, was fascinating. The men would pull on a long lever, and a three-inch flame would appear, and they would light their cigar before they left the store. Most proprietors sold their sundaes for 20 cents, but Joe sold his chocolate sundaes for 15 cents, to be competitive.

Ice cream was made with heavy cream in those days, and it was delicious. There was no fluff in that product. People would walk the streets at night, and invariably end up with an ice cream cone, as they do today.

This is no horror thriller — this is the real thing inside you

By Laurie Lounsbury

Stephen King might be the master of creepy fiction, but Roger Knutson is the master of creepy-crawly.

Knutson, who writes a nature column in the Charlevoix Courier, has just released his third book, "Fearsome Fauna," and it's guaranteed to make your flesh crawl — or your innards rumble.

Fortunately for readers, Knutson's droll sense of humor nicely offsets the topic of the book; parasites that mooch free room and board in our internal cavities.

"Parasites get a bad rap," Knutson said, defending the stars of his new book. "They're able to live side by side, day and night, with their host and do no harm. Any married person knows that is a very rare talent."

"Fearsome Fauna" is the third — and final — book in the trilogy of interesting critter stories. The first book, "Flattened Fauna," took an amusing look at once-living, three-dimensional animals that became two-dimensional on the highways and byways of America after large vehicles mowed them down. The book was extremely successful, selling 110,000 copies at last count.

"That's when we realized there was actually a market for weird stuff," Knutson said.

"Furtive Fauna" followed, a book that depicted the lives of the parasitic creatures that live furtively on our skin and scalps. While fascinating and funny, it wasn't the greatest selection for bed-time reading.

"You can't help but start scratching yourself when you're reading it," Knutson acknowledged.

"Fearsome Fauna" takes us to the dark side of our internal cavities, where all sorts of parasites are doing their best impression of the perfect house guest — they try not to eat too much and avoid making us sick so they can stay a long time.

"It's definitely the last of the trilogy," Knutson said. "We have now exhausted disgusting biology."

To Knutson, however, there is nothing disgusting about the subjects of his books.

"These things aren't meant to disgust people," he said. "I think of them as profoundly educational. It's my substitute for teaching in a classroom."

A professor emeritus of biology at Luther College in Iowa, Knutson just can't quite extinguish the urge to teach.

"You can't be a teacher for 35 years and just stop doing it," Knutson said. "It's almost a reflex to write so I can share information. I have to do it. And it's better than buttonholing people on the street and telling them about this stuff."

Like any good teacher or parent, Knutson can find the positive in all living things, including parasites.

"We can learn a lot from parasites," Knutson said. "Ecologically speaking, they are able to live harmoniously in their environment, taking only what they need while leaving enough for us, without doing any damage to their environment. Can we say that about humans?"

Of course, Knutson admits that

School's out, camp is in

Ahh, thankfully, some things just don't seem to change much in Charlevoix. Camp McSauba is one of those things that has remained blissfully carefree and fun for kids ages 5 to 13. Camp McSauba officially started Monday, June 21, with the new group of campers starting right in with a game of Dodge Ball. Soon to follow were activities in BB gunnery, archery, hiking, arts and crafts and swimming. Camp sessions are offered weekly throughout the summer. There is still limited space available in all sessions except the session from July 12-16 and Aug. 2-6. For more information, call the city recreation department at 547-3253. No problem here

The Charlevoix Future Problem Solving team captured fourth place at an international competition held in Ann Arbor. Now the only problem facing them is whether to continue with competition now that their coach, Tom Sothard, has retired.

School plans continue

The Charlevoix Board of Education listened to a building report presented by the facility committee Monday night. At this point, it's likely that the school board will follow the recommendation of the facility committee regarding what's best for the district.

Goodbye to good coaches

Three coaches are retiring from the Charlevoix High School coaching staff. Two of them are also longtime teachers in the Charlevoix School District, and will be missed both on the field and in the classroom.

School committee is likely to pick biggest building option

By B. J. Hetler

The school facilities committee came to Monday's school board meeting with a report and left with new responsibilities.

At the request of the board, the committee had conducted six weeks of research on the future needs of Charlevoix schools. The board scheduled the Monday meeting to hear its final report.

The board had initially asked only for a report and no recommendations.

But before the meeting ended, the board requested another meeting with the committee to ask for its recommendation.

The committee's research resulted in three options — Option One would remodel the elementary, middle and high schools. Option Two would remodel the elementary and high schools and build a new middle school on a new site. Option Three would remodel the elementary school, move the middle school into a remodeled high school, and build a new high school on a new site.

The board now wants to hear the committee's choice of options. Board members also plan to ask the committee to help educate the public on the option it chooses.

That option is likely to be option three — building a new high school on a new site with an auditorium, moving the middle school into the former, newly renovated high school, and renovating the elementary school.

Facilities committee member Dale Boss said that was his choice.

"Option three is the best bang for the buck," Boss said.

The other two options are less expensive, but only in the short-term, Boss said. The remodeling called for in options one and two will last 15 years and then the buildings will be outdated, Boss said.

> "In 12 to 15 years we'll get hit with another upgrade, and we'll be involved in another major building program of some kind while the original bond is still being paid for."
> — resident Charlie Butcher, who has changed his thinking and now supports new buildings over remodeling.

The bond issues, however, will continue for another five years after the remodeled buildings are supposedly outdated and in need of more remodeling. If another millage is necessary for more remodeling, people will be paying for two bond issues for five years.

This possibility changed the mind of resident Charlie Butcher, a long-time supporter of option one, who now supports option three.

"In 12 to 15 years we'll get hit with another upgrade, and we'll be involved in another major building program of some kind while the original bond is still being paid for," Butcher said. "Option one and option two are more short-term solutions to problems and not long-term. There's more for our money in the long-run than any other option."

The board is reconsidering its decision to conduct a survey following comments from several board members. They said a survey had negative connotations for voters, carried over from the last millage request in 1996. The members on the board at that time sent out surveys to the public, but ignored the survey results. That millage request was soundly defeated.

The new board members don't want to make the same mistake. Possible alternatives include informational pamphlets distributed to the public so voters can go to the polls with clear, concise information on the school district's needs.

The next meeting is at 7 p.m. Monday, July 5 at the elementary school gym.

Knutson's third book explores the creatures living on our dark side not all of the behavior of parasites is admirable, and most certainly not recommended for human emulation.

AUTHOR

"The key to being a successful parasite is sending the children out into the world as soon as possible, not letting them live at home with mom and dad," Knutson said. "Parasites have to kick the kids out of the house early so they don't threaten the host environment."

It's for that reason that human parasites, for the most part, are no threat to our health. They may lay eggs inside of us, but the parent parasite makes sure the babies ease on down the intestinal road immediately and don't overpopulate the parent's environment.

For most of us, thinking about a tapeworm or hookworm as a friendly little critter dwelling in our guts is a bit disconcerting. Yet Knutson said about 80 percent of the people who live along the Great Lakes and include fish in their diet are probably playing host to one of these creatures. That still doesn't exactly make them lovable.

"In a contest for first-prize ugly, tapeworms at any stage of development would win hands down, if they had hands," Knutson wrote in his book.

That's what makes Knutson's books worth reading. He can take a somewhat icky subject matter and write in such a way as to keep you turning the pages, looking for more. Continuing on the subject of tapeworms, Knutson wrote:

"Surrounded by predigested food, it is only necessary for the now rapidly growing tapeworm to hang on with its suckers and begin to think about marriage and a family. Finding an appropriate sexual partner is no problem, since each of the developing segments of the worm usually contains both male and female organs."

While those who suffer from symbiophobia — the fear of living with parasites — might not be able to stomach "Fearsome Fauna," others might share Knutson's enthusiasm for the topic of parasites.

"It's biologically interesting to me, that we're a walking community," he said.

Knutson's book is available at the Bridge Street Book Shop. Just ask for a biology book with an "F" word in it.

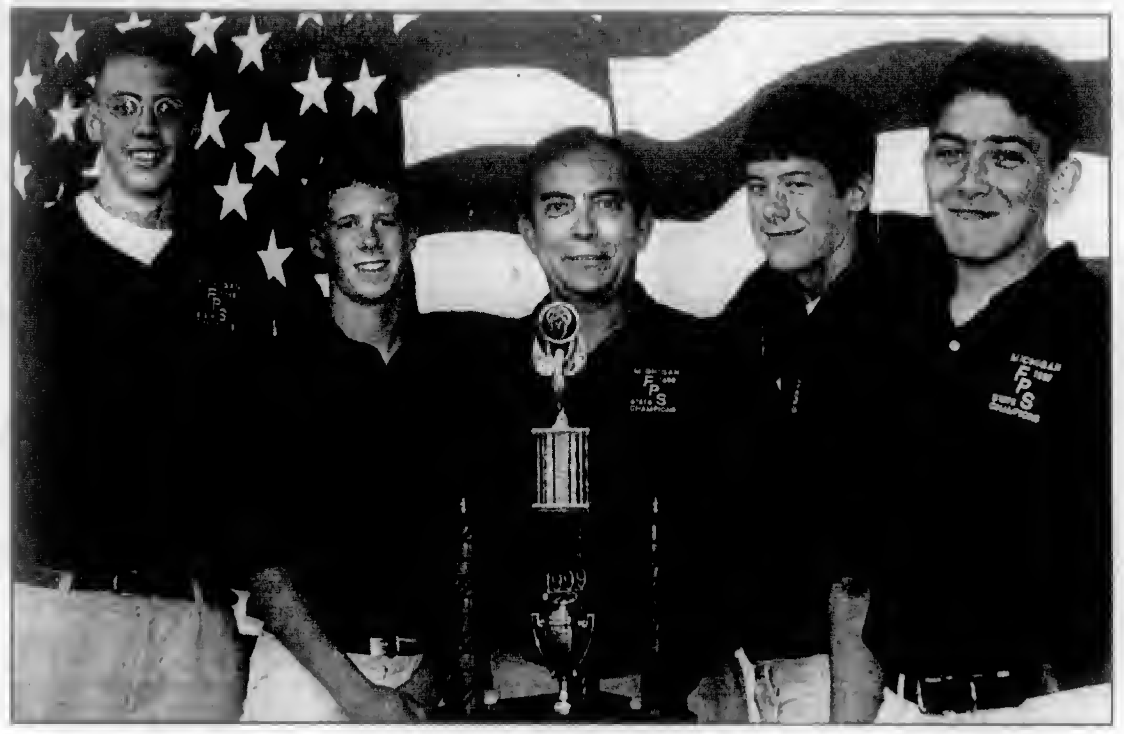
Future Problem Solvers take fourth place in world games

By B. J. Hetler



Future Problem Solver students returned with a fourth place trophy from a competition in Ann Arbor on June 11-14. The team competed against 57 other teams from the U.S., Canada, Australia and New Zealand. The students enter the 10th grade this fall. Have a problem and need help solving it? Give it to the Future Problem Solver students from Charlevoix.

Scott Parrish, Shawn McDonough, Patrick Gowell and Jim Shepherd won a fourth place trophy in the 58-team international competition held June 11-14 in Ann Arbor. Foreign competition came from countries including Australia, New Zealand, and Canada.

The Charlevoix team has been together for four years, and won three major trophies within the last two years.

The coach was Tom Sothard, who has been with the team since its beginning. He retired this year after coaching for 16 years.

The team was given a social situation that involved the "haves" in society and the "have nots." The "haves" were all on the same level of wealth and had the same high level of education, health care and career opportunities. The "have-nots" situation was bleak with varying degrees of poverty, no education after the fourth grade, inadequate health care and a lack of career opportunities.

The students had two hours to come up with answers for improving the "have-nots" situation. In a six-step process, the team analyzed the problems, identified important aspects to the solutions, detailed the solutions, established the criteria to evaluate the solutions, ranked the criteria, and described the major solution.

Their winning report stated that people should all be given the same opportunities in life, such as the same level of education and the same access to technology.

"Not the same things, such as the same income," Scott Parrish said, "but the same opportunities."

"People will do different things with the opportunities," Jim Shepherd said.

Each of the four students said the competition was a positive experience for them. The most difficulty came with the time limit imposed to solve the problem.

However, Patrick Gowell said he benefited from the restriction.

"I learned to work through problems in a group under a time crunch."

Shawn McDonough gained insight into the intellectual community's thoughts on a "haves" and "have-nots" future.

"I learned what smart people feel about the future," he said. "The educated people are sort of pessimistic that fewer people will be rich, and a lot of people will be poor."

Jim Shepherd's mother, Beth Shepherd, recommends the program for all students after seeing the change in her son's abilities.

"His writing skills are incredible," she said. "He's participated in the program since the sixth grade, and there's such an improvement in his organizational skills."

The members of the Future Problem Solvers now face their own personal problem. Entering 10th grade in the fall, they aren't sure about future participation in the program without their coach.

"We haven't decided yet," said Scott Parrish. "We're not sure we want to continue without Coach."

Sothard not only retired from coaching the team, but from 25 years of teaching and as media specialist at the middle school.

Sothard said he is proud of his team and knows they have a bright future ahead.

"With their knowledge combined with ambition and a positive attitude, these guys are on the top," Sothard said. "They'll be nothing less than champions for the rest of their lives."

OPINIONS

If they don't kill you first, they'll make you a better editor

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

"I am not the editor of a newspaper and shall always try to do right and be good, so that God will not make me one."

Mark Twain was the person who said that.

I wonder if perhaps he meant to say, "I am not the editor of a WEEKLY, small town newspaper..."

Being the editor of a small town weekly is surely a lot different than being a big city editor. For one thing, if you're a big city editor, the people who call to gripe or write to complain about something you've done probably don't live a few doors away from you, within rock-throwing distance. Not that anyone would do that, of course.

Big city editors also don't double as page designers, sports writers, feature writers, columnists and a host of other things. They pretty much stick to the job of editing.

Being the Courier editor is a particularly colorful job because Charlevoix is such a colorful town, packed from shore to shore with interesting characters.

It's sometimes difficult to know if you're doing a good job when you're the editor of this paper. Quite often, something I write will incur the wrath of a few loud people, while the people who approve of what I've said or done remain quiet and obscure.

Over the past two years, I've developed a thermometer of sorts to gauge the job I'm doing.

I thought I'd pass it along to whomever is next in line for this job.

You know you're doing OK as the Courier editor if:

— Only half the people in town are mad at you at any given moment, and it's never the same half that's mad from week to week.

— You call to schedule an interview at a farm and the farmer says, "Don't get out of the car — the turkey bites!" If they like you, they'll give you this warning. If they don't like you, they'll let Jack the Turkey peck away at your derriere or whatever else suits Jack's fancy. (Do you suppose big city editors have to cope with Jack the Turkey and other assorted farm animals?)

— You are able to convince Bruce MacArthur that one visit per day (and never Tuesday morning) to the Courier office is plenty.

— The school board hates you.

— The school board likes you.

— People offer to take you up in a private plane so you can take aerial photographs, then they actually hang onto your ankle and don't let go when you're dangling out the plane door to get a good shot of Round Lake.

— You take a school photo and you not only know all the kids' names, you can spell Gorkiewicz, Tripicchio, Przybylski and Kenwabikise correctly without asking.

— Edith Gilbert remembers your name.

— The parents of high school track, basketball and performing arts kids are equally happy with coverage of their activities.

— The local cops occasionally lift the yellow tape for you at a fire or accident scene so you can get a better angle for a photo.

— You manage to fit, in the upcoming issue, the collection of 47 photos, news briefs and assorted local newsy stuff brought to you by citizens and still have room for staff news stories and photos.

— You find yourself at Mt. McSauba in sub-zero temperatures, blinding snow and high winds taking pictures of the Sno Challenge and Dale Boss gives you a free hot dog afterward.

— You write, without a moment's hesitation, the words "bascule bridge" and "Clarence Odmark Pavilion" instead of the words "draw bridge" or "East Park Band Shell." In case you slip up and incorrectly refer to these Charlevoix landmarks by anything other than their correct names, you are on a friendly, first-name basis with the people who will call you to point out your mistake the minute the paper hits the stands.

— Little kids and old ladies know you and are equally nice to you. It's easy to dazzle little kids with the "fancy" job of being a news editor, but it's tough to pull anything over on Charlevoix's matriarchs.

— Dogs don't bite you when you walk through their turf to interview their masters.

— The people who were mad at you a month ago are no longer carrying a grudge.

— Sea gulls don't relieve themselves on your head when you're strolling along Round Lake Harbor. Maybe this is just pure dumb luck, but I like to think it's their way of showing approval.

— Your friends remain your friends, no matter what you put in the paper.

It's been grand, and I thank you all.

Letters to the editor

Newcomer to town was helped by friendly locals

Dear Editor:

When we moved north we were fairly certain that the Charlevoix area would be a great place to live. Now we know that we made the right choice, and it is mostly because of the people. We especially want to thank the wonderful folks who helped our daughter, who is running a new business in the area.

She was traveling north on U.S. 31 with an apparently over-loaded trailer, no thanks to misinformation from a dealer further north. The trailer jack-knifed on her, spewing railroad ties everywhere.

Thankfully, she missed colliding with anyone, but the trauma was great. Al Gooch of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool drove her for help. Butch Russell of Charlevoix Towing helped her clear the roadway and reload. Sherry and Don Sproul of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department offered their home to safeguard her cargo until she could move it; they also offered her advice and their testimony in dealing with the trailer company.

Going beyond their duties, these good citizens overwhelmed a very upset young woman with their kindness. We thank all of them for representing their community so well.

Sincerely,
Stewart and Susan Kissinger

Marilyn Boss's columns are wonderful

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter to let you know how much our family enjoys the monthly column written by Marilyn Boss.

Thank you, Marilyn, for sharing your memories of Charlevoix with us. Your monthly column, I must confess, is my favorite part of the Courier. Though I myself am not a "native" (I "married" into the community nearly 19 years ago), I am finally beginning to consider myself one of the "locals." My husband, Steve, is a native, though, born and raised in Charlevoix, as well as our daughter Abby, who graduated from Charlevoix High School just a few weeks ago. The three of us all enjoy your monthly column very much. Quite often it ends up being read aloud (usually at the dinner table). Your colorful stories and lively comments on "years gone by" always seem to spark some memory of my husband's own years growing up, going to school in Charlevoix. Abby and I listened one night in disbelief as we heard Steve's story of his twin brother Chuck, who had fallen into the fish pond located in their kindergarten classroom in what is now the old middle school, and how Chuck had to explain to their mother why he appeared home at the end of the school day wearing a completely new set of clothing! We all got a big laugh out of that one! (But can you imagine a fish pond in a classroom nowadays? Imagine the liability!!) And this week's column on ice cream parlors was much appreciated by Abby, who has scooped numerous ice cream cones for the past three summers down at Polly's Parlor, right near the bridge. Good to know the tradition continues.

Marilyn, your monthly stories give our family great enjoyment. But they do something even more, as well. They help remind us how important it is to take pause, sometimes to laugh, sometimes just to consider, but always to remember those people we loved, those places that "used to be," those things that happened a long time ago in this little town that now make up the very substance of our lives, thank you for that, for helping us to keep remembering, month after month. Please continue putting all your precious memories down on paper, and we promise we'll continue to keep reading, month after month.

Sincerely,
Kathleen Paterka

MANY TEAM SPORTS SCHEDULED FOR VENETIAN GAMES

This is a continuation of our series where we closely examine the various events that will be part of the 1999 Venetian Games. A tournament for co-ed beach volley teams will be held at the Ferry Avenue Beach sand courts on Wednesday, July 21 and Thursday, July 22. Co-ed softball, a relatively new variation of the popular summer sport, will feature teams of 5 men and 5 women. A tournament will be held at the city diamonds on Friday, July 23 and Saturday, July 24. Grant awarded to Friends of Jordan

Friends of the Jordan River Watershed recently received a $3,000 grant from PowerBar Inc. The group was one of 19 organizations across America to get a grant. The grants were awarded to groups working to preserve outdoor areas for recreational use.

The $3,000 grant will be used for its Saving the Jordan Valley Project. The Friends are working to get State Land Reserve designation for the valley, which will require the Department of Natural Resources to restrict mineral leasing and to acquire private mineral rights beneath the designated lands.

The campaign includes helping the state develop an innovative land use plan, a media outreach program and a petition drive.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God Church

Perhaps you share my concern about tendencies in our society toward violence, hostility and malice. News of senseless drive-by shootings, the resurgence of gangs in our cities, and the rising amount of lawsuits indicates a society that is losing control. We tend to look to government, law enforcement and even our schools to provide solutions.

While the involvement of our institutions will be helpful, we must look first to ourselves for the answer. While recently reading the Old Testament book of Proverbs, I came across a number of verses of wisdom that address the matters of self-control and temperance in a forthright manner. In fact, the word "pointed" may better describe the tenor of the verses!

"Better is a man who controls his temper than one who takes a city." (Prov. 16:32) While our society has become preoccupied with self-expression and individual rights, it has become time to address the related issues of self-control and individual responsibilities. Rather than always "Let it all hang out," or "Get it off your chest," it is often better and ultimately more productive to control our temper, and our words, and just "Let it go."

"It is to a man's honor to avoid strife, but every fool is quick to quarrel." (Prov. 20:2) In plain vanilla, it's a fool who is quick tempered! To respond in kind to a harsh word or a provocation of any kind is to reduce ourselves to the level of the other person. When someone else acts like a fool it certainly isn't to our credit to act like them.

The Proverbs give wise counsel to those who desire to become part of the answer in our hostile world, and not part of the problem.

"A gentle answer turns away wrath, but a harsh word stirs up anger." (Prov. 15.1) Let's decide to turn things around by responding maturely to the provocation's and irritations of others. Let's try the soft answer approach.

Here's some more wise advice: " ... a prudent man overlooks an insult." (Prov. 12:16) Most people who are giving someone else a piece of their mind really don't have it to spare. Overlooking insults can go a long way to preserving friendships and saving marriages. We all get out of sorts at times and say things that we really don't intend to say. Speaking kind words in response, or merely overlooking a hasty word, will better serve ourselves and others.

It all boils down to treating others the way we would like to be treated. Let's all be students of the fine art of self-control.

Charlevoix loses well-respected teachers and coaches

By B. J. Hetler

Hal Evans, who is retiring as a teacher and coach, will still be a familiar face in town as he continues for the second year with his job as harbor master for the City of Charlevoix. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

The school board said good-bye to three of its coaches and teachers and hello to eight new teachers at its meeting on Monday, June 14.

Hal Evans retired as middle school teacher, high school boys' head track coach, and assistant football coach under the early retirement plan. He was with the schools for 26 years.

Ron Cox retired as elementary school teacher after 23 years, and as girls' softball coach for a total of 10 years. He also chose the early retirement plan.

Joe Johnston resigned after two years of coaching high school varsity wrestling. He is associate pastor at the Assembly of God Church and said he will concentrate on his ministry. Johnston said coaching has been rewarding and that he enjoyed the involvement in students' lives.

Hal Evans will still be seen about the city, working downtown as the city harbor master. He will also sell sporting goods to area schools. Evans said he'll miss the kids he taught.

"I learned to keep a sense of humor," Evans said. He has some advice for teachers and coaches.

"Treat the kids like your own, have high expectations, but use the greatest compassion and patience."

Ron Cox said he will miss coaching softball, but will soon be playing T-ball with his grandchild. Leaving the academic world will probably hit him hardest in the fall.

"I'm certainly going to miss it come September," Cox said. "It will be different not going to the classroom."

The new teachers for the 1999-2000 school year are:

Amy Parrish, a middle school science and social studies teacher. She also has experience coaching track. Parrish is a Charlevoix High School and Western Michigan University graduate.

Paul Gelderblom, a middle school science teacher. Gelderblom completed his student teaching at the middle school, and graduated from Aquinas College.

Ron Cox will be leaving his coaching job but will still be seen on the ballfields, helping his grandchild with T-ball.

Dean Lazowski, a middle school counselor, comes from Petoskey High School where he was assistant principal. He has also coached varsity sports. Lazowski holds two masters degrees from Central Michigan University.

Jason Otter, a high school special education teacher. He comes from a teaching position at Saginaw Webber Middle School and graduated from Austin Peay State University in Tennessee.

Gretchen Siegmund, a middle and high school education and special education teacher. Siegmund is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University.

Margaret Myers-Culver, a media specialist. She will work at the elementary school. Myers-Culver is a Central Michigan University graduate.

Susan Klinger, a middle school library and media specialist and social studies teacher. Klinger worked at the high school and at Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. She holds a masters degree from Central Michigan University.

Molly Marshall, a high school art instructor. Marshall comes from Kalamazoo Central High School. She graduated from Western Michigan University.

New Italian restaurant in town is a cozy family affair

By B. J. Hetler

The owners of Giuseppe's Italian Grille (left to right) Greg and Crystal Vereyken and Robbin and Aaron Moffat, want customers to feel like family. The owners combined their business, culinary and managing talents when they opened the restaurant last December. Giuseppe's is located at 557 Petoskey Ave., in Charlevoix. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

Family is important to the owners of Charlevoix's new Italian restaurant, Giuseppe's Italian Grille, and they make customers feel like family.

The husband-and-wife-team owners are Greg and Crystal Vereyken and Aaron and Robbin Moffat. Crystal and Aaron are sister and brother. The four opened the restaurant in the former Alexander's Restaurant in December, after extensive renovations.

Lace curtains, hand-stenciled ivy and faux brick on the walls, paintings, plants and bottles of olive oil on the tables all help to create a relaxed and comfortable atmosphere. Crystal and Greg stenciled and painted Italian scenes on the walls.

Diners are likely to be greeted by one of the owners, who will make them welcome. Customers' comments are appreciated.

Greg Vereyken and Aaron Moffat say they have received many positive comments about the decor, the cleanliness of the restaurant and the cuisine.

Giuseppe's offers pasta specialties, along with typical manicotti, lasagna and cannoli dishes. Greg's Italian mother contributed to some of the recipes.

"She calls and makes sure we're doing things right," Greg said.

Popular requests include shrimp or chicken scampi and pasta giardino, a blend of artichoke hearts, onions, green pepper and spinach with a white wine, balsamic vinegar and roasted garlic sauce over angel hair pasta.

Giuseppe's also offers specialty pizzas such as pesto, Cajun beef and chicken alfredo pizzas.

Diners have a choice among six specialty salads.

"The salads are the best in the area," Crystal said.

No matter what choice a customer makes, they won't go away hungry, Aaron said.

The ample servings are served with the eye in mind, as well as the taste buds.

"Presentation is very important," Greg said. "We pay a lot of attention to it."

The restaurant also has an American menu offering whitefish and steaks, as well as a full beverage selection.

The casual, family restaurant prices range from $8.95 to $18.

Aaron is a certified chef and has created some of Giuseppe's recipes. He was educated at the culinary arts school at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City. He was a chef at Grey Gables and at Shanty Creek. Robbin is educated in hotel and food service. Greg is also a chef and has owned several businesses. Crystal is an experienced waitress and manager.

Giuseppe's Italian Grille at 557 Petoskey Ave. in Charlevoix is open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday-Thursday, and from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Happy Hour is Monday-Friday from 3-6 p.m. The telephone number is 547-2550.

Bye, bye bingo

At the Bingo games Friday, June 16, the retirement of Gerald "Jerry" Johnson (left), who has served as Bingo chairman of the Veterans of Foreign Wars #1153, was announced. Johnson has served as Bingo chairman for the past 17 years. He has had a faithful record and in all that time, rarely missed even one Friday evening Bingo game. He has also served several terms as Post commander. Shown here, a Certificate of Appreciation is being awarded to him by Post Quartermaster David Goldstick (right). His wife, Edith (center), is also being presented with a Certificate of Appreciation. In addition, the couple received a gift certificate for dinner at the Argonne Supper Club to help celebrate their 57th wedding anniversary this month. David Goldstick and Bill Brady will assume the duties of co-chairmen of the V.F.W. Bingo games.

A happy reunion

Nine fellows from Detachment 3 of the 601st ACW Squadron of the 12th Air Force spent weeks and months of intense frustration and effort to find one another via the Internet. With dedication, loyalty and commitment, the men made plans to travel from Pennsylvania, California, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota and North Dakota to meet in St. Louis after more than 42 years apart. After being reunited, each of them knew that the bond they developed while stationed in Rothwesten, Germany, never left them. The men assembled included Mike Lehman of Charlevoix (second from left). With him are (from left) Bob Paich, Harlan Thielke, Al McIntire, Randy Rankin, Joe Ottman, Al Gerek, Ed Abbott and Gary Harper.

Venetian Festival will offer a packed week of music in the park

You'll know when Venetian Fesival is about to begin without even ooking. You'll hear the musical strains floating across East Park and through town as the entertainment for the festival kicks off Sunday, July 18 with a teen concert and dance featuring Fourth House n.

Following the opening night entertainment, the Odmark Pavilion will not experience a dull moment for a full week. On the evening of Monday, July 19, a Dixieland jazz and blues group will take the stage, followed Tuesday, July 20 by the Charlevoix Community Band.

The newly formed Fabulous Horndogs, with Newt Cole on sax, will perform Wednesday, July 21. Cole was formerly the sax player with the Jelly Roll Blues Band.

Thursday, July 22, the Northwest Academy Jazz All Stars take the stage as the opening act for Song of the Lakes. The All Stars have earned national acclaim for their swing and jazz music. Song of the Lakes will perform new folk music with a maritime flair.

The musical days grow longer Friday, July 23 when entertainment starts in the afternoon and continues through the evening with the Bandettes, Flint Master Singers, the Petoskey High School Steel Drum Band, Mark Moore and The Contours. The Bandettes are a popular drum and bugle corps from Sault Ste. Marie. The Flint Master Singers are a 30-member chorale group. The Petoskey Steel Drum Band is renowned for its calypso island music. Moore is a Charlevoix based comedian. The Contours are a Motown group from the 1960s, best known for their hit, "Do You Love Me (now that I can dance)"

Saturday, July 24 will feature entertainment by ventriloquist/puppeteer Richard Paul, Three Men and a Tenor (a comedy and a cappella singing group that claims they are one part Smothers Brothers, one part Marx Brothers and one part Statler Brothers), and the Jelly Roll Blues Band, which is northern Michigan's premiere rhythm and blues band. The Venetian Coronation Ceremony will be hosted before the Up North Big Band takes the stage.

Sunday, July 25 another drum and bugle corps will perform, the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, followed by the Charlevoix City Band and then Leavin' Dodge, a Charlevoix-based trio performing urban folk music.

Conservation news will help readers understand choices

(Due to concern that the story of conservation is not being adequately told in all areas of the state, an informal group of respected, veteran conservationists has launched the Conservation News Service. The group is distributing monthly columns exclusively to Michigan's weekly newspapers. Each column will be written by an expert in the field covered.

This June release is about conservation easements, and the purpose they can serve to protect special places. It is written by Tom Bailey, executive director of the Little Traverse Conservancy.)

By Tom Bailey

In the fight against a tidal wave of sprawl that gobbles up over a square mile of Michigan's countryside every week, land owners are discovering new tools to keep their property from being hacked into subdivisions or worse. Working with the state's 38 local land conservancies, these owner are exercising their right to protect their land's natural values without being taxed into the poor house. The following are examples of land protection through conservation easements.

A longtime Charlevoix county hunter and angler worried that his grandkids won't have a place to hunt and fish.

"Developers are calling me every week, nearby land is getting subdivided, and I just decided that I need to draw the line," he said. A phone call to his local conservancy revealed many options that offer tax advantages. He ended up signing a conservation easement, through which the conservancy permanently protects his land while he continues to own and enjoy it, retaining the ability to sell it or pass it on to his heirs.

"I sleep better at night now," he said, "knowing the land is safe."

In the eastern Upper Peninsula, a longtime landowner was thinking of a conservation easement to protect his 200 acres and quarter-mile of Lake Huron frontage, but ended up donating his land outright to a land conservancy as a public nature preserve.

"After thinking about it for a while," he said, "I thought that what I really wanted was for people to be able to enjoy the place like I did, so I figured I'd just make a gift of it. My kids will still be able to walk around on it like I did, and so will others."

Enlightened developers are also getting involved. Rather than exploit every last inch of land, more developers are dedicating portions to natural open space. They're finding that development which includes conservation looks better, protects natural values, and sells. Many properties command higher prices if adjacent land is forever protected to preserve its natural character.

To assert your right to pass on your natural heritage, call the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy at 237-9335 or the Michigan Nature Conservancy at (517) 332-1741.

City to host Slo-Pitch tournament

The Charlevoix Recreation Department will be sponsoring the Invitational Slo-pitch Tournament. Softball teams are invited to join in the tournament, which will be July 2-4.

The tournament is double elimination with a field of 12 teams. Most of the teams are class D, E and F. Trophies are awarded to the first, second and third place teams, along with individual T-shirts going to the first place team. This year's entry fee will be $165.

If your team is interested in playing, call the Charlevoix Recreation Department at 547-3253 by June 30. Also, please fill out a form provided by the recreation department, and return it by June 30.

Wednesday night sailors were treated to a rainbow at the finish

By A. Nony Mouse
Charlevoix Yacht Club

It was just a typical "March" wind last Wednesday evening as the breeze started out roaring like a lion but ended up as meek as a little lamb. The rainbow at the finish was just the icing on the cake. Lots better than last week's zero air movement race. Don't forget that the make-up for that race will be sailed June 30. Thinking back over nearly 30 years of Wednesday night Charlevoix Yacht Club races, I can only recall two others being canceled because of absolutely zero wind.

The standings now reflect a one-race drop that is allowed in this series.

The J-22s again had the largest fleet, now up to eight starters and another close race. Hussy finished first, exactly one minute ahead of H.S. Moisture Missile. Superfluous was only 15 seconds behind. Crazy Horse was well back, taking fourth place, and they were followed by Paleface Lite, High Maintenance, Jumblies and Swine Flew in that order. Standings now are Hussy, 4 points, H.S. Moisture, 5, Superfluous, 7, High M, 12, Paleface, 15, Swine Flew, 19, Jumblies and Crazy Horse, tied with 20.

Gotcha led Kamikaze in Fleet A, being both first-to-finish and first on corrected time. Was Mint Julep again at home snug and dry? Gotcha has a perfect score of 3, Kamikaze, 6, and Mint Julep, 8.

Our Thyme II crossed the line first in Fleet B, trailed by M 3 and Cabaret, but those two traded places when the times were corrected. It's now Cabaret with 4, Our Thyme II, 5, M 3, 7, and J Hawk, 12.

Fleet C's Blasen III found her old speed habit and led Jesse by almost a minute with Original Sin and Cygnus not far behind on both elapsed and corrected times. Lost Vermonter was again lost. So it is now Jesse with 5 points, Original Sin, 7, Blasen, 8, Lost Vermonter and Cygnus, tied with 10.

The two no-spinnaker fleets totaled only three starters, one rating 198 and higher and two in the 153-195 fleet. In the Jib and Main 198 and higher, Red Hot, yet again being the only starter, now has a perfect three points in the standings. In the Jib and Main 153-195 Fleet, race honors went to MI Joy without question as Bald Eagle retired and there was no Flash (of green or otherwise). So it is MI Joy, also with a perfect 3 points, Flash, 8, and Bald Eagle, 9.

Friday evenings at the Charlevoix Yacht Club are getting more and more active as we get into the season. Members, come on down anytime after 5 p.m. Don't forget to bring and introduce a guest any Friday evening. Mark your calendar for the Treasure Hunt Saturday, Aug. 28 with an optional Pirates' briefing at the Club Aug. 27. Charts of "Square Lake" are being prepared even as you read this. Watch for "Tripleloons (like doubloons, only worth more) and Pieces of Seven (luckier than eight)!

Two soccer camps offered through 4-H group

The Charlevoix 4-H Soccer Club is sponsoring a soccer camp and coaching clinic with Kakasu Jean D'Arc.

There will be two weeks of camp, one for those students attending high school in the fall, and one for students who will be attending middle school.

For high school students (9th - 12th grade), camp will be held from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. June 28 to July 2 at Shanahan Field. Cost for the camp is $65.

For middle school students (6th - 8th grade), camp will be from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. July 5-9 at Shanahan Field. Cost for the middle school camp is $45.

The coaching clinic will be two evenings in length. The dates and times for it are from 6-8 p.m. July 12 and 13 at Shanahan Field. The coaching clinic is free for anyone who will be coaching a 4-H team this fall or a travel team in the spring.

To register for the clinics, or for more information, call Carol Madison at 348-3317. Checks may be sent, along with the name, address and phone number of those attending camp to: Carol Madison, 08910 Maple Grove Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Please make checks payable to Charlevoix 4-H Soccer. All proceeds from the camps are being donated to the African Refugee Fund.

Keepers of the beaches

Mike Bergeon (left) and Dave Miles spent nearly a year selecting photos and working on the production of the millennium calendar, which is now on sale at Harsha House Museum and the Bridge Street Book Shop. The historic calendar makes a great Christmas gift for friends and family who love Charlevoix. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

What better way to start the new millennium than by taking a nostalgic look back at the past century or so? The Charlevoix Historical Society has found the perfect way to keep the last millennium fresh in your mind while keeping track of the new millennium days. The group published a year 2000 calendar with 13 classic photos that reach back well into the last century. Important dates in Charlevoix history are interspersed throughout the months. Each photograph captures the spirit of the month or season.

The cover photo is a classic picture of old wood sailboats, heavily rigged, with their sails drying in the breeze. "The poetry of wood and rope," is the title of the beautiful shot.

The calendars sell for $12.95. They are available at the Harsha House Museum, 103 State St., from 1-4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday throughout the summer, as well as at the Bridge Street Bookshop. Mail orders are available from the Harsha House for an extra $3 for packing and shipping.

The historical society expects to raise funds for the museum with the calendar sales. They were helped with the production costs by the following businesses: Charlevoix State Bank, Citizens Bank, Haggard's Plumbing and Heating, Don's I.G.A., Grey Gables Inn, Bridge Street Book Shop, Rocky Ridge Farm (Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Reynolds), Dr. and Mrs. Michael Bergeon and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Unbehaun.

New financial fund will help East Jordan Schools

A strong advocate for academic achievement in the East Jordan Public Schools has emerged, and with it, a new financial resource to help fuel scholastic efforts.

The East Jordan Learning Alliance — an organization created last December when the school district's PTO and Academic Boosters merged — hopes to bring members of the community and schools together as dynamic partners for educational improvement. Members of the group have committed volunteer time, financial support, and resources to enhance school programs and motivate East Jordan students to do their best. Now they've established a new fund within the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to further their cause.

Called the East Jordan Learning Alliance Endowment, the fund will serve as a reservoir of capital that can be used to underwrite pilot programs, enrich the curriculum, and provide some "extras" that can strengthen academics. The fund's assets will be professionally managed and, as they grow, a portion of the earned income will be used to make grants each year. In that way, the fund can continue to support educational initiatives for generations of school children to come.

Although brand new, the Learning Alliance endowment already has assets totaling more than $5,300. Members of the alliance hope to attract additional donations as word of their efforts spreads. All gifts to the fund are fully tax deductible, and, because the donations are made through the community foundation, they qualify for a special Michigan income tax credit as well.

Recreation and organized activities earn youth grants

When the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Committee surveyed area high school students recently, they found that kids share several concerns. Along with frequently mentioned problems like substance abuse, child neglect, or teen pregnancy, committee members learned that more recreational programs and organized activities for young people rank near the top of Charlevoix County teen's wish list.

With that in mind, the committee voted to award grants totaling nearly $29,000 to support a number of sports, cultural, and skill-building programs targeted to area youth.

Projects chosen to receive youth committee funding and the amount of their grants are:

Charlevoix County American Legion Baseball — $1,500 to help cover start-up costs for a traveling league team made up of kids 16 to 18 years of age. The team will join more than 70 others throughout Michigan - many composed of some of the state's most talented players.

Charlevoix Area Community Pool — $1,200 to purchase an inflatable device used for swim instruction and supervised water play.

Charlevoix County 4-H — $1,500 to help build an in-line skating and skateboard park at the Avalanche Mountain in Boyne City. The grant will also help cover the cost of helmets, knee pads and other safety equipment for kids' use at the park.

Crooked Tree Arts Council — $3,000 to support a docent tour program that will bring Charlevoix County students to the McCune Arts Center for hands-on cultural, creative, and educational activities.

Raven Hill Discovery Center — $5,625 for a new integrated environmental program that helps students understand the linkages between plants, animals, air, water, and other non-living factors in Michigan's varied habitats. The pilot program will be offered to students and teachers throughout the Char-Em school district.

Camp Daggett — $5,000 to help develop a barrier-free indoor facility that will be used year-round for the camp's popular rope-climbing challenge and other adventure programs.

Lake Charlevoix Mariners — $1,350 to purchase 30 life vests that will be used by children in the Charlevoix and Boyne City 4-H sailing programs.

Boyne City Public Schools — $2,000 to support the new Adventure & Rainbow Club that provides after-school organized activities, field trips, and learning opportunities for 6th graders.

Charlevoix Elementary School — $1,000 to help underwrite the cost of water safety and swim lessons to qualified second and fifth graders.

Northwest Michigan Council for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect — $1,800 to distribute a helpful manual called "What to Expect the First Year" to all new parents in Charlevoix County.

Planned Parenthood of Northern Michigan — $3,000 to bring "Out of the Locker Room," a special program promoting adolescent male responsibility, to groups of boys in Charlevoix County high schools.

Charlevoix County Friends of the Court — $2,000 to support a school liaison program that links parents, students, and teachers with Friend of the Court services, and helps address the special needs of children in single-parent families, or those of divorcing parents.

With this latest round of grants, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Committee will have distributed more than $202,200 to programs benefiting young people since the group started making grants in 1994. Money for grant-making comes from a special endowment called the Charlevoix County Youth Fund that's held by the community foundation. That fund, which was spearheaded by financial support from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, now has assets of nearly $1.3 million.

Members of the youth committee represent all high schools within Charlevoix County, including Beaver Island. The group meets regularly throughout the year to study local programs, learn about community resources, assess the needs of young people, and address those needs through grant-making. Students who serve on the committee include Christina Heller, Kellie Gillespie and Abbie Adams from Beaver Island; Dylan Hall, Katie Dhaseleer, and John Fry from Boyne City; Adam Utley, Rene Fiel, and Jason McNitt from Boyne Falls; Patrick Gowell, Jessica Halverson, Jeremy Rafacz from Charlevoix; and Jeremy Booze, Heather Jones, and Tarn Leach from East Jordan.

The Youth Advisory Committee will consider grant requests again this fall. For information about the group, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, or how to apply for a grant, call the foundation office at 536-2240.

Young Explorers learn the ins and outs of firefighting

By B. J. Hetler

A new firefighter program with the Charlevoix Fire Department gives students a leg-up on a firefighting career.

Charlevoix high school students Chad Collins, 17, and Jeff Riley, 14, spend six to eight hours a week in a work-study program known as "Explorers." It is sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America and coordinated through the Charlevoix Fire Department.

"We're training for firefighting," Collins said. "I've already been to 28 fires."

The two Explorers are trained by fire department training officer Joe Schwartzfisher, and fire chief Doug Carver. They participate in many of the activities, but are not allowed to enter burning buildings and cannot wear self-contained breathing apparatus (SCBA). When called to a fire, the students wear turn-out gear including the suit, helmet and boots and are paired up with veteran firefighters.

Both Collins and Riley are following in the career footsteps of their families. Collins has several uncles who are firefighters in New York. Riley's father, Jeff Riley Sr., is with the Charlevoix Fire Department. The Explorers say they are happy with the career choice.

"I love it," Collins said. "I love everything about it — the action at fires. I've seen a lot and learned a lot. You have to keep on your toes."

Riley agrees.

"It's a real learning experience," he said. "If you don't like the rush, you shouldn't be a firefighter."

The students said firefighting calls for discipline and a strong character.

"You have to keep your head clear of alcohol and drugs," Riley said.

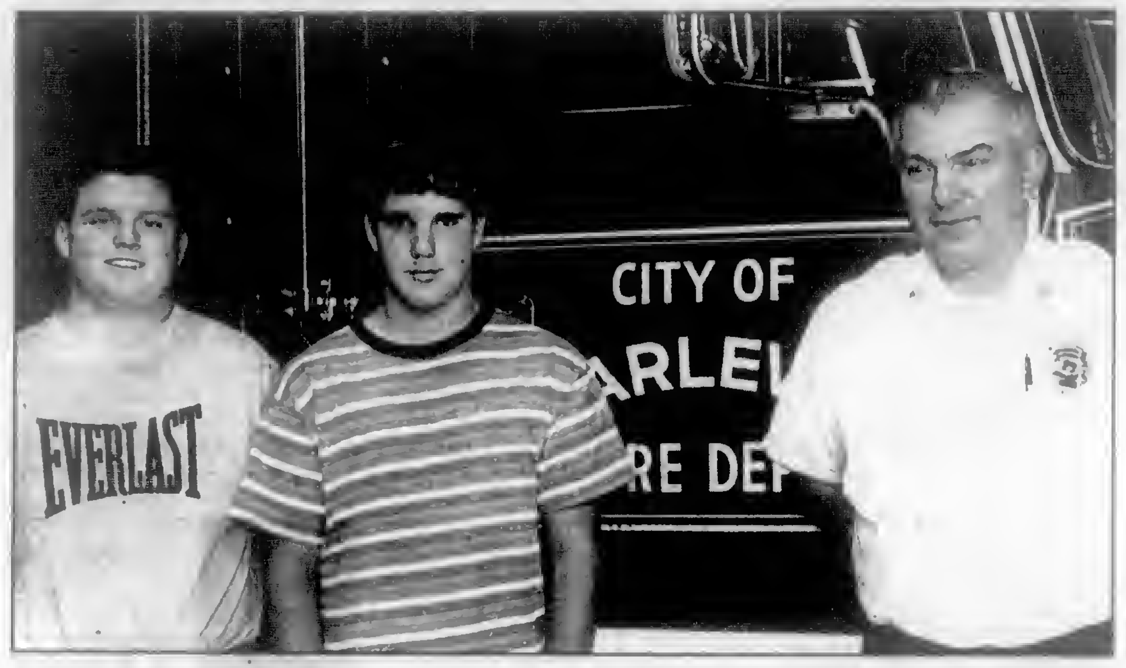
"And you can't be afraid of being hurt," Collins added.

Carver said the Explorer firefighter program is advantageous to both the students and to the fire department. When they reach the age of 18, they'll be prepared for the Michigan Firefighting Training Council's entrance examination.

The department also benefits.

"They do almost everything except go into a fire," Carver said. "They help the firefighters, change the air bottles, pull the hoses. They're a big help."

Collins and Riley both plan to go on to firefighter school.



A new work-study program at the Charlevoix Fire Department provides firefighter training to interested students. The program is sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America and is available to Explorer scouts. Jeff Riley (left) and Chad Collins (center) receive hands-on training from Fire Chief Doug Carver (right) and training officer Joe Schwartzfisher (not pictured). Collins, 17, has attended more than 28 fires with the department. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

FIRE!

It had all the makings of a fiery restaurant replay when a fire on the grill at the Office Bar sent flames and smoke licking up the kitchen vent at around 11:30 a.m. Thursday, June 17. The city fire department was on the scene quickly, and restaurant workers reported the flames had already been contained when the fire department arrived. Nonetheless, lots of people lined Bridge Street, which was closed to traffic, to watch the firefighters in action. C.J. Winnell, an aspiring photographer, was there to capture the entire event.

Clockwise, from top left: Bridge Street was blocked off for more than 30 minutes when fire trucks responded to a grease fire.

Firefighter Paul Ivan works the ladder truck.

Smoke poured out of the Office Bar roof. Dale Meredith directs traffic that detoured around Bridge Street.

AUCTION ITEMS

Not for sale at any price

Left: A woman who was signing in to go swimming at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool inadvertently set her baby down near the pile of auction items while she signed in. The auction items will be available at the pool dinner and auction, which will be hosted Aug. 1 at the Charlevoix Country Club. Pool auction co-chairman Bruce MacArthur saw the baby and got very excited, thinking someone was donating a terrific item to the auction. EVENTS IN BRIEF

Backyard beauty series continues

This Saturday, June 26, the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy will be exploring a watershed, from transitional upland fields to headwater streams, to a conifer swamp and Loeb Creek. The public is invited to join in the exploration. A watershed is defined as all the land that water flows through on its way to the stream. To the river, lake, and at last, the ocean.

The group will explore the beauty of the uplands, enjoying summer flowers and watching for hawks. After the walk, for those wishing to pitch in, the conservancy will sponsor a work bee to clean boards and litter out of the Pike nursery area of Loeb Creek at Ferry Road. Bring binoculars for siting the elusive and beautiful green heron, and waders for the work. The group will carpool from the conservancy at 9 a.m. Saturday, June 26. For early birds, there will be an 8:15 a.m. poetry reading from the "Carpenter Of Song" poems by Michael Carey.

Call the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy for more information at 237-9335.

Book sale hosted at Congregational Church

The Pilgrim Circle of the Congregational Church is hosting its Pilgrim Circle Book Sale at the First Congregational Churchyard from 9:30 a.m. to noon Saturday, June 26. In case of rain, the book sale will be held in the church Fellowship Hall. The church is located at 101 State St., Charlevoix.

Adventure programs return to Young State Park

The adventure program is back at Young State Park, with Ranger Holly leading the program. A partnership between the Michigan Department of Natural Resources' Parks and Recreation Division and the Kalamazoo Nature Center, the adventure program is open to all ages and centers around the natural world and our connection as humans.

Most programs meet at the camp pond and last about one hour. Hiking is often involved, so wear walking shoes. The programs are free, however, a vehicle pass is needed to enter the park; daily passes are $4 and annual passes are $20. Children under 8 must be accompanied by an adult.

Upcoming programs include:

— Mammal Mania, 10 a.m. Thursday, June 24: Check out some skins and skulls.

— Nature Hike for Kids of ALL Ages, 3 p.m. Thursday, June 24: Meet at the contact station.

— Critter Dippin' at 3 p.m. Friday, June 25: Bring your nets if you have them and discover the life in a pond.

— Fire Facts, 8 p.m. Friday, June 25: Learn to start a fire without matches. Meet at host campsite 41.

— Web Weavers, 10:30 a.m. Saturday, June 26: Meet the local arachnids.

— Tadpoles to Toads at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, June 26: Learn the life cycle of tadpoles and then search for some.

Panhellenic Women start seasonal lunches

The Northern Michigan Panhellenic Women will open the 1999 season with a noon luncheon meeting Wednesday, June 30 at Evelyn Hall in Bay View.

"Boxes Under the Bed," is the program that will be presented by Loretta Gilewicz. Gilewicz took a course from the Michigan State University Museum about old quilts and needlework. There will be a show and tell session so members are asked to bring any quilt-related memorabilia they might have.

All Panhellenic women of the area are invited to attend. Hostesses for the June 30 event are Pam Dilley and Sue Trevarrow.

Reservations are due by noon Monday, June 28 and can be made by signing up at the Bay View Post Office or by calling 526-7389.

Historic Festival comes to Petoskey

It will be history in the making Saturday, June 26, as the Little Traverse Historical Society presents its annual Historic Festival at Bayfront Park in Petoskey.

The festival includes a 9 a.m. fun ride on bikes, a midway market place that opens at 10 a.m., kids' games, face-painting and fish painting.

The festival's signature event is Taste of the North, which will run from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Approximately 20 area restaurants will be serving up samples of their favorite recipes. Come for just a taste, or make a meal of the delights.

Historic walking tours are scheduled throughout the day, as are historic boat tours with the new Bay Water Ferry and Tours, located at the Petoskey City Docks. Riverside harness will be at the waterfront offering horse-drawn carriage rides from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

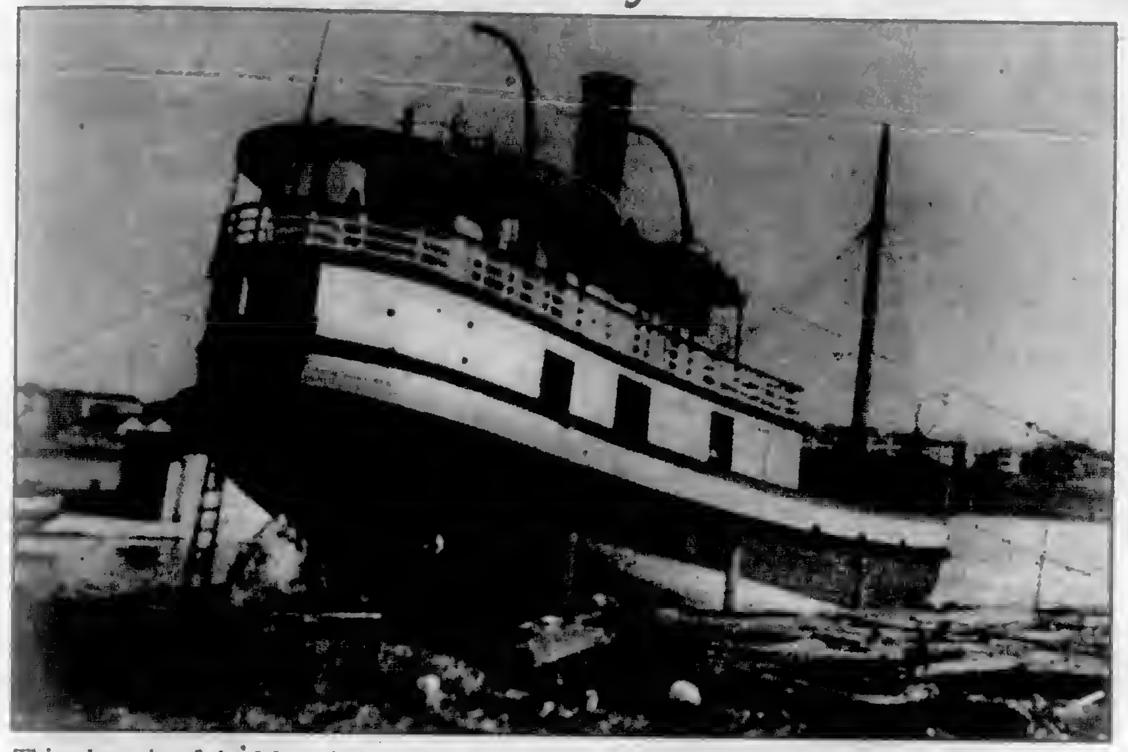
SCRAPBOOK

Charlevoix's locally built boats suffer ignominious fate



This photo is of the Marquis Roen in Charlevoix in 1920, shortly after it was built. This maritime vessel was built by Herbert Hulme in Charlevoix. The photo was donated to the Charlevoix Historical Society by Herbert Hulme's great-niece, Rose Elzinga.

By Geoffrey D. Reynolds

Charlevoix is lucky enough to claim a small, but important, role in the making of Great Lakes vessels from its founding in the 1860s to the middle part of this century. One such creation was the Marquis Roen, which slid into the waters of Round Lake during the summer of 1921 and joined the many others that traced their beginnings here.

The vessel was designed and created by its owner, Captain John Roen. With Roen, Roy Ranger and Captain Herbert Hulme made up the trio that set up a saw mill and steam box to cut and form the timbers at the construction site, which was located in the backyard of Roen's Round Lake frontage home. After many months of effort, she was completed and named the Marquis Roen, in honor of the owner's son.

Measuring 84 feet in length with a 24-foot beam and 7 feet in depth, the steamer weighed 97 gross tons and was powered by the former boiler and engine of the 37-year-old fish tug Frank D. Phelps, which had been purchased one year earlier by Captain Roen. The latter boat was running under a new power supply until it was dismantled in 1929.

After hitting the water, the Marquis Roen was put to work hauling sawn logs, lumber and pulp wood for Roen's company. It was also used to pick up scrap iron and steel from wrecks when the need arose. Later, she would be used to tow the former sailing schooner, Interlaken, which was purchased to carry cargoes of pulp wood, logs and lumber from such places as Cedarville, Sugar Island, Hessel and Duck Island to Lake Huron-based paper and saw mills at Filer City, Alpena, Bay City and Port Huron. During this time in Marquis' career, Captain John Roen also served as her master while his brother-in-law, Henry Isakson, served as chief engineer.

The two vessels worked in tandem until the Great Depression hit the lakes and the Marquis Roen was chartered to W.J. Meacher of Bay City. While there, she caught fire Dec. 7, 1932 at Meacher's dock, destroying her cabins and aft end. After the fire, she was sold to Harold Neff of Cleveland and repaired up to her main deck, her engines lifted and converted into a simple barge. Her last known use was as a barge during the removal of the stone piers of the old Court Street Bridge in Saginaw around 1937.

After that, she was laid up against the east bank of the Saginaw River, upstream of the Meacher docks, to decay. In 1953 she was set afire by vandals and burned to the waterline. After the fire she was said to be visible only during low water levels. Later, she was dispersed and buried during the construction of a new marina at the site.

While this may seem a sad ending for one of Charlevoix's own creations, many others met the same fate or worse at the scrap yards along the lakes or beyond. One such local graveyard is Oyster Bay, where several identified vessels were stripped of their usable equipment and left to decay in the quiet waters.

If you would like to learn more about Charlevoix's rich maritime heritage, please visit Charlevoix Historical Society's Harsha House Museum this summer during the hours of 1-4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, at 103 State St., Charlevoix, or contact executive director Betsy Reynolds at 547-0373.

Round Lake homeowners control mooring rights on north side of lake

By B. J. Hetler

Rumblings are scattering over the north shore of Round Lake and it's not nature's thunderstorms causing them.

Residents and visitors have moored their boats in the 70-acre lake for many years. But mooring is illegal in the lake, unless you are a Round Lake homeowner or have written permission from a homeowner. However, few complaints were heard about the practice until a few years ago.

Now some of the homeowners have contacted the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ). The Corps and MDEQ have jurisdiction over the inland lake located between Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix. The homeowners have riparian rights which entitle them to ownership of the bottom of the lake.

> "There's been absolutely no problem for years. I've never seen a problem. What is the harm of having boats out in Round Lake?"
> — Charlevoix resident Jeffery Howland.

Round Lake is a special anchorage area, said Mary Anderson, Corps project manager. Special anchorage areas provide a safe haven for transient boaters who seek refuge during inclement weather. Anchoring is always allowed, but mooring is regulated.

With mooring a permanent anchor is dropped to the bottom of the lake and a rope extends to the top of the water and attaches to a buoy. Permitted mooring allows boaters to leave the area without pulling up an anchor, and secures their spot for when they return.

Anchoring provides a spot for boaters for several days or weeks, but boaters must pull up the anchor and take it with them each time they leave the area.

The complaints include congestion from too many moored boats and hazards from boats moored too close to private docks, Anderson said.

"We can confirm that this area cannot hold as many boats as were there," Anderson said.

She estimated that 58-62 boats were illegally moored each season.

'Fourth' parade kickoff at 10 a.m.

Charlevoix's Fourth Annual Fourth of July Parade is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. Sunday; July 4 at the American Legion Hall on East Garfield.

Included in the parade is a brass ensemble which is led by Gary Stutzman, the U.S. Coast Guard, the combined American Legion/VFW color guard and a military recognizance vehicle which is owned by Bill Schuiling of Charlevoix.

Special guests are members of the Vietnam Veterans of America.

The parade route runs from East Garfield north on Bridge Street to East Park. Parade-ending ceremonies at the park include a speech by parade organizer Charlie Butcher, the national anthem, a rifle firing and flag raising.

Also included in the festivities is a Warthog A-10 flyover by the Air National Guard stationed in Battle Creek.

Butcher said he invites any marching group, such as the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts, to join the parade.

Boaters must get permission to moor in Round Lake

Last fall, the Corps had all moorings and buoys without permits pulled out of the water.

Resident Jeffery Howland has moored his boat on Round Lake for the last seven years. He is disappointed about the situation.

"There's been absolutely no problem for years," Howland said. "I've never seen a problem. What is the harm of having boats out in Round Lake?"

The city doesn't seem to support a place for residents and visitors to enjoy with their boats, Howland said.

But the city has tried to gain the right to operate a moorage anchorage area in the lake. To do that it must obtain legal rights from the homeowners. The city held a private meeting with the riparian rights homeowners on June 22 in an attempt to gain that right. The homeowners turned the city down.

"We were trying to allow some usage of the area by riparians and non-riparians," said city manager Mike Wiesner. "We tried to solve the situation and it didn't work out."

The city could have gained revenue if it had been able to operate a moorage on Round Lake. How much revenue is uncertain, because the fees were not determined.

The City of Harbor Springs operates a marina area with 66 moorings. It charges daily users from $6-$15 a day, depending on the weight of the boat. Seasonal user fees range from $432-$1,218.

Bill Jerome, spokesperson for the newly formed Round Lake North Shore Property Owners Association, issued a prepared statement in response to a request for comments. It did not address the question of why the homeowners rejected the city.

The statement explained its goals to "protect our riparian property rights" and then stated: "At the request of the City of Charlevoix, the property owners met with them Tuesday evening, June 22 at City Hall. As a result of that meeting, the city has stated that they are dropping further discussions with us and intend to abandon any further plans they might have had regarding the anchorage area. Consequently, we have no further plans for organized action as none appears to be necessary."

The Corps and the MDEQ will continue to be the vehicles for the homeowners if illegal moorings resurface. No formal complaints have been filed with the agencies.

Festival draws artists from across the country

A beautiful weekend complemented the fine art at the Charlevoix Art Festival on Saturday and Sunday, June 26 and 27.

The event brought nationwide juried artists to East Park to exhibit and sell a broad selection of fine arts and fine crafts.

The mediums included watercolors, pottery, jewelry, woodwork, photography and sculptures. Live musical entertainment was performed throughout the festival.

Many of the artists said they were impressed with the beauty of Charlevoix and the Northern Michigan area. Watercolorist Barbara Doncaster from Great Barrington, Mass. said she loved the area and would return for another festival.

Most downtown businesses had an increase in customers throughout the weekend.

Whitneys' manager Anne Scott said business was "fantastic" and that the restaurant had orders from the artists as well as the public.

"We had a waiting list for the first time this season," Scott said. "With three floors, that's something to have a waiting list."

"We had a significant increase in business," said Village Inn Pizza manager Pat Henige. "It's usually a fairly quiet day, but there was a big change."

Henige credited the increase to the art festival.

The restaurants saw most of the increased business, but clothing merchants also benefited.

"I think it (the art festival) helped us," said The Clothing Company manager Pam Beer. "There were definitely more people in the store."

J Phillips manager Jackie Staley agreed.

"The art festival made it busier," she said. "People were in and out all day, the whole town was so busy."

Several area hotels and motels also felt an increase. Pointes North Inn manager Candy Bishaw said that 90 percent of the weekend guests were staying because of the art festival. Edgewater Inn general manager Tracy Sell said the inn was filled during the weekend.

The event was organized by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and Howard Alan Events, Ltd.

OPINIONS

Attitude toward Hemingway has changed

EDITH GILBERT

This month visitors are flocking here from all over the world in celebration of Ernest Hemingway's 100th birthday. Many people are well aware that the Nobel Prize winner's parents had a summer cottage on Walloon Lake. The family retreat will be on tour on July 24, along with numerous other events planned by the Petoskey Historical Society.

It's also well established that Hemingway spent the winter of 1919 writing about people he was close to in Petoskey and Horton Bay. One of the people he was close to was Horton Bay's Vollie Fox. Legend has it that Vollie taught young Hemingway how to fish for brook trout in a nearby stream. In fact, Vollie's grandson, Jon Hartwell, gave me permission to print a treasured photograph of Hemingway in my book, "Summer Resort Life, Tango Teas and All." He's holding a fishing pole in one hand and proudly pointing to a catch of brook trout with the other.

Vollie's wife founded the renowned Red Fox Inn. Only the building is still standing, nestled in a grove of pine, it's open to the public. The interior of the former restaurant is filled with the original furniture, mirrors and pictures from those long ago days when Hemingway sat in the country kitchen exchanging local gossip. Hemingway describes the setting in his first book, published in 1923, Three Stories and Ten Poems.

He wrote, "Horton Bay, the town was only five houses on the main road between Boyne City and Charlevoix. There was a general store and a post office with a high false front and maybe a wagon hitched out in front, Smith's house, Stroud's house, Fox's house, Horton's house and Van Hoosen's house."

Other people were taking notes as well. Vollie Fox's sister-in-law wrote in her diary earlier, "Saw Ernest Hemingway, who was severely wounded in Italy. Has 237 wounds. One leg stiff, one kneecap gone, but looks fine now."

What most people don't know are Hemingway's Charlevoix connections!

"We had a softball team that often challenged the 'natives' to a contest," writes the late Joe Bohrer in the Belvedere Club Book of 1969. "I recall in 1917 or 1918 we had such a game on a vacant lot. The team was free to use any resorter on Pine Lake (Lake Charlevoix) and we always tried to get Bill Smith of Horton Bay. Bill came to pitch that day and brought with him a guest named Ernest Hemingway. Hemingway was limping quite badly so we let him play first base — the slow man's spot. After the game we learned that this guy Hemingway's leg was full of shrapnel he received while in the Ambulance Service in Italy during the War."

You can read all this and more about Hemingway in my aforementioned book. Like the time during the summer of 1920, when Hemingway was "kicked out" of the family cottage and was hoping to find work at the cement plant in Petoskey -- which, as you all know is now Bay Harbor! Some of his Charlevoix tennis friends took him to the posh, local, gambling casino, the Colonial Club, which was commonly referred to as Koch's (pronounced Cook's). Starting out with $6, he won $59, and this hefty sum saved him from working at the cement plant that summer!

Locally, there's been a major turnaround regarding this man Hemingway. When I first arrived here in the summer of 1940 and asked for a Hemingway book in the only Petoskey bookstore, the owner informed me huffily that she didn't choose to carry his work. Today the whole town is celebrating his 100th birthday. And rightly so!

Letters to the editor

Thanks for participation, help and for attending

Editor:

I want to thank all those who participated in the Memorial Day Parade in Charlevoix. A special thanks to our guests, the U.S. Coast Guard and Commander Shultz, the speaker.

In addition, we members of the American Legion and VFW express our appreciation to the city employees and helpers who worked hard on the huge job readying the Brookside Cemetery for the day.

Finally, we appreciate the attendance of the public to our ceremonies at East Park and the Cemetery.

Sincerely,

Charlie Butcher

Captain of the Combined Color Guard

School: Can't sit on our hands and do nothing

Editor:

I attended the presentation by the special committee appointed by the Charlevoix School Board to study our school buildings' problems.

The presentation of three options was well done, indicating an intensive investigation of the problems and thoughtful approach to the solutions.

Each option would cost several million dollars and all of us hate to see an increase in taxes. But we can't sit on our hands and do nothing.

The committee will present its study to the board soon, and I urge voters to attend that board meeting. Which option the board selects will set the program for the next 20 years, and the board deserves comment from the voters.

Dr. Sturock, our new superintendent, has reviewed the past history and given it to the committee to consider in their study. We voters are only too familiar with the facilities' history, and we must include these option studies in forming new opinions on this issue, which is vital to our community.

Sincerely,

Charlie Butcher

Sheriff's Department kept busy by traffic mishaps

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department was kept busy last week with traffic accidents, with the injured people treated and released from Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The department is investigating a car-truck collision that occured at 6:09 p.m. Tuesday, June 22 on Ridge Road near Wurn Road in Eveline Township.

Three persons were injured in the mishap: Linda Lefevre, 39, of East Jordan, Samuel Betzold, 10, of Petoskey, and Kevin Dietze, 45, of Boyne City.

Lefevre and Betzold were taken by private vehicle to Charlevoix Area Hospital, treated and released.

A deputy responded to a call of a reported property damage accident on Ridge Road.

Upon arrival, the deputy discovered that Lefevre and Betzold had received minor head injuries in the crash.

Witnesses and evidence at the scene indicated that the 1989 Plymouth Acclaim that Lefevre was driving possibly blew its driver's side front tire and the car crossed the centerline and sideswiped a 1989 Chevrolet truck driven by Dietze.

Dietze left the scene to seek medical help in Charlevoix and was later located at a residence in Boyne City, police said.

Dietz complained of pain in his left shoulder.

All three people escaped serious injuries by wearing seat belts, police said.

The sheriff's department was called to a one-vehicle accident at approximately 5 p.m. Wednesday, June 23, on M-66 north, about one-half mile south of Ironton, in Eveline Township.

Injured in the mishap were the driver, Annette Campbell, 33, of Charlevoix, and her children, Trenton Bunning, 9, and Tyne Bunning, 10.

The three were transported by Charlevoix city amublances to Charlevoix Area Hospital, treated and released. They sustained several cuts.

Campbell was driving a 1984 Chrysler four-door northbound when she lost control in a rain storm on the "S" curve south of Ironton.

The vehicle ran off the road and struck several trees head-on.

Speed was a factor in the crash, police said.

All three occupants were wearing seat belts which greatly reduced injuries, police said. The vehicle was totaled.

The crash remains under investigation.

City police nab would-be art thief

Charlevoix city police caught an art thief in the act over the weekend.

At approximately 2:30 a.m. Saturday, June 27, Sgt. Dale Meredith was on foot patrol downtown when he spotted a man in the act of removing an art object from one of the booths at the Charlevoix Art Festival.

Meredith confronted the 21-year-old Charlevoix man, who had apparently broken into one of the booths for the purpose of removing art objects.

Meredith recovered a $700 piece of art and the man was arrested and lodged in the Charlevoix County Jail pending formal charges.

Keep cool, and energy costs low

Those lazy, hazy and hot days of summer are here. With them come anticipated warm temperatures and high humidity for the remainder of the season.

To keep cool during summer months, Consumers Energy offers these energy-saving tips:

- Operate stoves, ovens, dishwashers and clothes dryers in the morning or evening when it is cooler outside. These appliances add extra heat to the home and make air conditioners work harder.
- Avoid opening the refrigerator or freezer door unnecessarily to prevent cold air from escaping and to help keep energy costs from rising.
- To maximize cooling, close registers in unused areas.
- Set the air conditioning thermostat at 78 degrees during the day when you're home and even higher when you're away. An automatic thermostat will ensure energy savings.
- When shopping for an air conditioner, make certain the unit is the appropriate size. Buy an air conditioner with a higher energy efficiency ratio (EER) for maximum savings.
- Eliminate or reduce air conditioning needs by installing an attic fan. Ceiling fans will cost even less. A room air conditioner that is on for eight hours costs about $1.68, compared to a ceiling fan which costs three cents.

Bills would affect water diversion

Only one percent of Great Lakes water comes from rain water and rivers, the rest is from glacial deposition.

Only the top 33.75 inches of the Great Lakes are renewed annually.

Decreased water levels would create problems for waterfowl and fish breeding areas along shallow areas and in coastal wetlands.

The loss of every one foot in water level means 3,240 tons less cargo per trip for a typical 1,000 foot iron ore carrier.

A package of bills was recently introduced into the Michigan Senate to require public notice and consultation prior to Great Lakes water diversion. The bills are SB 294 AND 295, introduced by Sen. Young (D-Detroit), Sen. De Beaussaert (D-Mt. Clemens), Sen. A. Smith (D-Salem), Sen. Peters (D-Bloomfield Twp.), Sen. V. Smith (D-Detroit), and Sen. Byrum (D-Onondaga). The package also includes SB 316, introduced by Sen. Bennett (R-Canton).

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God Church

The story is told of a rich man who took his son on a trip to the country with the firm purpose of showing the boy how poor people can be. They spent a day and a night on the farm of a very poor family. When they got back from the trip, the father asked his son, "How was the trip?"

"Very good, dad," he replied.

"Did you see how poor people can be?" the father asked.

"Yeah!" the boy said.

"And what did you learn?" the father asked.

The son answered, "I saw that we have a dog at home, and they have four. We have a pool that reaches to the middle of the garden, they have a creek that has no end. We have imported lamps in the garden, they have the stars. Our patio reaches to the front yard, they have a whole horizon."

When the little boy was finished, the father was speechless. His son added, "Thanks dad for showing me how poor we are!"

Neither riches or poverty are defined by how much money a person has, as this little story illustrates. If you have the Savior, love, friends, family, health, good humor and a positive attitude toward life — you've got everything. These are things money can't buy. Neither are they things the lack of money will prevent you from having.

Jesus said, "Watch out! Be on your guard against all kinds of greed; a man's life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions." (Luke 12:15) That's the right perspective to have about money and possessions.

So, how's your perspective? Perhaps you're richer than you thought you were after reading the story. Express your gratitude to your Lord for His blessing.

On the other hand, perhaps you realize you're poorer than your statement of net worth would indicate. Here's the way to gain true wealth: "For life is more than food, and the body than clothing. Consider the ravens, for they neither sow nor reap; and they have no storeroom nor barn; and (yet) God feeds them; how much more valuable you are than the birds! And which of you by being anxious can add a (single) cubit to his life's span? Consider the lilies, how they grow; they neither toil nor spin; but I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory did not clothe himself like one of these. But if God so arrays the grass in the field, which is (alive) today and tomorrow is thrown into the furnace, how much more (will He clothe) you, O men of little faith! And do not seek what you shall eat, and what you shall drink, and do not keep worrying. For all these things the nations of the world eagerly seek, but your Father knows that you need these things. But seek for His kingdom, and these things shall be added to you." (Luke 12:23-31)

I, or any local Pastor, would be happy to counsel you about investing in true riches!

Big Rock opens doors to some 250 visitors

Big Rock public affairs director Tim Petrosky talks to a group of visitors at the plant on Monday morning. Big Rock hosted some 250 visitors representing the nuclear industry, the media and citizens groups. (Photo by Andy Sneddon)

If the control room clock could talk ...

About 250 international visitors to Big Rock Point Restoration Project learned Monday what the original control room clock might say if it could talk.

It may mention the numerous ticks that passed during the plant's 35 years of producing electricity, says Bill Trubilowicz, who has been licensed to operate and supervise the control room since 1979.

Other things the clock may share — the agony of countless critical plant start-ups, the adrenaline involved in 168 scrams, the excitement the day the plant set a world record in 1977 for operating 343 days, and even war stories shared by friends as they helped man the room that was not left unattended for one minute in nearly 37 years.

Until the day it was shut down in February.

The abandonment of the control room is just one part of the decommissioning process attendees of the American Nuclear Society Executive Conference learned about this week as they gathered in Charlevoix and Traverse City for a conference on decontamination and decommissioning.

The group participated in a tour of the plant, which involved viewing the fuel pool, new power system, the big rock for which the plant was named in Lake Michigan, the reactor, a large hole where the turbine once turned to produce electricity, and an example of how the fuel would be moved from the pool to dry-fuel storage canisters.

After the tour, the attendees separated for golf, shopping or a trip back to Traverse City.

Tuesday and Wednesday, June 29-30, the attendees are at the Park Place Hotel in Traverse City, where decommissioning nuclear power plants are sharing what they've learned with the industry.

Big Rock Point is two years into its seven-year decommissioning effort.

"You may drive up to the plant now and say, 'What have they been doing for two years?'" said Tim Petrosky, Big Rock's public affairs director. "But we're methodically choosing parts of the plant that we can remove asbestos from, and performing other decommissioning tasks."

To date, the largest projects have involved installing a new, visible power system to enhance employees' safety while deconstructing the plant, removal of the transformer, and the disappearance of the substation.

Even though much of the conference involves technical discussions about the latest technology being used to bring down Big Rock, there are touches of emotion in saying goodbye to a plant that has been part of the community since 1962.

Trubilowicz recalled a control-room phone call he received from his wife 18 years ago announcing the impending arrival of his son.

Now, the control room is completely empty.

As Trubilowicz shared his story, like the stories the clock would tell, executives from around the world realized that decommissioning a nuclear power plant is about more than nuclear fuel and taking away concrete — it's about history.

And it's about people's lives.

Singing competition ahead for area women

Two young Charlevoix women have teamed up with a new friend from Bloomfield Hills to form a singing trio that caught the eyes — and the ears — of talent scouts for the Jimmy Dean Big Country Showdown.

Danica Kilander, 19, and Jennifer Ricks, 19, both of Charlevoix, will be joined by Gretchen Koss of Bloomfield HIlls, also 19, when they sing at the regional Big Country Showdown competition.

"We're really excited about this," said Kilander, who was also last year's Venetian Queen. "Ever since we were kids, we've talked about how great it would be to sing professionally."

Out of 40 groups who submitted audition tapes, only 12 were selected to perform at the regional competition. The trio of singers, who call themselves the Wild Angels, was among the 12 to be chosen.

The trio will perform Sunday, July 11 at the Otsego County Fairgrounds in Gaylord for the regional Big Country Showdown. If they win at the regional level, they will go on to national competition.

"We're trying to get as many people as we can to come and cheer for us, because we've been told that it will improve our chances if we have a good crowd of people encouraging us," Kilander said.

Admission to the event is free.

Framed & Hung offers personal consultations

By B. J. Hetler

A new art framing business offers personal consultations to its clientele for selecting the style, color and texture of materials to frame treasured art.

Framed & Hung by Art Onthewall opened in the second week of June. It's owner, Nita Martin, says she provides a highly personalized service in a private setting.

"Art is very personal," Martin said. "Customizing it for your environment is also personal and a little time-consuming. I offer choice and diversity to the art and framing needs of Northern Michigan."

Framed & Hung also sells fine art. Martin said she enjoys assisting clients with art and framing decisions.

"It's interesting to watch the unconscious mind work as someone chooses certain frames and see the colors they're drawn to."

Martin chose the name of the business because it had some humor to it.

"I wanted to get away from the stuffy art gallery environment," she said.

The store provides a full line of Larson Juhl custom framing products, and selected designer molding from other suppliers. Special order prints are available from Wild Apple Graphics and Graphique de France. A selection of less-expensive frames is available.

Clients are encouraged to bring in paint chips, wallpaper, carpet and fabric samples to help in selecting the best frame. Martin also provides home visits, delivery and installation.

The store has state-of-the-art equipment to mount art work, cut mats and assemble materials. Services include stretching canvases and framing needlepoint and other hand-made work.

Martin's father, Phil Martin, is a professional photographer. She is proud to display and sell his work. He played a large part in her childhood interest in art.

"I learned what I know about the art of photography from my father," she said.

Her father was also a great encouragement to Martin as she ventured out as a first-time entrepreneur. She also credits her friends for giving her the courage to begin a business.

Still new at the experience, Martin said she is "scared, but raring to go."

Martin's history in the arts backs up her efforts in business. Her childhood interest carried over into her adult years. She took framing courses from Vivian Kistler and Brian Wolfe, who are both nationally known for their expertise in the framing industry. She also traveled with artists to art fairs, and worked for a local interior designer.

Martin is a native of Charlevoix, and said her great-grandfather was Charlevoix's first constable.

Framed & Hung by Art Onthewall's hours during the week are by appointment. Walk-ins are welcome from 10 a.m.-5:00 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays. It is located at 12900 U.S. 31 North, across from Lincoln Log Motel. The telephone number is 547-0720.

Skin cancer is most common

If you think a good sunburn is the best way to prepare your skin for the summer sun, think again, according to a release from the University of Michigan.

Peeling sunburns, particularly on children, are the best way to develop melanoma, the most deadly form of skin cancer.

Whether you are a weekend gardener, a sun worshipper, or a fan at the ballpark, it's important to protect yourself — and your children — from the sun's harmful ultraviolet (UV) rays.

Skin cancer is the most common type of cancer, and its most serious form is melanoma. Melanoma, while the least common of skin cancers, accounts for six of every seven skin-cancer deaths.

"Melanoma turns out to be problematic in Michigan," said Dr. Glen Bowen, assistant director of the Melanoma Program at the University of Michigan Comprehensive Cancer Center. "You wouldn't think that because we're so far north, but part of the problem is the winters are so long that when the summer comes or when people go south to vacation, they tend to get sunburned.

"They tend to go out and get intense sun exposure. It appears that the sun exposure that leads to peeling sunburns is the most causative factor in getting a melanoma."

Skin cancer typically develops in areas exposed to the sun, such as the face, neck, forearms, hands, back and ears.

There are three types of skin cancer: basal cell carcinoma, which is typically a reddish non-healing lesion on the head or neck; squamous cell carcinoma, which is often a red scaly patch on the face, lips, mouth or ears; and melanoma, which looks like an irregular-shaped mole.

People with fair complexions and lighter hair are at the greatest risk of developing skin cancer. The chances of developing skin cancer increase if at-risk people receive heavy sun exposure as children.

"For parents, it's particularly important to get children in the habit of protecting themselves from the sun," Bowen said. "It's those peeling sunburns that the children get that's going to do them in when they're adults.

"If we can get the parents to teach their children how to avoid the sun, be careful with the sun and avoid those cumulative peeling sunburns, it can help reduce the risk of melanoma when those kids grow up."

Limiting exposure to the sun during its peak hours — 10 a.m.-4 p.m. — is one preventative step, as is wearing hats with brims and loose-fitting clothes that protect the skin. Sunscreen lotions also are important, although they do not completely block UV rays.

"People gain a false sense of security with sunscreens," Bowen said. "They think, 'Because I'm wearing a sunscreen, I can stay out on the beach most of the day.' Well, it's not true. It's like a filter for a cigarette: It will decrease some of the ultraviolet light that hits the skin, but it doesn't block it all out."

Sunscreens with a sun protection factor (SPF) of 15 or higher are recommended.

Along with taking steps to prevent skin cancer, people should examine their skin for any unusual signs. Bowen recommends a monthly self-skin exam.

"If there's anything good to say about melanoma, it's that you can see it," Bowen said. "And even though it's one of the most deadly cancers in the human population, it's very easily treated if caught early."

A simple way to check for skin cancer is to look for the "ABCD" features when identifying a mole that may be melanoma:

- Asymmetry — the mole is unevenly shaped.
- Border — the mole's edges are blotchy or ragged, rather than smooth.
- Color — the mole has multiple colors, such as black, brown and red.
- Diameter — the mole is wider than a pencil eraser and is increasing in size.

Spring sailing series winds down

By A. Nony Mouse

Just another perfect day in paradise as the Spring Series winds down with only the June 30 makeup of the fourth race left to sail. The standings are for each yacht's best four out of five races sailed (one drop).

The J-22s again had a close race with Hussy finishing first in 7:17:30 with both H S Moisture Missile and Superfulos crossing the line a bit over a minute later. High Maintenance, Paleface Lite, Gecko and Jumblies trailed, in that order. Swine Flew and Crazy Horse did not start but Gecko made her first start of the year. The standings: Hussy 5 (dropped a third), H S Moisture 7 (dropped a second), Superfulos 10 (dropped a third), High M 16, Paleface 20, Swine and Jumblies each at 27, Crazy Horse 28 and Gecko 30.

Gotcha again led Kamikaze in Fleet A being both first to finish and first on corrected time. Gotcha has a perfect 4. Kamikaze 8 and Mint J 12.

J Hawk crossed the line first in Fleet B trailed by Cabaret and Our Thympe II, but those two moved up to first and second (by just 5 seconds) on corrected time. M 3 trailed all three on actual and corrected times. It's now Cabaret with 5, Our Thyme 7, M 3 11, and J Hawk 15.

Fleet C's Blasen III again had the old speed habit and left Lost Vermonter by over one minute with Original Sin and Cygnus not far behind. Jesse wandered in about two minutes later. So, it is now, Blasen 9, Jesse and Original Sin with 10, Lost V 12 and Cygnus 14.

The two no-spinnaker fleets finally had a few starters, two rating 198 and higher and three in the 153-195 fleet. In the JAM 198 and higher, Red Hot had yet another first to finish and first in class and has a perfect 4 with points in the standings. Apothecary was the only other yacht in class (good to see you out there!) and now had 8 points. In JAM 153-195 race honors go to Flash, who saved her time over MI Joy. Bald Eagle was a bit slower. MI Joy has a perfect 4, having dropped this race. Flash follows with 9, while Bald Eagle now has 12.

A very nice group from Northwest Marine joined us Friday evening at the club for a delightful spread, courtesy of Nita Martin. A reminder to all boat owners — the Venetian Festival Committee needs you! Plan now to be in the Big Venetian Yacht Parade.
